Freshmen Arrive, Gird for Action, 45 Days Earlier

SMC freshmen arrived on campus for induction into college life approximately four days earlier this fall than in past years.

Under last year's schedule, freshmen would have arrived last Sunday—along with everyone else—to begin orientation and registration procedures.

This year, freshmen had been on campus at least four—perhaps five—days, and had completed the largest part of the orientation and testing schedule, by Sunday.

According to Academic Dean John W. Cassell, Jr., the primary advantage of this year's early arrival date was the opportunity for incoming students to get better acquainted with the college without having to contend with the additional routine initiated with the arrival of the complete student body.

In addition to the more leisurely pace and special attention, this year's orientation and testing program was marked by increased use of audio-visual materials, buses to Brainerd shopping areas, and the registration of all new students prior to that of former students.

Prior to Dr. Cassell's arrival at SMC in 1963, orientation was carried on during the first two weeks of school, with night lectures and other additional appointments for freshmen.

Campus Changes: Talge and Jones To Be Razed Soon

The face of the campus here, already undergoing rapid changes, is due for even greater changes in the near future.

In an interview with the SOUTHERN ACCENT, Charles Fleming, Jr., business manager of the college, indicated present and future changes:

• The new administration building, presently under construction, is scheduled for relative completion and occupancy around the start of the second semester.

• Talge and Jones Halls—ancient and battered SMC landmarks—are tentatively scheduled to be torn down sometime following the completion of the new women's dormitory under construction across from the present WRH.

Plans are for the new dorm to be ready for occupants in the fall of next year. Talge will probably go next summer, Jones a year or so later, according to Fleming.

• A Stromberg-Carlson (PBX) switchboard, now on order, will handle all campus calls from

Changes Characterize 1966-67 Student Handbook

SMC and You, the Southern Missionary College student handbook and official repository of rules and regulations governing campus life, has been distributed for the 1966-67 academic year in an edition which represents one of the largest revisions in the pamphlet's 15-year history.

Differences between this edition, which features a blue-and-white cover with the date "1966-1967," and the previous edition, the light-blue "1963 Revision," are more substantial than cover differences.

Changes include:

1. The extension of off-campus double date privileges—previously available mainly to juniors and seniors—to sophomores, once a month. (p. 20)

2. The elimination of several paragraphs of quoted material concerning chaperonage; the new edition handles the topic in roughly half as many words as the old edition.

3. The recognition of last year's change in policy allowing "couples" to sit together in Sabbath School, but not in church.

Women's Clothing

4. The change of the previous ruling requiring all formals to have "sleeves," and the related excision of much other specific detail concerning women's clothing.

5. The expansion and elaboration of the section dealing with automobile use; the insurance requirements for campus automobiles are spelled out. (p. 12)

6. The elimination of the section on "Open" and "Closed" Saturday nights; under the old handbook, students were not allowed to leave campus on certain specified Saturday nights in each month.

Revised Yearly

7. Elimination of the prohibition of record players in the women's dormitory rooms; the stabilization of the fine for unauthorized changes in dormitory wiring at $25.00; the deletion of the old ruling that students in the cafeteria would be seated "on the plan of two men and two women to each table."

The current revision is the work of the Handbook Review Committee headed by Dean of Students Gordon A. Madgwick, and made up of both student and faculty representatives last year.

WSMC to be SDA Strongest Radio

Southern Missionary College's educational radio station, WSMC—soon to become the most powerful Seventh-day Adventist facility in the world—is scheduled to begin broadcasting a week from tomorrow, Sept. 23 from newly remodeled and enlarged studios on the third floor of Lynn Wood Hall. Work on the studios has been in progress during the last three months.

This summer the college was granted by the Federal Communications Commission a construction permit enabling the station to prosecute plans to increase power to 70,000 watts.

Three Months

According to Allen Steele, manager of WSMC, programming at that power should begin within three months. WSMC's new location on the FM dial will be — when broadcasting with the increased wattage begins—90.7 megacycles, instead of the present 88.1 mc. at 10 watts of power.

Operation will be on a limited schedule for approximately one month following the resumption of broadcasting, while the two control rooms are completed.

Featured in the station's new studio arrangement are twin production and FM control room studios in the center of the radio station suite of offices, studios and auxiliary rooms at the north end of Lynn Wood Hall, second floor.

Facilities

A third studio is readily visible from the two main control rooms and is located across the hall which bisects the station area.

Adjacent to the FM and production studios is the communications speech classroom which may at any time serve as a large studio for group programs and broadcasting classes.

Also included in the radio center are two offices, the station record and tape library and the engineer's workroom. The whole area is fully carpeted and has been provided with central air conditioning and heating.

200-Foot Tower

When operation has begun with the new 70,000 watt facilities now under construction, programs will continue to originate from the present studio location in Lynn Wood Hall. The transmitter, to be located approximately three miles south of the college on White Oak

MV Society Plans for Events of Sept. 22-24

The Missionary Volunteer Society chapter of the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church is now completing arrangements for "MV Weekend" to be held on campus Friday and Sabbath, Sept. 23 and 24.

According to Rodney Hyde, associate MV leader and coordinator of much of the preparation for the weekend, the two days will have "something for everyone."

Actually beginning in Thursday chapel, Sept. 22, a "special feature" for which details have not been released, the weekend will end Saturday night with a musical and variety entertainment of "Western" motif.

Working with Hyde are Ron Bentzinger, leader of the MV society chapter; and Elders Frank Holbrook and B. H. Wentland Jr., sponsors.

Also to participate in the weekend's events will be the MV secretaries from the Southern Union conferences, and Elder E. S. Reile, MV secretary for the Union.

Futcher Analyzes Trends In SMC Applications

FRESHMEN REGISTER That was the week that was

Dr. C. F. W. Futcher, director of admissions and records here, indicates that while the college accepts this year were, at 1328, higher than ever before, and while total enrollment also seems to be going higher than before, new factors—such as the war in Viet Nam—have complicated the college attendance picture.

Many — especially males — who have been accepted to college may actually show up in Saigon instead of at SMC.

Nationwide trends, according to Dr. Futcher, also predict a drop in the number of persons reaching college age in this country. The trend seems to apply here: Freshmen accepted by around the first of September last year totaled 570; this year the figure was only 477.

When all the counting and sorting has ended, Dr. Futcher expects around 400 freshmen to be entering programs here at SMC.

Editorially Speaking . . .

Handbook Revision

What is the purpose of a manual such as the college student handbook, SMC and You?

We believe that the basic function of such a publication is to set forth concisely and clearly the specific rules and regulations which obtain for the particular organization for which the manual was written. The primary function, as we see it, is neither to cajole nor explain, but simply to state. An instructor's total experience with a rule in question is should be more than enough explanation of any rule which is truly relevant and worthwhile, and the brevity which is a cardinal virtue of any rulebook precludes the indirection and redundancy necessary for adequate persuasion.

From this viewpoint, then, we would mark the 1966 revision of SMC and You as a genuine improvement. As the story on page one of this issue indicates, changes in the handbook are generally relevant and tending toward clearness and conciseness.

Dean of Students Gordon A. Madgwick, the person primarily responsible for the revision, has made clear another feature of this revision: its continuing character. The fact that this edition is labelled unrequirably "1966-1967" indicates that Dean Madgwick is sincere in his aim to bring out a revised edition each year.

Future editions of the handbook will probably not be news as is this revision. The number of changes made in the 1966 SMC and You is directly related to the length of time the handbook has gone essentially unexamined and unrevised.

"We welcome dialog and sincere reaction to the new handbook," Dean Madgwick has stated. The SOUTHERN ACCENT urges the students of this college to take him at his word. It is stating that he will abide by the handbook, bears little if any relation to his knowledge of the contents of that handbook.

Read the revised edition carefully and critically. We did. And though it was frankly hard going in places, wading through undefined terms and evasive wading, we found the generally positive tone and authoring delightful encouraging.

Read it, and then go tell Dean Madgwick just what you think about it. Be blunt with him. It should be fun.

We would like to go on record as suggesting that the future revisions of the handbook continue the trend which this edition has established. Regardless of what the rules are of an institution, eventually you'll find out about them. Euphemistic wording and persuasive techniques seem to us just a little out of place in a rule book. We believe students want to know where they stand, "what the score is."

Steps Forward

SMC now has a youth pastor. Elder R. H. Wentland, Jr., former mission president, youth leader in Viet Nam, and academy pastor, fills a position the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church has needed for years.

Although Elder Thurmond's new associate from Springfield, N. Y., has responsibilities ranging from Pathfinders to young married couples, he says the major portion of his time will be devoted to SMC's 800 dorm students.

Elder Wentland is the Collegedale church's first full-time associate pastor. Former associates have also been responsible for one or two churches in the Collegedale area. We believe the Collegedale church and the Georgia-Cumberland Conference leadership have wisely taken this step forward.

Surely this community of over a thousand members and a student body of 1100 comprise a congregation large enough for two full-time ministers. It is interesting to note that two of our sister campuses, Andrews University and Pacific Union College, have ministerial staffs of five and three respectively.

We welcome you, Elder Wentland. We believe that bringing a full-time youth pastor to SMC is a step forward in helping students remain "in touch" with the church.

Letters

Policy on Letters

Since the "Letters to the Editor" column has been, and probably will continue to be, the most thoroughly read feature in the SOUTHERN ACCENT, we want to encourage prospective writers for this feature to bring letters by the office as often as possible in order that the column may be filled from issue to issue.

Generally speaking, the only restrictions on letters are those of the proverbial "horse sense." Categorical statements cannot be easily made concerning what will and what will not be acceptable to be printed in the column. Considerations of time and place are joined by fifteen or twenty other factors, and simple "rules" become less and less simple.

Nevertheless, we feel some sort of indications should be made in this first number of Volume XVII, of what will guide the thinking of the editorial staff in case of question on any letter.

Basically, letters must be accurate in fact, must not attack persons or deal in personalities, must include the name of the writer, though his name may be withheld from publication by request, must be relevant to the framework of campus problems and thought.

"Reading"

Trimmed Lamps!

By H. M. TIPPETT*

Someone has observed that "only those who sleep on the floor never fall out of bed." People who take such precautions resist the lure of luxury mattresses. Their security lies in not being surprised by a jolt, and they endure the Spartan hardness of the floor to maintain their status quo.

By analogy many people find intellectual and emotional contentment in refusing to read books not written by their favorite authors, books outside their common knowledge, or books contrary to their inherited political or religious beliefs. They fear the dizzying heights of discussion and avoid as far as possible all jolts to their complacency.

We wonder if people in this category are not in danger of being identified with the unwise virgins in the parable who will cry, "Give us of your oil, for our lamps have gone out." Testing our views and beliefs on the challenging contentions of others could be one way of trimming our lamps of faith that they may shine brighter. Convictions based on intelligent reading and observation are commendable, but many a cause has found the "deep sleep of settled opinion" to be stupor from which there is no awaking.

Eternal Enigma

Humbly pleading
Through the streets,
Palm-strewn
And narrow,
Unknowingly
He boars
The Burden-bearer
Of the world.

Triumphant shouts,
Hosannas
Fill the air.
Victory—Resplendent
In this hour.

Poor faithful beast.
He cannot see
The anguish
In that face—
The sorrow
In those eyes.
He cannot see
That distant hill Called Calvary.
He cannot know
The meaning
Of this day.
He cannot know
He bears
The One Rejected.

PRE NOT POST

SMC faculty met, in the days before the onslaught, in colloquium, to discuss problems of higher education in the framework of Seventh-day Adventist thought. The Southern Accent commends the faculty project: diagnostic conferences are superior in many ways to post mortems. Faculty this year is larger than ever.

Club members share costs of plane payments, insurance, and other basic expenses entailed by club operation. "Type C" members pay the lowest rates, mainly for upkeep and gas.

Fall Flying

This fall the club plans to offer all types of instruction, leading to either private, commercial, flight-instructor, or instrument ratings.

"Members are welcome at any time," notes Schopflin. "The more members, the less the cost per person. If our membership were to double this fall, our basic individual cost would be cut in half all the way around."

Schopflin invites all questions and inquiries concerning the club, and says that he can be reached at his office (396-2712), at the music building (396-2790), or at his home (396-3693).

At the first meeting Sept. 25—to which all interested persons are invited—club operation and policies will be discussed fully, he said.

Also, interested persons can make arrangements at that meeting for trial flights in the club planes. "And remember," Schopflin said, "fall is the best time for flying!"

New G. I. Bill Will Help Returning U. S. Veterans

SMC males who take a "McNamara fellowship" with the U. S. Armed Services during the coming semester can now count on returning to SMC to finish their educational plans—after their hitch, but again at government expense.

Under the terms of the "new" GI Bill, passed recently by congress, all persons who have served six months active duty in any of the Armed Services since the old GI Bill expired January 31, 1955, and who have been honorably discharged, are eligible for government support while continuing their schooling.

Benefits for full-time students who have "served their time" run up to $150 for a student and two dependents. A single full-time student can receive $100 monthly, and a married, or one dependent, student can plan on $125.

Part-time study qualifies for proportionately lower benefits. For example, a single veteran attending half-time can receive $50 per month.

Benefits will also be available to those SMC students who accept the invitation of their draft boards—to "see the world" immediately following graduation, but plan on graduate study. Graduate education is covered by the new bill. So is high school.

Both male and female veterans are covered.

If you are interested in or would like to qualify for these benefits, take good care of your textbooks.

Avoid reading or marking them. They will sell for more used.

The "deal" is that the veteran will get one month's benefits for each month spent in uniform, with a maximum of 36 months.

"WSMC," continued from p. 1 Mountain, will be operated by remote control.

Erection of the 200-foot tower is soon to begin and the transmitter and antenna are scheduled to arrive Oct. 1. Land for the tower site was provided by Dr. Dewitt Bowen, a Chattanooga dentist and Collegedale resident.

The station's new Collins type transmitter will be furnished with a stereo generator, making possible broadcasting in stereophonic sound, according to station personnel. James Hannum, instructor in communications and director of broadcasting for the college, states that with increased wattage, WSMC will be one of the most powerful non-commercial stereo stations in the South.

Following completion of the two control rooms in the station's studios, the limited schedule with which broadcasting will be resumed will be replaced by a regular schedule which will continue throughout this school year—even through vacation periods.—into the summer, according to Hannum.

Broadcasting, when resumed, will continue at 88.1 megacycles and 10 watts of power until the 70,000 watt facility can be installed.

Wedgewood Trio Will be Active Despite New Duties

About two years ago at Newbold College, Bracknell, Berkshire, England, Don Vollmer with his guitar, along with Bob Summerour on the banjo and Jerry Hoyle on the string bass, first formed the singing group now known as the Wedgewood Trio.

Since returning to the States they have performed, not only here on the SMC campus, but also at Orlando, Fla.—Columbia Union College, Atlantic Union College, Highland Academy, Pisgah Academy, and Georgia Cumberland Academy—in addition to various banquets and civic functions in Chattanooga.

The group has a repertoire of some fifty songs, including sacred selections and folk songs, mostly of Southern Appalachian origin, along with some Swedish, English and Irish ballads.

When asked if the trio possibly had any plans for turning professional, Don Vollmer replied that "As of now, we have no stars in our eyes." However, this past May the group made its first recording of sacred and folk music.

Since their organization as a performing group, the members have changed in status and perhaps in outlook. Vollmer was elected president of this year's Student Association, running in a three-way contest which included trio-member Summerour. And Hoyle was married this summer in Europe.

But the group's scheduled appearances during the first part of this school year indicate that they are still the Wedgewood Trio—despite all.

Douglas Returns With Film Lyceum On 'Bonnie' Lond

An illustrated lecture on Scotland, "land of the proud and the brave," this Saturday night will be the first of this year's Lyceum Series presentations.

Hosting the evening's "Visualventure in amazing Polacolor" will be Neil Douglas, "America's Dynamic Explorer" and personal SMC Lyceum Series lecturer.

The lyceum program will be given an historical orientation by highlighting significant events in Scotland's past and showing their influence and effect on present-day Scotland. Scottish scenery, noted for its rugged beauty, and Scottish castles, kirks (churches) and historical shrines will also be shown and explained.

At work and dancing the famous Highland Fling in kilts and tam-o'-shanters, the people of Scotland will be portrayed, with particular emphasis on their heritage and character.

The lyceum will end with a presentation of Edinburgh as it is today, including a visit of Queen Elizabeth II to a Scottish pageant of bagpipe playing and costumed, shouting, Highland dancers.

Reeses Return From Mid East Tour This Week

SMC President Conrad N. Rees and Mrs. Rees returned this week from a vacation tour of Europe and the Middle East.

The trip has taken President and Mrs. Rees through six Near East countries, all of Biblical and historical interest, and to Rome and London.

Dr. Rees announced before leaving that he and his wife planned visits to several Seventh-day Adventist institutions including educational units such as Middle East College at Beirut, Lebanon.

Leon Peek Wins $250 Scholarship Given by TSPA

Marvin Leon Peek, junior accounting major at SMC, has been awarded a $250 scholarship by the Tennessee Society of Public Accountants for study here this coming year.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Peek of Rt. 1, Concord, Tenn., Peek applied for the scholarship competition in July. He was notified of his selection—along with 15 others chosen from approximately 45 applicants from Tennessee colleges and universities—in August.

Peek was one of three applying from SMC for the yearly award.

Administered by the Committee on Promotion of Accounting Study and Scholarship of the TSPA, the award is made to students establishing both need and academic ability.

Peek, a music minor and high-ranked trumpeter in the college band, is also a member of the SOUTHERN ACCENT staff.

Plan Now To Attend

Steele Plans Radio Meet

STEELE AND STAFFER REBA HALL CHECK RECORDS
Bigger and Better

Allen Steele, senior communications major at the college and manager of radio station WSMC, has been named by the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, Bethlehem, Pa., to membership on the IBS National College Conference Committee.

The committee, appointed annually by the IBS Board of Directors, plans and organizes the annual IBS convention in the fall of each year.

In addition, Steele—as director of the IBS-Southern Region—is responsible for the IBS-Southern regional convention, to be held this year at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga. Delegates for this convention come from the seven southernmost states of the U.S.

Jackie Salyers, a sophomore communications major at SMC, will serve as the convention registrar. John Waller, a senior in communications here, will be press secretary for the affair. Steele discloses that featured speakers for the Southern regional convention will include Georgia's Lieutenant Governor Peter Zack Geer and E. William Henry, former Federal Communications Commission chairman.

Dr. Gordon Hyde and James Hannum, from SMC's Communications department, will also participate in several conference presentations.

Don Vollmer Wants YOU!

"CAMPUS," continued from p. 1 6 a.m. to midnight. Any private room phones in the new women's dorm will be connected with the Collegedale Telephone Company, not the switchboard—as it is installed in the new administration building.

• Flooding in the area between Telge and the college auditorium—a familiar occurrence in wet Collegedale weather—has hopefully been eliminated by the moving of 50,000 yards of dirt and the installation of proper drainage channels. Chapel will no longer mean soaked shoes during moonset shows here, Fleming hopes.

College Works On Solution To Boiler Soot Problem

The "soot problem" at SMC may yet be conquered.

Students arriving in The Valley for the first time may have already become acquainted with the fly-ash associated with the two coal-burning boilers below Jones Hall.

Returning students need no introduction to the phenomenon.

According to Charles Fleming Jr., college business manager, SMC is presently considering several procedures which could eliminate the soot-plagues in the advent of cold weather.

One possibility, said Fleming, is to convert one of the two central heat boilers to natural gas, and to use that boiler year-round, reserving the other coal-burning unit during the coldest weather.

The present boilers are purportedly built to be "ash free." The problem with the two-year-old units, however, is that when the boilers are not being stoked at maximum combustion capacity the coal is not completely oxidized, and unburned carbon floats out the stacks to settle on SMC buildings, cars and other nearby scenery.

Thus this summer, when the boilers were not being "pushed," soot was produced in greater quantities.

Another solution possibility—perhaps combined with the natural-gas alternative or conceivably used alone to alleviate the problem—would be the installation of fly-ash collectors.

Despite the obviousness of this solution, effective fly-ash collectors for boilers of the presently-installed size and type are not readily available. The search for such apparatuses has only recently located an Atlanta, Ga., company which now manufactures them.

At any rate, Business Manager Fleming hopes that another step can soon be taken in eliminating this continuing campus trademark.

MV Booth at County Fair Features SMC Activities

The Chattanooga-Hamilton County Fair, Sept. 19-24, in Chattanooga, will feature this year a large booth now being planned by the Missionary Volunteer Society of the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church. It will emphasize SMC.

Plans for the booth are now being worked out by Rodney Hyke, associate leader of the MV Society chapter, and Elder R. H. Weiland, Jr., one of the MV chapter sponsors.

Highlights of the booth will include a 20-by-7-foot painting of the world, executed by the SMC art department. The painting will illustrate the missionary and humanitarian activities emanating from SMC.

Another feature will be the film "Spring Comes Early," which depicts campus life and many of the student activities here.

The film will be shown continuously, with narration, in one section of the booth; by an automatic slide projector with a reverse screen.

Also on display in the booth will be a collection of transparent colored pictures in a special display cabinet surrounded by telephone earsets through which the fairgoer will hear a short descriptive narrative of campus activities.

Students from SMC will man the booth and will give each visitor a brochure on SMC.

Visitors will also be given opportunity to enroll in religious correspondence courses.

Flying Club Meets 25th, Offers 'Package Plan'

by C. J. BRYANT

This year's first meeting of the Collegedale Flying Club will convene Sunday, Sept. 25, at 7:30 p.m., in Room 218 of Lynn Wood Hall.

If you joined the club at that time, under the "Package Plan," you could have your private pilot's license by January or early spring, according to James Schoepflin, instructor in music at the college and president of the club.

"Package Plan"

The "Package Plan," or Type A club membership, is designed especially for beginners. The novice is guaranteed, under this membership, 40 hours of flying time in the club's planes, 20 hours of which are with club instructors. Also included in the "package" is training in "ground school" by the club's two instructors, covering basic principles of flying and flight.

Now going into its third year, the SMC Flying Club is a private organization, numbering approximately 25 members.

Its purpose, according to Schoepflin, is to "offer flying to students and community members at economical rates; to promote mission-flying and related activities; and to provide economical and fast transportation for college industries and administrators."

The club is not directly connected with the college. Current officers are Schoepflin, president, Benay Moore, secretary-treasurer, and Ellsworth McKee, executive chairman.

Schoepflin and his wife have made the longest trip to date in the club's planes. Piloting the Cessna 172 they flew round-trip to Seattle, Wash., logging a total of 42 hours in the air. Schoepflin termed the cross-continent jaunt "successful."

Club airplanes have also been to such cities as New York, Miami and Houston, and have flown students and faculty from SMC to visit several other SDA colleges in the country.

Club spokesmen believe the SMC Flying Club compares

Club Planes

In addition to the Cessna 172, a four-place 1963 airplane, mainly for the use of private-license holders on cross-country flights, the club owns two other planes. Beginners get their primary training in a two-place Acrona Champion; and members "finish up" their training in a 1959 Cessna 150, another two-seater.

The Cessna 172 is equipped with modern navigation equipment.

The two club instructors, Bill Tol and Clifford Port, both have their "commercial" and "flight-instructor" ratings, and Tol has in addition ratings for instrument and multi-engine flying.

There are three basic types of membership now available.

"Type A" costs $10 per year, and entitles the member to voting privileges and participation in all club functions—except flying. This "participating membership" is, according to the club, mainly for individuals who either own an airplane or simply like to be around a flying group.

"A, B, C"

"Type B" membership is the "Package Deal," referred to earlier. Designed for the college-age and other flying enthusiasts who are basically ignorant of flying, the membership course prepares the student to take the government-administered private pilot's examination, which, if passed, allows him to carry passengers in a privately owned airplane. At $195 the "Package Deal" is fairly expensive, club spokesmen point out, but not when compared with total costs — of instruction, plane rental, gas and other associated expenses. Financial arrangements can be worked out, with club recommendations, through the Collegedale Credit Union.

"Type C" membership is the continuing affiliation which enables the licensed pilot to use the club's planes for personal and business flying. The entrance fee on this plan is $100, with a monthly payment—presently $15—based on the number of members in the club.

SA Election winners: Bonny Murphree, Bob Fuller, and Albert Dittes

Press Conference Kicks Off Election

In a joint worship session on Sunday, Sept. 25, seven political hopefuls faced a new feature in the election procedure of the Student Association: the pre-election press conference.

Charles Jenkins, Bonny Murphree, and Jackie Salyers, candidates for the office of Public Relations chairman of the Student Association; Bob Fuller, Bonnie Hand and Phillip Whidden, running for the chairmanship of the Scholarship committee; and Albert Dittes, an approval candidate for the office of Programs Committee Chairman were the objects of interest relative to their plans and platforms by representatives of the SOUTHERN ACCENT and radio station WSMC-FM. On the firing line for WSMC was John Waller; representing the ACCENT were Rodney Bryant, George Powell, and Given Garry.

This informed, the members of the Student Association went to the polls and elected three students to these Senate positions at elections held Sunday and Monday, September 25 and 26, and Thursday and Friday, September 29 and 30.

Elected to the programs committee chairmanship was Albert Dittes from Portland, Tennessee.

Elected to the position of Public Relations chairman for the Student Association was Bonny Murphree, from Birmingham, Alabama. He will be working with William H. Taylor, SMC's director of College Relations.

Albert Dittes is majoring in history and is in his senior year.

Bonny Murphree is working on majors in theology and communications, and he is in his junior year.

Enrollment Tops 1100 for Semester

Eleven hundred thirty-two students have completed registration at Southern Missionary College for the fall semester. According to Dr. C. F. W. Fletcher, director of admissions and records, this total is an increase of thirty over last year at this date.

Although these figures show only a slight increase over last year, they do represent the continuous growth of the college, according to Dr. Fletcher. SMC has gained more than 100 per cent enrollment in the past six years.

Dorms Crowded Says Madgwick

Facilities are overloaded again at SMC. Dean of Students Gordon Madgwick reports that dormitory space is at a premium for both men and women. Some men are housed in SMC apartment buildings, and some women will live in temporary overflow quarters in their dormitory recreation room, in addition to regular dormitory housing.

Newly Named Directory Given Out October 4

Ecce, the student-faculty directory, was presented Tuesday evening, Oct. 4, at joint worship. Larry Bogar, editor and Ed Shafer, managing editor, presented the first copy of Ecce to SA President Don Vollmer. The presentation date of October 4 is the second earliest publication date in many years.

Ecce, formerly known as the Joker, is a Latin word meaning "behold," but has a colloquial translation of "There they are—Look at them!"

The staff — Anna Adams, Cheryl Letter, Joe Ann Newman and Charlene Sublett worked only four weeks in putting Ecce together. Foote and Davies Publishing Company, publisher of the Southern Memories, saved valuable time and increased the accuracy by machine cropping the pictures. To accommodate the increased enrollment, the size was changed from 9x5 inches to 9½x5½ inches.

The directory this year is approximately 91 per cent complete. Editor Bogar stated that this was a very good record because of late registrants and a "few" people who managed to register without a picture.

He went on to say that the senior students of nursing pictures were not complete in Ecce because of a breakdown in communications with the photographer in Florida.

This year's Ecce has new features which Editor Bogar feels will add to the usefulness of the publication.

The Missionary Volunteer Society of Southern Missionary College unveiled its many objectives and plans for the coming school year during special services held September 22-24.

The "MV Weekend," set aside for missionary emphasis, was highlighted by the presence of Elder John A. Hancock, associate MV secretary of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Also in attendance were Elder E. S. Reile, MV secretary of the Southern Union; and the MV secretaries of the local conference of the Southern Union—W. C. Arnold, Alabama; Mississippi; D. L. Ash-borg, Georgia-Cumberland; P. A. Kostenko, Carolina; N. O. Middag, Florida; and D. E. Holland, Kentucky-Tennessee.

The weekend activities started on Thursday, September 22, with a special chapel service. It was at this time that the 1966-67 MV officers were introduced in a skit depicting a busy MV office scene. Officers introduced were Ron Bentzinger, leader; Rodney Hyde, associate leader; Barbara DuPuy, secretary; Mary Nix, treasurer; Curtis Carlson, student relations director; George Powell, missionary activities director; and Roy Boehm and Don Shaw, co-directors of the Master Guide program. Faculty sponsors for the society are Elder Frank Holbrook, assistant professor of religion and Elder Rankin Wentland, Jr., associate pastor of the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Student Missionaries
During this special chapel program the aspects of sending student missionaries were presented by Elder Hancock. It was mentioned that this program has been initiated by other Adventist colleges and has been very successful. Elder Hancock mentioned that this program has been approved by the General Conference and has been given the code name, "MVUSA."

Friday night the message for the vesper hour was a stirring appeal for all students to dedicate themselves to missionary activities in light of what other youth have done and are now doing to spread this advent message to all the world.

Youth Rally
The Sabbath morning services were also aimed at missionary endeavors of our youth. That afternoon a youth rally was directed by Elder Hancock, Elder Reile and the MV leaders of the union. Of special interest were the acclamation solos by Elder Hancock.

Saturday night, the MV society presented a musical and variety entertainment program on a "western" theme.

Alumnus Captain In US Air Force

Captain Barbara J. Beavers, class of '60, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Beavers, Sr., of 507 Forsyth Ave., Columbia, City, Ill., has completed the orientation course for United States Air Force nurses at Sheppard AFB, Texas.

Captain Beavers, who studied specialized aeromedical subjects and hospital administration, is being assigned to MacDill AFB, Fla. She will join the Tactical Air Command which provides combat reconnaissance, aerial fire support and assault airlift for United States Army forces.

Shafer Names Yearbook Staff

The Southern Memories staff this year will actually consist of three staffs in one, according to Ed Shafer, editor of the college yearbook.

Carol Nedigh, Elaine Holt, Junita Sosong, Pat Horning and Glenda Janien will serve as associate editors, said Shafer, junior communications major.

Senior English major, Carol Nedigh, is layout editor. Junita Sosong, office secretary, will keep the files of copy and pictures up-to-date.

Elaine Holt, photo editor, assisted by Kay Hartwell, will keep the photography staff coordinated; Bob Hawkins, Alden Hall, and Paul Richardson are photographers.

Pat Horning, a journalism major, and Glenda Janien, senior English major, have the responsibility of literary work on the yearbook.

According to Editor Shafer, "Each associate editor will have four or five people working under her. This way no one person has to work too hard. The book will have 256 pages, and we hope to cover the school year to the first of April, 1967. The theme and the cover design have been decided, and plans are moving rapidly ahead."

Editorially Speaking . . .

On this page the reader will notice a public opinion poll by Southern Missionary College that was prepared and taken by the class in public relations campaigns during the second semester of the past year.

This poll was sent to all constituents who are subscribers to the SOUTHERN ACCENT, and 400 responses were recorded. Such a poll is not scientifically accurate, but it can give some idea of what the constituents of the Southern Union think about Southern Missionary College.

All in all, the public opinion survey is complimentary to Southern Missionary College, yet it points out some places where definite improvement can be made by students and faculty to better communicate with the various publics that the college serves.

In analyzing the returns and pointing out those responses where some improvement can be made, one should look at Part I, Question 12. It seems as if Southern Missionary College could communicate more and better with its various publics inasmuch as 43 percent of those who responded said they know very little about the college.

Looking at Part II, Question 2, it would seem that the SOUTHERN ACCENT might like to put on a campaign to increase its circulation. The opinion of the SOUTHERN ACCENT came out fairly well though with 78 percent rating the newspaper as excellent or good.

Southern Missionary College could step up its newspaper coverage to hometowns since only 15 percent of the respondents had read about SMC or its students in their local newspapers.

Part II, Question 6, shows an area where improvement can be made when one notices that 43 percent of the respondents seldom read or never read about SMC.

In Part VI, Question 4, where the question is asked about how easy it is to find SMC when arriving for the first time, it would seem that more and better signs should be built to indicate where the college is because 25 percent answered that it is hard to find.

One of the surprising responses to the questionnaire was Part VII, Question 6. "Should SMC accept non-Adventists?" Seventy-one percent of those responding said that the college should accept non-Adventists, but any written comments indicated that these students should understand clearly the rules and regulations of the college.

Turning toward the more favorable comments now, one should notice that, in the main, the constituency is fairly well pleased with the way the college is serving the union and its young people. The indications seem to be that they understand and support the institution and look upon it quite favorably.

Let us look at some of the more favorable responses. Ninety percent knew where SMC is located, 72 percent feel that we have done a good job of communicating with them.

In Part II, Question 5, 95 percent of the respondents indicated that the things they heard about SMC were good to excellent.

One of the most significant responses was that in Part III, Question 1, where the respondents replied to the question: "How do you think SMC compares with other Adventist colleges spiritually?" Forty-three percent indicated they thought that SMC is above average and 40 percent said average. In that same question, number 3, about disciplinary actions, there were 78 percent who indicated that they thought SMC handled such problems very well.

In Part IV, around 50 percent, approved in response to those questions, of the social life on the campus.

Also rated very high were the academic standards with over 90 percent in most cases favoring the way the college is now being operated academically.

One of the surprising responses was the way the constituency favored SMC's rapid growth with 69 percent indicating that the college should grow to 1600 or above. A good example of the general response to the entire questionnaire is Part VII, Question 1, where the respondents answered the question: "Would you like your child to SMC?" Ninety-four percent indicated that they would, and in the following questions 57 percent said they would recommend SMC to prospective students.

Such a poll has value for it gives the administration, the faculty, and the student body an opportunity to check up on themselves to see exactly how they stand in the eyes of the people who support Southern Missionary College.

Spring Brings Romance; Summer Brings Marriage

By WOODROW WINSTON

One of the perennial inquiries confronting any unwed student returning to the quiet, "romantic" recesses of Collegedale each fall goes something like this: "Did you get married this summer?" Or "Hey man, when are you and little Mary Matrimony going to take the plunge?"

These questions are not asked without a certain amount of justification at SMC, for as the years go by I am convinced that we are coming closer to resolving the oft-repeated dispute over the changing of the school name. My question has always been this: Why can we go ahead and make the name of the school relevant to the prime activity and concern of the student body—namely the pursuit of the will-to-the-wisp called matrimony?

No one would dare argue that this institution turns out more missionaries than it does marriages.

In other words, I propose that we quit kidding ourselves and go ahead and adopt officially our true name. (For the uninitiated, it is Southern Matrimonial College.) Instead of referring to ourselves as good old Southern Nesh, why not call our venerable institution good old Southern Mat?

According to incomplete "returns," gleaned from official (and unofficial) records, there were 45 couples—and I am sure that this is an insufficient figure—who were and are students at SMC who stole down the "rose-scented paths of matrimony" (as one articulate campus poll puts it), last spring and summer. Another significant figure gleaned from these records is that out of the 1135 or so students who registered this fall, fully 180 are classified as married. This figure represents roughly 17 percent of the student population.

In view of these facts, trends, and figures (and the already rumored nuptials planned for next summer), it might be the better part of prudence and wisdom if the far-seeing gentlemen who are plotting the future of SMC would go ahead and make the new planned women's residence hall an enclave for the rapidly increasing wedded segment of our campus.

The activities of omnipresent "Cupid" usually take a certain predictable course each school year. Of course, immediately upon arrival in the fall you already begin to notice a sprinkling of gals wearing their time pieces on the right arm to well-established more in Adventist culture) but the fever usually lies relatively dormant through most of the fall and winter months.

But the first signs of spring usually awaken in campus lovers hitherto unaltered tendencies for constant companionship—and this phenomenon is not restricted to upperclassmen. As the bare branches of winter give way to the lush foliage and sweet-scented flowers of spring, so do the bare rights of wintering of many hopeful young ladies give way to the ornamentation afforded by the bestowal of a new gold or silver vest-watch.

It was about this time that the beloved former Dean of Men, Elder K. B. Davis, used to issue the following sober observation to his evening worship convocation: "Be careful, gentlemen; you have only begun to think about the present sum of your WRH have been pondering all winter!"

Of course, the observation usually goes unheeded and immediately following spring vacation the reports of engagements are flying about campus with a persistence commensurate only with the gravity of the matrimonial situation. This phenomenon proceeds unabated until the end of the school year and culminates at the summer's end with the publication of the lengthy annual nuptial list in the late summer edition of the SOUTHERN ACCENT.

The SOUTHERN ACCENT deeply regrets that this list was omitted this summer; please accept our apologies—and Happy Wedding Day!

Hyde and Lilley Will Represent SMC at Meet

Dr. Gordon M. Hyde, chair man of the Language arts division here, and Mrs. Lila Lilley, principal of the A. W. Spalding elementary school, will be the guest speakers at the annual convention of the elementary school teachers of the Florida Conference of Seventh-day Adventists next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Camp Kuluquas will be the site of the convention to be held Oct. 9-11. Close to 100 teachers and directors will be in attendance.

Church Surprises Pastor With Trip

Elder and Mrs. Roy B. Thurmon, of Collegedale, returned this month from a varied six-week trip made possible for them as a surprise gift from the members of the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church, of which Elder Thurmon is pastor. The Thurmons visited six centers of the Middle East. Their itinerary took them to Cairo, Rome and London.

Accent Interview

Vollmer Plans For More Student SA Participation

By GWYNETH CARY

Accent: Mr. Vollmer, what are you moping in here at SMC? And what do you plan to do after graduation?

Vollmer: History. I'll probably do graduate work next year, teach for a while, travel, and eventually go into college administration.

Accent: Where were you born, and where have you spent your college years?

Vollmer: I was born in Takoma Park, Md., but have lived most of my life in Ashville, N.C. As for my college years, I spent my first two years at Atlantic Union College, one year at Newbold in England and this is my second year here at SMC.

Accent: How did you spend this past summer?

Bob Summorum and I went hiking in the high Sierras.

Vollmer: Bob Summorum and I went hiking in the high Sierras of California. The country was fantastic. We were camped at 9,000 feet, just below the Mono Basin Craters. We were six miles from our water supply, without electricity, of course, and surrounded by snowcapped mountains and all sorts of wildlife.

The work was hard, and the weather conditions sometimes almost unbearable, but there were compensations—the beautiful country, peace and utter silence, and the weekends in Los Angeles. We couldn't have had a better summer.

Accent: Your brother and sister were here at SMC with you last year. Where are they this year?

Vollmer: My brother Jimmy is at Union College, a sophomore taking pre-dental. Nancy is a sophomore at Atlantic Union College. It was great being together last year, but for individual development we split up.

Accent: You seem to be quite active in the "sports" program here at SMC. What is your favorite professional baseball team?

Vollmer: Definitely the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Accent: What about the future plans of the Wedgewood Trio?

Vollmer: The immediate future will be extremely busy working up a concert repertoire. Simultaneously, we will be working on a secular record, to be raked by World-Wide Records of Nashville. One sacred LP album has just been released and will be in surrounding record shops and on campus as well.

Accent: How do you stand on the war in Viet Nam?

Vollmer: It is terribly difficult to say. It is difficult enough even saying informed on exactly what's going on. But I do fear that the United States is in danger of over-extending itself. We have enough internal problems; why should we be responsible for policing the world? The sad fact is that the United States does not have a sufficient understanding of Asian background, politics, culture, and temperament to do meddling with 300,000 troops in Asia's affairs.

The United States, historically speaking, has never really understood Asia's special problems, and has been consistently awkward and inept in her dealings with Asia. Unless we better understand her problems and can offer some positive direction, we had better get out as gracefully as possible. It doesn't seem as though we've made any significant contribution to her peace this far.

Accent: How do you align yourself politically?

Vollmer: As a moderate. My family background politically speaking is conservative, but I look more toward the middle. I do fear the "welfare state," not because socialism as a system is necessarily inherently evil. I fear welfare statism because it seems to be coming only as Americans lose their pride, initiative, and look instead toward the federal government for all their economic and security needs. When a nation's people lose incentive and self-determination, the welfare state inevitably follows. People get what they want—usually what they deserve. And sometimes the result is unfortunate, especially when it is the state's curbing of private enterprise, personal initiative and the provision of stronger government controls at the expense of individual liberties.

The Constitution does need an interpretation that fits our time, but statism has never been the American way. Remember, it is the government of the people—not the people of the government. And that is what the designers of the Constitution had in mind.

I fear the welfare state because it destroys individual initiative.

Accent: We see. Getting around to campus affairs, do you think that the SA has any real power on campus?

Vollmer: It depends on your concept of power. I dislike the word power in this context. I'd rather say that we can have a

Cockrell Presents Research Paper

Van Cockrell, 1966 graduate in physics, presented a paper concerning the physics research at SMC to the American Physical Society at its summer meeting in Mexico City, August 30.

The paper was entitled "A System for Seeding Metal Solutions in Inert Gases." It summarized work done over the past four years by students and staff in the department here, particularly Bob McCurdy, Waldemar Janke, Charan Graham and Cockrell himself.

Cockrell, now a first-year dental student at Loma Linda University, wrote the paper in connection with the SMC class in spectroscopy.

Five students are currently engaged in the department's long-term research work, of which Cockrell's paper presented one aspect: Gary Cockrell, Roger Hall, Don Pervis, Lucy Rascon, and Steve Sowder. Mr. Roger Nield, visiting lecturer from Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Oak Ridge, Tenn., assists them in their work.

large influence on the campus, that through responsible and mature action we can vitally improve the lives of all students and faculty at SMC. This year the SA will be an effective and dynamic organization on this campus, and I think you will see its influence greatly expanded.

The SA is definitely concerned about WSA, and anxious to get it into operation.

Accent: Speaking of dynamic and effective activities, what has happened to WSA, the dream of a campus AM radio station?

Vollmer: Let me give you some background on WSA-AM.

Accent: All right.

Vollmer: Thank you. As you remember, last spring WSA-AM was the big issue on campus, but no decision concerning the station was ever reached, and the matter was squarely dropped. School has recovered and the issue is still lying dormant—though not intentionally so, under the flurry of SA elections, constitutional revision, picnic planning, etc. But as soon as these critical matters are dealt with, WSA-AM will be resurrected and some prompt action will be taken. The SA is definitely concerned about the station and anxious to get it

Maryland Awards Ph.D. To SMC's Cecil Rolfe

"The Economics of Public Medicine" is the title of the doctoral dissertation by Dr. Cecil J. Rolfe, associate professor of business administration here, who received the Ph.D. degree in economics this past August from the University of Maryland, College Place, Md.

An abstract of his dissertation indicates some conclusions he reached about the economics of public medicine "A fee-for-service health system coupled to an existing inequitable distribution of income results in a maldistribution of health resources and an underutilization of these resources by those most in need of health care.

The burden of illness is shifted to the sick with lower income groups bearing a disproportionate percentage of the burden. Private health insurance plans have succeeded in spreading the burden of illness to some extent, but have been unable to solve the maldistribution problem. Nor have they found it expedient to provide full comprehensive coverage."

"England and Sweden are examples," his dissertation continues, "of where the market has practically been removed Presently, plans call for Gary Cockrell and Lucy Rascon to present papers in December to the APS Southeastern Section meeting in Nashville.

According to Professor Ray Hefferlin, head of the physics department, the class in spectroscopy enables students to gain information about research fields, participate in research and present a report, often at national meetings. Graduates have found places to fill in industry, universities and military research laboratories.

into operation if that proves the thing to do.

Accent: Wonderful. How is the constitution revision coming?

Vollmer: Painfully, yet as quickly as possible. The revision is in its final stages, the last changes are being made, and we hope for ratification by Oct. 13, the first SA chapel in October.

Accent: Why is the whole thing taking so long?

Vollmer: About this matter of revision—forming a constitution that will fulfill the students' needs, that will help provide for good government—takes painful effort and thoroughness. We just cannot be hurried or over-cautious in our deliberations. We're proceeding thoughtfully and reflectively, yet with all speed possible.

Accent: Whether or not the constitution gets passed, though, how do you plan to have "more student participation" in the SA?

Vollmer: I'm sorry—but with 1150 students we just can't have "big kid happy family." The SA is not treating that all students participate in all SA activities and programs. What we do hope is that the SA will provide such a variety of programs that all students will want to participate in and benefrom the task of providing adequate health care. Not only have England and Sweden succeeded in obtaining a relatively more equitable distribution of health resources but they have also been able to lower the financial burden of illness and disability.

"Preventive medicine is an economy. If need, not the ability to pay, were set as the basis for determining the requirements for medical care, it would be found that the market is incapable of fully meeting such a challenge. A health system based on the practice of preventive medicine can be encouraged through the removal of the fee-for-service principle. Tax supported medicine could attack the health insurance problem, ease the financial burden of illness and reduce the tremendous losses.

Dr. Rolfe was born in North-ern Rhodesia, now called Zambia, but has been a naturalized American citizen since 1962. He did his high school and part of his undergraduate college work at Heidelberg College in South Africa. He was awarded the B.A. degree by Columbia Union College, Washington, D.C., and the Master of Business Administration degree from the University of Maryland.

Schoepflin Gives Clarinet Clinic

Mr. James Schoepflin, woodwind instrument instructor at SMC, recently gave an all-day clinic for instrumental teachers in the public schools of Hamilton County, Tenn.

The clinic which Schoepflin conducted was part of the larger program in each content area held annually in the two or three days prior to the opening of school for all teachers in the public school system of the county.

Schoepflin discussed proper technique of clarinet playing, effective rehearsal of the clarinet section in band and the development of the clarinet choir.

A graduate of the University of Idaho, Schoepflin holds the B.Mus and M.Mus. degrees in woodwind instruments; he joined the SMC faculty in the fall of last year.

fit from at least some of them. We want to meet as many needs as possible. We want something for every student.

Accent: But the SA might not be for everybody?

Vollmer: By that same token, every student cannot possibly participate directly in the SA, but again we want to use as many as possible, and will structure our organization with that consideration in mind.

Accent: Well, thank you very much, Mr. Vollmer.

Vollmer: Thank you.

Accent: One last question, if you don't mind—

Vollmer: Not at all. What is it?

Accent: What do you think of the 10-30 curfew here Saturday night?

Vollmer: What does everybody think of it?

Accent: We see. Thank you.

Officers pose in front of new fire truck.

Tri-Community FD Adds Truck, Hose

The Tri-Community Volunteer Fire Department, located on Apison Road between Oultewah and Collegedale, reports the purchase of additional equipment.

Foremost among the additions is a 1952 Ford truck which the Fire Department Board of Trustees, purchased from the Knoxville area. It has an 800-gallon tank with a two-stage front mount pump, capable of releasing 300 gallons per minute at a pressure of 150 lbs., or 85 gallons per minute with a stream pressure of 100 lbs.

Minor Repairs

According to Fire Department Board Chairman R. H. Sanborn, minor repairs are needed to put the truck in first-class operating condition.

Also acquired were 500 feet of 2½ inch hose and 500 feet of 1½ inch hose.

The Tri-Community Fire Department operates on a subscription basis only. Those wishing to be included in its services should make arrangements at the office or call 396-2222.

Members Promoted

Madison Alumni Furnish Chapel

The Madison College Alumni have recently given a gift to Madison Hospital that will benefit Southern Missionary College's Associate Degree Program students who are studying on the Madison Extension Campus.

This is a gift of new furnishings for the hospital chapel, named for Dr. A. J. Suborinski, a former president of Madison College.

The chapel has a Baldwin organ, church furniture and wall to wall carpeting.

The Alumni gift included the organ, pews, pulpit, Bible table, carpet, picture screen and 30 books.

Madison Initiates Associate Degree Nursing Program

In January, 1965, the Tennessee State Board of Nursing approved the opening of a nursing program for Madison Hospital in conjunction with the established baccalaureate program at Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tennessee.

This new two-year Associate of Science degree program started in September, 1965, at Southern Missionary College. This September (1966) the students will come to Madison Hospital. There they will remain another year and receive their major in clinical experience.

In preparation for their coming, several nursing educators recently arrived on the Madison campus for orientation. These included Mrs. Patricia Gillet, assistant professor of nursing in charge of the program on the Madison campus; Mrs. Louise Montgomery; Mrs. Jacqueline Robinson; Miss Brenda Botts; and Miss Maxine Page. Directing their orientation was Mrs. Del LaVerne Watson, associate chairman of the Division of Nursing at Southern Missionary College.

Beginning July 5, 1966, and continuing for six-and-a-half weeks, eight baccalaureate nursing students from Southern Missionary College took a course at Madison Hospital entitled Orientation to Nursing Leadership. Miss Zerin Hagerman, an associate professor of nursing was in charge. She was assisted by Miss Pat Ramsey and Miss Janice Thompson, teaching assistants.

WSMC Changes From UPI to AP Teletype

WSMC News Director Harry Silvers has announced that the station, soon to be Chattanooga's second most powerful radio voice, will make a change in news service.

United Press International, one of the two major national wire services supplying newspaper and broadcast copy, has served the station for several years.

Under a new contract, Silvers announced, the Associated Press, the other major service, will provide the station international, national, and local teletype copy.

When WSMC instituted the UPI news service in the fall of 1963, it was the first SDA college to subscribe to a national service.

Martin Fund for Arkansas Youth

The Jane and John Martin Foundation of Hartford, Connecticut, has initiated a scholarship program at Southern Missionary College for students from the state of Arkansas.

Funds available for this program total $5,000 per year. To be eligible for a scholarship grant from the Martin Foundation, a student must be an Arkansas resident, be currently enrolled at SMC, have a 2.75 grade point average and have a good citizenship status.

The scholarship is open to freshmen and sophomores, as well as upper-division students.

Fine Arts Series Presents Jean Ritchie, Folk Singer

Saturday night, October 8, the Fine Arts Series will feature folk singer, Jean Ritchie, in the Collegedale Auditorium.

Jean brings to the stage a unique blend of Scottish and Kentucky folk music, springing from her childhood spent in the Cumberland Mountains of Kentucky and from a trip to the British Isles in 1952 which she made to trace the sources of her family's songs.

With a repertoire of perhaps 1,000 songs and with the aid of the dulcimer, an instrument made by her husband, Jean Ritchie has entertained audiences not only in the United States but in a number of European countries as well.

Ingathering Day Comes Oct. 11

October 11 has been set as Missions Promotion Day, according to the Public Relations office.

Certain students have been selected as hand leaders to assist in the campaign.

A large number of the student body will participate actively in the solicitation while others, due to the nature of their employment, will remain on campus and donate their day's earnings to the project.

Last year the students and faculty of SMC raised over $13,000 for missions promotion.

Elder Duncan Leads Week Of Prayer

By Woodrow Whidden
Religious Emphasis Week, more commonly referred to as "Fall Week of Prayer," commenced Friday, Oct. 24, with Elder E. E. Duncan as the guest speaker.

Pastor Duncan comes to the SMC campus from the pulpit of the Memphis, Tenn., First Seventh-day Adventist Church, where he has pastored for the last year and a half.

A graduate of Walla Walla College, Pastor Duncan has had wide experience in evangelism and pastoral work in the western United States and in Canada. Just previous to the Memphis pastorate, he was pastor of the Kingsway College Church in Oshawa, Ontario. A fluent, engaging speaker, Pastor Duncan also brings a very imposing physical mien to bear on his ministry—he stands a stalwart 6'6". His hobbies include photography and astronomy.

The theme of his Fall Week of Prayer here is "In Quest of Victory."

During the week, morning meetings were held at the regular chapel period, this year at 10 a.m. but for last week, beginning at 9:05 on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, due to shortened classes on these days. Evening services began at 7:00 p.m.

Both evening and morning services were held in the new Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Faculty, Senate Vote 'Who's Who'

By Gwynn Carey

Persons chosen by Southern Missionary College to appear in the publication Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities have been announced by the office of the academic dean.

Twenty-one seniors who satisfied this year's requirements for admission were chosen by the administrative officers of the college, department heads, and members of the Student Association Senate.

Chosen are Rodney Bryant, Robbie Wiggins Burke, Randall Crowson, Albert Dittes, Barbara DuPuy, Faye Foster, Betty Green, Glenda Jansen, Charlotte McKee, B. Nudersbach, Patricia Murphy, Carol Neidigh, Naomi Platt, Ralph Ruckle, Dennis Steele, Robert Summerour, Paul Viar, John Waller, Woodrow Whidden, Judy Whitman, and James Williams.

The 21 persons, making up approximately 18 per cent of the senior class, will appear in the Who's Who book, and will be eligible to purchase Who's Who pens and keys.

Requirements for admission to the book are not set nationally by the Who's Who company. Each school is relatively autonomous in its selection.

SMC standards are presently the holding of at least a 2.75 grade point average on a 4-point scale, good leadership, and good character.

SA President Don Vollmer was notified of the need for the Student Senate to vote on the eligible names after the faculty had made its choices. Brought up for voting in one Senate meeting, the question of Who's Who was discussed and then tabled, pending further study and recommendations by a committee appointed for that purpose.

In order to meet the deadline set by Who's Who, Inc., the Senate was called again the night of Monday, Oct. 17. At this session the pertinent present voted for individuals appearing on the "eligible" list supplied by the registrar's office.

The Senate committee appointed to study the question had not yet met, and most of the members of that committee were not present at the unannounced Senate gathering on the night of the 17th.

Neither of the Senate meetings which dealt with the question of Who's Who had been publicly announced, and no minutes have been posted. The meeting of Monday night was decided on Monday afternoon, according to President Vollmer.

Faculty Nominates Twelve For Wilson and Danforth

Persons nominated by the college for two national award programs for graduate study have been announced by the office of the academic dean.

Nominated for the Woodrow Wilson Fellowship program, with their majors, are nine current seniors: Velda Jean Bloodworth, English; Rodney C. Bryant, English; Randall Eugene Crowson, mathematics; Barbara Ann DuPuy, English; Glenna Faye Foster, English; Betty Cathryna Green, chemistry; Patricia Kay Murphy, mathematics; Carol Louise Neidigh, English and home economics; Robert Brooke Summerour, biology; and Harold Doyce Words, history.

The curriculum committee of the college nominated three former graduates of SMC for the Danforth Graduate Fellowship program: Margaret Darnell, elementary education; Janice Thompson, nursing; and Daryl Anderson, elementary education.

The Danforth is given to recognize and aid qualified individuals who desire to take graduate work and to teach in church-related colleges. The Woodrow Wilson offers national recognition and financial assistance to students who wish to further their "scholarly development" by graduate study, and who will give "serious thought" to a career in college teaching.

The above persons have not received awards, but are at this point merely nominees from SMC for the respective awards. All applicants for the two separate programs will now begin a process of selection and screening.

SMC has had two nominees for Woodrow Wilson accepted as fellows in recent years, one in English and one in chemistry. Woodrow Wilson candidates are chosen by the administrative officers and department heads.

The college relations office, which organized the campaign, reported that 73 cars and two buses were used to carry students during the day.

Williams and Anderson Elected to Lead Seniors

The 120-member senior class has met and selected officers for its last year in the Happy Valley.

President is James Williams, a business major, graduating in three years. Other officers are Linda Anderson, history major, vice president; Carol Neidigh, English major, secretary; James Greene, accounting major, treasurer; and Paul Viar, theology major, pastor.

Class sponsor is Dr. J. W. Cassell, academic dean, who serves in that position for each senior class. Co-sponsor of the class is Charles Fleming, Jr., business manager of the college, who was chosen jointly by the class and Dr. C. N. Rees, president of the college.

Dr. C. F. W. Fletcher, director of admissions, presided at the class organization meeting. Officers were selected by secret ballot and majority vote.

Williams reports that the officers have been meeting regularly to discuss and plan the class's activities for the school year.

Three Seniors Withdraw From 'Who's Who' List

Three seniors selected by the college and the Student Senate to appear in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities have resigned from that organization.

In separate statements to the Southern Accent, the three—Rodney Bryant, Robert Summerour, and John Waller—expressed the idea that inclusion in Who's Who is a "meaningless honor."

Waller, a senior communications major planning to study medicine, stated that "Who's Who, which has been criticized for years by leading educators, is badly misunderstood by most people. While thought of as an honor society," Waller continued, "Who's Who turns out to have virtually no nationwide requirements for selection, as one would expect of such an organization."

"I feel that my participation in this honor would help to perpetuate a falsehood," stated Bryant, a senior English major and editor of the Southern Accent. "Who's Who is a commercial venture and a superfluous honor," he continued. "I cannot in good faith accept such a distinction."

Summerour, a senior biology major, also planning to study medicine, stated his objection to Who's Who and suggested another idea for SMC. "I feel

Poet's Corner

Impossible!

Space: the void vacuum, once lifeless, useless nothingness Filled by God with countless worlds, constellations numberless!

Out of dismal darkness, and pitch-black pandemonium
Carved from clouds of cosmic chaos, God's new paradise is come!

Direct denigration, no light could enter 'twas so drear
There God cast a conflagration, set his solar sphere!

From a peasant village, the humble Carpenter emerged;
Though a common worker, in Him were God and man converged!

Crafted in hatred, though destitute of hateful thought;
Pierced were His hands and feet, though they had only blessings brought!

Out of me a sinner, stained with sinful, guilty taint
God creates a being, man and son of God, and saint!

Nihilism to worlds, and darkness to a brilliant light!
Bedlam now is order, and love thrived there in hate and spite!

Legs speaks; all is changed, and death is conquered, tombstones heave.

Jesus Rose; Hades fell! And fiends at my salvation grieve!

INGATHERING

Also contributing to the total were college industries and affiliated industries.

The ingathering activities at SMC are traditionally handed in one day, in contrast to the weeks often required. Students are encouraged either to solicit or to donate part of their wages for the day to the campaign total.

Since 1960, when the total was $5,140, the sum has increased yearly, to the present all-time high of $13,515.

In 1961, students and staff raised $5,800; in 1962 the total was up to $7,120, climbing to $10,080 the following year.

STATE OF THE SA

Under the auspices of the State Education Committee and the direction of Warner Swannar, the traditional all-campus "Candlelight Hour," Valentine Supper Club and other programs will continue with, of course, the added onchellidians expected from year to year. The Cultural Emphasis Week will continue, but greatly revamped. Discarded will be the pompous and circumstantial and somewhat extremely collegiate povercoating of the king and queen, princes and princesses, knights and ladies of courtesy—all selected through a very elaborate spy network on campus. In its place will be a lecture series on the significant social, moral issues and problems of our time. Gone also will be the very stimulating joint worship talks on table manners, the proper seating of ladies, and other new developments in the area of general civility. The Elbow Room, new this year, will continue on a regular basis with continual improvements.

Committee chairman Don Porvis will lead out in the interest of health and recreation this year, continuing with last year's program and adding new ones as the opportunities are created. This year students will be helped in arranging for tickets and transportation to professional sports events in Atlanta, to the organization of weekend camping and slung trips, and to the organization of track and swim meets. Already this year the arrangements have been made to keep the gym open on Saturday nights to provide an alternate activity.

In the area of public relations and promotion under the leadership of Chairman Benny Murphree, intracollegiate exchange programs with other SDA schools will be attempted, a promotion program for Charleston-area club chairs prepared, along with the continuation of the traditional trips to the academies and the Orlando and Madison campuses of SMC. Chairman Murphree has also committed himself to the work achievement of all Senate meetings and functions of the SA.

The Scholarship Council chairman point has no chairman, but I'm sure that we can look for an expansion of its programs with the same progressive leadership that Jim Walters contributed in last year's year.

Editor Shaker of the Memorial and Bryant of the Accent have been working hard since last spring on their respective publications, and I am sure we can look forward to significant and proud contributions from them.

These are our programs, our objectives, the goals.

We pledge ourselves to mature, responsible and effective student government. Our primary consideration is

SA Holds 'Town Hall' For Business Discussion

The Student Association met in General Assembly Thursday, Oct. 13, for a "Town Hall" meeting.

Issues discussed during the hour—which is the normal chapel period—included Who's Who, class organization, and the proposed constitution for the SA.

SA President Don Vollmer turned the chair over to SOUTHERN ACCENT editor Rodney Bryant, following announcements and the devotional talk given by the pastor of the SA, Billy Peeke. Bryant brought up questions concerning the advisability of the college's continuing in Who's Who, and he asked for questions from the floor. Arguments were aired for both sides.

Near the end of the period Bob Summerour, senior biology major, proposed from the floor that study be given to the question of eliminating class organization for all students but seniors. Summerour pointed out that the new constitution, if passed, will be purely representative, and have no place for class presidents.

The meeting, the first of its kind in several years, was adjourned by President Vollmer.

32 Attend Conference

Thirty-two SMC students attended the Southern Union Bible Conference at Camp Kalamita, Fla., Oct. 5-8. In all, there were over 200 students from 13 senior academies and two colleges of the Southern Union.

The conference was under the direction of Elder E. S. Reile, MV secretary of the Southern Union, and the six conference MV secretaries. It began Wednesday evening as Dr. D. W. Holbrook, president of Home Study Institute, Washington, D.C., spoke on the need for self-examination in the Christian life.

Elder T. E. Lucas, SDA world youth leader, spoke Thursday morning on the need for young people who are of earnest mind and who will always do what is right.

High points of the weekend were two services conducted Thursday evening and Friday morning by Elder H. M. S. Richards, Jr. and the King's Herald Quartet. This was the first time this group had attended the Southern Union Bible Conference.

A Short Facetious History...

The early pioneers went west in search of "elbow room." Eldon P. Crocker first coined the phrase in a letter he sent to his wife in 1747. Francis had stayed home in Hoboken, New Jersey, while Eldon went whacking and slashing through the wilderness of Kentucky in search of elbow room. Francis took Eldon's letter, along with others of his, and gave them to Maynard R. Cresshaw, a noted Manhattan publisher. Subsequently the letters appeared in the widely read volume, "The Collected Letters of Eldon P. Crocker," published in 1749. Unfortunately Eldon was never able to read his book. He was allowed in the appendix during the great Battle of Gobbler's Knob, Kentucky, during the Indian Wars of 1748-1749, and died shortly thereafter. At any rate, as a result of his letters, elbow room became very, very popular, and the name of Eldon P. Crocker became a household word.

Elbow room apparently is still popular, though very few people really remember Eldon P. Crocker. At present the most popular elbow room is in the cafeteria.

On these Saturday nights the last of the pioneers gather in the elbow room to drink hardy drinks like tart, tingling Sprite, and sing folk songs like, "Where Have All the Flowers Gone?"

we look ahead is one of service, of giving of ourselves wholeheartedly to our respective and collective responsibilities—to strengthen the SA in every area of its activity.

This year is crucial, not only where SMC and SA are concerned, but when we consider the state of affairs in the world around us. It has been said before—we have in a precarious situation always has, but never in such a critical as this. Our needs are great. It is up to the SA to help to provide the positive direction, the God-inspired leadership that is so much needed on this campus. In every phase of SA activity the proper values must be encouraged and provided for. Students must be directed toward an all inclusive and benevolent Greater and God, the final answer in all our questions; the source of all good things we seek.

As you begin this year, we look to you for interest, concern and a willingness to accept responsibility in the SA. For in the final analysis the effectiveness of the SA depends on you, the student. We seek your cooperation, enthusiasm and your prayers. And we pledge ourselves to service.

United Fund Goes Over Goal for Fourth Year

The annual United Fund campaign conducted at SMC for the Greater Chattanooga Area now totals $2,010.90, which is $160 over the goal of $1,850.

There was 100 per cent participation by faculty, staff, students, college industries, together with the affiliated college industries McKee Baking Company, Collegedale Cabinet Shops, Inc., and Sanborn Spring Company. Southern Missionary College has had 100 per cent participation for the consecutive years 1962-65.

The sums donated provide operating funds needed annually by the various health, welfare, and youth agencies in the United Fund, plus the Dread Disease Fund, which serve the Greater Chattanooga area.

Rittenhouse Gives Fine Arts Recital On October 22

Southern Missionary College's Lyceum-Fine Arts Series sponsored Dr. Virginia Gene Rittenhouse, pianist, violinist and composer, in a concert Saturday night, Oct. 22, in the college auditorium.

The program included violin solos, piano solos and original compositions. Assisting Dr. Rittenhouse were her husband, Dr. Harvey Rittenhouse, Win Osborn Shankel, and Dr. George Shankel, a former academic dean of Southern Missionary College.

An interesting highlight to the performance was the presentation of original African music, collected during a recent trip to that country.

Four hours of graduate credit will be offered in an education workshop scheduled November 20 - December 15, 1966, at Andrews University.

Designed for the superintendent in S.D.A. education, the meetings will include lectures, field trips, films, demonstrations and exhibits.

With the theme, "The Conference Educational Superintendent Faces the Space Age," the session is planned as professional refresher training and general inservice upgrading for educational leaders confronted with the demands of the twentieth century.

Dr. George H. Akers, associate professor of education, is coordinator of the workshop.

Wright and Holland Speak At Alumni Homecoming

Former SMC president, Elder K. A. Wright, will speak Friday evening, Nov. 4, to open the annual Alumni Weekend. "Indications are there will be a record attendance at the homecoming," predicts Elder J. Don Crook, president of the Alumni Association.

Continuing with the services, Elder Don E. Holland, MV secretary of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference and a graduate of the class of 1956, will deliver the sermon at both church services: Sabbath morning. A union-wide $25,000-goal offering will go to equip the new Administration Building now under construction.

The honor closes this year are 1941 and 1956, and they will be participating with other alumni in the weekend services.

All alumni should register either at the alumni desk in the lobby of the Women's Residence Hall, or before the evening service Friday at the desk in the church foyer.

Concluding the activities, alumni and their families will be guests at the lyceum program Saturday night featuring Sun Midgley in "Northwest Stature."

Humorist Midgley Gives "Chuckelogue" On Nov. 5

Stan Midgley, renowned conservationist and nature photographer, will be on the SMC campus to present another program in the series of college lectures, Saturday night, Nov. 5, in the college gymnasium.

Mr. Midgley will be showing the films of his bicycle trip through the "Evergreen Playground," covering the states of Oregon and Washington.

Vividly shown on the screen will be such scenes as the Seattle Sea Fair, Mt. Rainier, Mt. Jefferson, Oregon Skyline Road and the rapids of the Rogue River, plus many additional places of scenic interest and natural beauty.

Elder E. L. Minchin Guest At Union Religious Retreat

Almost all SMC students in the ministerial-theology area retired the weekend of Sept. 30-Oct. 1, to Camp Cumby-Goy in the mountains of northern Georgia for the annual Student Ministerial Association Retreat.

According to Woodrow Whidden, president of this year's SMA, the theme of the retreat is expressed in the statement that "Christ must be Lord of all or He is not Lord at all."

Principal speaker for the weekend was Elder E. L. Minchin of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Elder Minchin has visited the SMC campus on several occasions during the past few years, especially as speaker for the Other features of the weekend included the singing of the "Southernaires" quartet, an early morning "prayer vigil," and an organized fellowship hour for students and guests at the retreat.

This year's SMA, formerly known as the "Religion Club," is coordinated by President Whidden, senior theology major; Ken Brown, vice president; Cara Martin, secretary; and Don Shelton, treasurer. The SMA is under the sponsorship of Elders Bruce Johnston, Douglas Bennett, and Mr. Smuts Van Rooyen, all of SMC's religion department.

SMC Sponsors Luncheons For Chattanooga Leaders

Southern Missionary College is sponsoring a series of luncheons for prominent business, professional, and civic leaders of the Greater Chattanooga area during the autumn and spring periods.

Several of the luncheons have already been held, with 25 to 30 attending each luncheon. The purpose of the series of luncheons is to acquaint these prominent citizens with the work of Southern Missionary College, showing them the progress on the campus and telling them about the ideals, objectives and work of the college.

Serving as coordinator and host for the meetings is Charles Fleming, Jr., business manager. Speakers and others who are working with him, having part in the programs, are Dr. C. N. Rees, president; Dr. J. W. Cassell, Jr., academic dean; Mr. Gordon Madgwick, dean of student affairs; and Elder Bruce Johnston, chairman of the Division of Religion.

Prominent men in the Chattanooga area have included officials of the Pioneer Bank, Hamilton National Bank, the American National Bank, the County Council, including County Judge Chester Frost, and Dave Eldridge, county trustee.

Dr. Rees' talk is concerned with the overall objectives of the college, pointing out that the institution, although young as a senior college, has grown from 450 students in 1957 up to 1100 for the current academic year. He also said that the college now has 21 with earned doctorates and 59 other full-time staff members, most of whom have the master's degree.

Dr. Cassell informs the groups that the college is accredited with the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, that it gives liberal arts curricula in most of the various disciplines of learning, and that it is religiously oriented with most of its students being Seventh-day Adventists with quite a few other faiths represented.

Mr. Fleming's talk is concerned with the economics of the college, pointing out that the Southern Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Atlanta, provides operating subsidies and funds for capital improvement. He also says that the college has been a real boon to the Greater Chattanooga trade area inasmuch as approximately $4½ million is spent yearly in the area by the college, its faculty, staff and students.

The series of luncheons will continue through the early autumn and will resume again in the spring, according to Fleming. One part of the meeting is a short tour in an open bus over the 900-acre campus of SMC.

Osteopathic Group Will Grant $1500 Awards to Frosh

The Auxiliary to the American Osteopathic Association will award up to twenty $1500 scholarships to students entering osteopathic colleges as freshmen in the fall of 1967, according to Mrs. Robert N. Rawls, Jr., Granbury, Texas, AAOA scholarship chairman.

The scholarships will be awarded on the basis of scholastic standing, financial need, professional motivation and aptitude, and moral character. Winners must be citizens of the United States or Canada and must have been admitted to one of the five osteopathic colleges.

The $1500 will be paid directly to the selected college in two installments of $750 each for the freshman and sophomore year. Renewal of the scholarship for the second year is dependent on the maintenance of satisfactory work and continued financial need.

Deadline for submitting scholarship applications is May 1, 1967. Winners will be announced as soon as possible after May 15.

Further information and application forms may be obtained by writing to the Scholarship Chairman, American Osteopathic Association, 212 E. Ohio Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

'Memories' Receives 2nd From ACP

The 1966 Southern Memories has received a "second class" rating from the Associated Collegiate Press (ACP) yearbook service, according to Ed Shafer, this year's yearbook editor and last year's managing editor.

Shafer said that the rating given the 1966 volume "spoke very well" for its overall quality.

The ACP rates yearbooks and school newspapers to help the editors and staffs determine what should be improved from the standpoint of professional, journalistic quality.

The photography of last year's book rated from "very good" to "excellent" through the entire book. The two aspects of the annual that did not rate as high were the layout and the writing. The layout lacked a consistency that would have helped the rating, and the copy in general was too short, said the ACP report.

The report continued: "The second class rating is judged as 'good' or 'very good' and indicates those yearbooks that are doing a good job."

Editor Shafer said that the rating will "help us know what to improve" in planning and producing the 1967 Memories. It will give us a goal to strive for. The aim of the staff this year is to put out an All-American yearbook, one which the ACP designates a "Superior" yearbook rating for top publication.

Dr. Rees Reports On Additions To SMC Staff

Dr. C. N. Rees, president of Southern Missionary College, has issued a partial report of personnel added to the faculty and staff for the current college year.

Listed in alphabetical order, they are Miss Alma C. Chambers, Miss Gracia S. DeWind, Miss Marianne Evans, Mr. Lawrence E. Hanson, Mrs. Patricia Kirstein, Mrs. Genevieve McCormick, Dr. LaVeta M. Payne, Mr. Marvin L. Robertson, Mr. R. Lynn Sauls, Mrs. Beverly Winstead and Mrs. Theresa C. Wright.

Miss Chambers, associate professor of psychology and head of SMC's behavioral Science department, came to SMC from the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. She received her A.M. degree from the University of Redlands in 1960, and since that time has served as an assistant in pharmacology at the Loma Linda University School of Medicine, taught at Walla Walla College in the State of Washington, and acted as a research associate at the University of Southern California.

Joining the student personnel services staff is Miss Gracia DeWind, assistant dean of women. She completed her B.S. degree requirements at Andrews University in 1963. Since that time

SA Plans for Student-Oriented Radio Station

By Ben DuPuy

"I'm happy to say tonight that we have been given . . . the full go-ahead concerning the Student Association campus radio station," announced Student Association President Don Vollmer in the first open Senate meeting of the school year, held on Nov. 2. Vollmer continued that we "need to get the wheels turning immediately" to put the station, WSA AM, into operation. Responding to the announcement, the Student Senate voted Vollmer the authority to pick a committee of five to put the station into operation.

The action was the first concrete step in the long discussion over the relationship of WSMC-FM to the Student Association. WSA was proposed last year as a result of reaction to the decision of the Senate to transfer the authority of WSMC-FM from the joint hands of the Student Association and the Communications Department of the college to the authority of the Communications Department.

It was proposed as a low power, on-campus, student radio station to serve the functions of the Student Association, a service which WSMC-FM at its new, high power, can no longer provide. A committee chosen to investigate WSA prepared a financial and legality report and a Code of Broadcasting for the operation of WSA.

But WSA became entangled with various aspects of procedure, and although all presidential candidates made WSA a prominent plank in their platforms, last year closed with no decision being made. Through the efforts of interested individuals and the co-operation of Mr. James Hannum, director of WSMC-FM, and Allen Steele, general manager, a final decision to proceed with broadcasting was reached.

Broadcasting of WSA would at first be limited, said Vollmer, until organization would be complete and experienced, and would probably consist of a morning show, late evening show, and special broadcasts at peak listening hours. Plans also include the airing of Senate meetings and campus programs, built around a core program of lighter music.

Most necessary equipment for WSA is available through the courtesy of WSMC-FM, but a mobile unit for broadcasting intramural sports and similar programs is in the present plans.

At other hours, WSA would make available to a larger number of students the programming of WSMC-FM by simocasting the FM programming on the AM band.

Aussner Directs Commemoration For WW II Dead

Rudolf R. Aussner, assistant professor of German, was requested by the German Consulate in Atlanta to officiate in a commemorative service on November 13 honoring the victims of the Hitler regime during World War II.

A wreath was placed at the national cemetery in Chattanooga, and SMC's twenty-piece brass ensemble, directed by William F. Young, performed two selections.

Don Jon Penner of the communications department had the commemorative prayer.

Homecoming For Alumni Draws Crowd

Former students of the college registering for the annual Alumni Homecoming, Nov. 4 and 5, totaled 155, according to J. Donald Crook, assistant director of college relations. As predicted, the attendance this year was larger than in previous years.

Elder Kenneth A. Wright, president of SMC from 1943-55, opened the services Friday evening with a sermon entitled "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" Elder Don E. Holland, NV Secretary of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference, addressed the congregation Sabbath morning during the worship hour.

The alumnus coming the greatest distance was Elder James Fulfer from Port of Spain, Trinidad, West Indies, now serving as President of the Caribbean Union.

Alumni officers for 1966-67 were elected following the Alumni supper Saturday night. Those elected were: president, Dewitt Bowen, D. D. S., class of 49; and presently residing in Chattanooga; vice president, Floyd Greenleaf, class of 55, now teaching history at SMC; secretary, Ruth Higgins, class of 53, now teaching home economics at the Collegedale Academy; associate secretary, Melinda Hefflerin, class of 58, residing in Collegedale where her husband, Ray Hefflerin, is head of the physics department; treasurer, Wallace Blair, class of 53, now certified public accountant in Chattanooga; publicity secretary, Gladys Lawless, class of 1966, currently secretary to Dr. J. W. Cassell, academic dean at SMC, and also teaching a secretarial class in the Collegedale Academy.

IBS Selects Steele, Silver For Top Jobs

Allen Steele, director of SMC's WSMC-FM, and Harry Silvers, news director and head announcer of the college station, have recently been elected to high positions in the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System.

At the national convention at Emory University in Atlanta, Steele was chosen vice president in charge of regions. Silvers was elected director for the IBS Southern region.

Steele's responsibilities as a vice president of the IBS include coordination of all regions. Silvers' job entails coordinating activities of the system in the seven-state Southern region, publishing a Southern newsletter and establishing a tape network.

The IBS, formed in 1940, is a nation-wide organization of college radio stations. Approximately 675 stations hold membership.

Steele, a communications major, will graduate in the spring; Silvers, also a communications major, is a sophomore.

The Cravin'

Once upon a midnight dreary, while I pondered, weak and weary,
Over many a picture in my Joker spread before,
To my eyes there came a photo of a girl worth taking note. Oh,
Why did I not close the volume and my peaceful sleep restore,
Close the sprightly little volume and my peaceful sleep restore.

Now I'll find rest, nevermore.

Ah, distinctly, I remember, how it was for three Septembers
When for dates with different numbers of their sex I would implore,
How each of my attempts was thwarted (how I wish I had not started).

As each new try was rewarded with refusal—perfect score
Oh, the sad and mournful story of my perfect zero score.
Failure—this, and nothing more.

In my soul there grew a cravin', (not the kind for misbehavin'),
For the sweet idyllic friendship that I'd known so long before,
So that now to still the beating of my heart, I stood repeating,
Tomorrow I shall go entreating, to the girl upon page four—Entreating to the fair young maiden, who is found upon page four.

This I shall, and nothing more.

In the morn my soul grew stronger, hesitating then no longer,
Bolly forth went I to see what life should have in store,
My fair one, knowing not my cravin', thinking that I might be savin'.

My devotion to bestow on her forevermore,
Turned me down with panic, as did half a dozen more.
I, with my cravin', "try no more."

So I vow from now, hereafter, (even now I weep with laughter),
Not to be so foolish as my Joker to explore.

And if time should ever find me under Joker's spell to bind me,
May this stupid verse remind me of the girl upon page four—
Then I'll chuck the little volume in the can beside the door.

Team Captains Choose Flagball All-Stars

Fourteen Men Are On All-Star Teams

The All "A" League Flagball team has been chosen by the team captains. A fourteen man squad with offensive and defensive teams was named. Chester Tyson's Cowtails and Jeff Albright's Moonshiners, the two top teams in the league, dominated the voting. Playing state men on the "Twinkl" team.

Joe Pleasant's Revenuers, headed there, and Melvin McAlexander's Honeycreepers, and Bob Samuels' four sophomores and two freshmen were chosen.

Chester Tyson's Team Captures "A" League Title to Close Season

By GEORGE SMOTHERSON
November 6, 1966 Chester Tyson's Cowtails centered Jeff Albright's Moonshiners 19-9 to win the 1966 "A" League Flagball Championship.

The Cowtails took the opening game kickoff and marched 40 yards in six plays scoring on a 15-yard touchdown pass from Chester Tyson to Laurin Fardulis.

The six points were all the fired up Cowtails would need to record their six victory in seven games as their tough defensive unit brought the Moonshiners offensive machine to a sputtering halt.

Danny Mason had little time to throw, and completed only 4 of 13 passes, as the Cowtail line put on a determined rush forcing 4 interceptions.

The Cowtails scored again late in the first half on another Tyson to Fardulis aerial. They added the conversion point making the score 13-0 at intermission.

Midway in the second half Fardulis hit Ben Johnson in the end zone with a 25 yard touchdown pass to round out the Cowtail point production.

The win avenged an early season 13-12 loss to the Moonshiners. The shutout victory was the fifth of the season for the Cowtails who have allowed only 20 points in seven games.

Honeycreepers	3	1	1	187	83	323
Mudcats	1	6	1	143	37	120

In other action Ric Pleasant's Revenuers added the Cowtail title drive by defeating Jeff Albright's Moonshiners 25-13.

The Revenuers scored two early first half touchdowns on passes from Ric Pleasant's end Ron Stevens and halfback Paul Vior, to lead 12-0.

The Moonshiners rallied to take a 13-12 halftime lead, but were unable to maintain the margin as the Revenuers passing game exploited a weak Moonshiner secondary.

The defeat snapped a five game win streak for the Moonshiners and probably hampered their mental preparation for their crucial game with Tyson's Cowtails. (See above)

Fardulis Chosen Most Valuable

Laurin Fardulis, Cowtails left halfback, has been voted The "A" League's MOST VALUABLE PLAYER for the 1966 season. Fardulis was the unanimous choice of the five team captains.

The Cowtail triple threat halfback led the league in passing, completing 30 of 49 for a .612 percentage and 9 touchdowns and 3 extra points.

He was second in scoring with 56 points. Fifth in pass receiving, catching 19 for 7 touchdowns and 3 extra points.

Also one of the league's premier defensive performers, he led in interrupted passes with 19, running 2 back for touchdowns.

Flagball Statistics Prove Interesting

Tyson's Cowtails led the league in both offense and defense statistics. In eight games they recorded five shutouts and allowed only 33 points scored while averaging 158 points per opposition.

Pleasant's Revenuers have scored two upset victories over Albright's Moonshiners. In both games the passing of quarterback Ric Pleasant exploited a lanky Moonshiner defense.

Ron Johnson, Cowtails split end, leads the league in scoring with 58 points. He was also the leading pass receiver, catching 28 for 9 touchdowns and 4 extra points.

SMC Flagball is a passing game. Of 485 points scored in 10 games: 356 (73%) have been via the air, 46 (9%) by intercepted passes; 55 (11%) by run; and 26 (6%) by other means.

812 passes have been attempted, 389 have been complete, or 48 out of every 10 thrown. 67 have been intercepted or 1 every 12 pass attempts.

The men of Telus seized the Amici boys 18-13 in flagball to win the Updon Delta Tri-Trophy. The Telus boys lost their only a challenge to the Amici boys in basketball, softball, tiddly winks and chess.

IRC Meets New Officers, Sees Slides of Europe

Members of the International Relations Club met in their second meeting of the school year Oct. 20, to view slides of five European countries and make plans for future events.

Color slides were shown of the countries visited by the G.A. Council. Conference two-week tour of which many SMC students and faculty, including Dr. J. L. Clark, sponsor of the IRC club, were members. The majority of the slides were taken by Bob Hawkins, sophomore communications major and Access chief photographer.

The executive officers of the club, Albert Dites, president, Cheryl Jeffer, vice-president, and Linda Anderson, secretary-treasurer, were formally introduced.

The committee appointed to make plans for the IRC booth at the Fall Festival included the officers of the club, sponsors, Dr. J. L. Clark and Mr. Floyd Greenleaf, plus two club members, Bobbi Suggs and Jerry Rivers.

Carol Chatterton Awarded Suhrie $125 Scholarship

Carol Chatterton, junior elementary education major, recently received the Ambrose L. Suhrie Scholarship Award in chapel exercises during American Education Week.

The award of $125 is presented annually to one or two elementary education students whose academic work, love for Christian education and dedication to Christian education recommend them for consideration, according to the SMC department of education.

Carol is current president of the campus chapter of the Student National Education Association. The award—endowed by Dr. Ambrose L. Suhrie, resident educational consultant at SMC during the late 40's and early 50's—was presented to Carol by Dr. K. M. Kennedy, head of SMC's department of education.

she has served as dean of girls at Grand Ledge Academy in Michigan and as Broadway Academy in Illinois.

The new associate librarian for SMC's Nursing Division extension in Orlando is Miss Marianne Evans. A Florida native, Miss Evans completed her B.S. degree at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich., in 1952. Her graduate work was done at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, where she received her M.S. degree in Library Science in 1955.

Mr. Lawrence E. Hanson, new associate professor of mathematics, will receive his Ph.D. degree in the near future from Florida State University. He has taught mathematics at Chico State University in California, the University of Oregon, California State Polytechnic College, and Florida State University. He has also worked as a mathematician and statistician for the U. S. Naval Ordnance Test Station and Laboratory in California.

A 1955 SMC graduate, Mrs. Patricia Kirtelin, now a clinical instructor at the Orlando, Fla. extension of SMC's Nursing Division. Born in Los Angeles, Mrs. Kirtelin received her high school education at Highland Academy, Portland, Tennessee.

Joining the communications department as assistant professor of speech is Mrs. Genevieve McCormick, who received her M.A. degree from the University of Washington in the Spring of 1966. Mrs. McCormick has taught in Michigan public schools, worked in a civil service secretarial position, served as editorial secretary for the Pacific Press Publishing Association in California, and has been assistant dean of women at Walla Walla College, College Place, Washington.

Dr. LaVeta M. Payne, professor of education and psychology, came to SMC from Atlantic Union College in Massachusetts, where she was chairman of the Education Division. She received her Ph.D. degree from the University of Nebraska in 1952, and has taught at Columbia Union College, Tokoma Park, Maryland, the University of Nebraska, Newbold College in England, and Atlantic Union College before she came to SMC.

Fine Arts Division Chairman and music department head, Mr. Marvin L. Robertson joined the SMC faculty this year, coming from Walla Walla College in Washington State. He served there as assistant professor of music. Before entering college teaching, Robertson was music teacher for Auburn Academy in Washington. He received his M.A. degree from Colorado State College, and has partially completed Ph.D. requirements at Florida State University.

Mr. R. Lynn Saub, instructor in English, has returned to SMC after a one-year leave-of-absence. Before he joined the college teaching staff, Saub was English teacher at the Collegiate Academy. He received his M.A. degree in 1963 from the George Peabody College for Teachers.

Joining the SMC faculty on the Orlando extension campus is Mrs. Beverly Winsted, 1964 SMC graduate. She is working as a teaching assistant in obstetrical nursing.

Mrs. Theresa C. Wright, who received her B.S. degree in 1965, has also started work on the Orlando extension campus as an instructor in nursing. A Tennessee native, Mrs. Wright attended Collegiate Academy for her secondary education, and received her nursing training at Columbia Union College, Tokoma Park, Maryland.

AU Will Produce Greek Tragic Drama, 'Antigone'

Among the activities of the Educational Standards Committee this year at Andrews University will be the Greek play Antigone to be presented in the spring.

The play, written by Sophocles, will be staged on the steps of the Campus Health Center. Through the use of torch light and minimum stage properties, the committee plans to create as much as possible the original atmosphere.

College flow, a quiz program started last year, and Forensics, a new debating program, will challenge those at Andrews interested in mental competition.

For those interested in contemporary Christianity, Sum and Substance provides a discussion group each Sabbath afternoon. Questions such as the relevance of a living God in the life of a college student are given serious thought.

The Educational Standards committee is also in charge of the tutorial program for freshmen, and the Honors Society, which will be organized in the near future.

Jenkins Directs Campus Activities Of New Club

The newly organized Behavioral Science Professional Club elected officers at its first meeting recently.

Those elected were: Charles "Tookie" Jenkins, president; Joe Ann Newman, vice-president; Candy Cummings, secretary; Beth Mensing, assistant secretary; Mrs. Sharon Hoover, treasurer; Chuck Starnard, chaplain; and Kenny Benau, Sargent-at-arms.

The group discussed future club plans and activities, including possible visits to a mental hospital or the psychiatric ward of a hospital. The members also expressed a desire to learn of career possibilities in the behavioral sciences field and suggested that a guest speaker be obtained to inform the club about the opportunities.

The sponsor for the club is Mrs. Alma Chambers, associate professor of psychology.

Accent interview

By Mike FOXWORTH

Coming up this Sunday, November 20th, will be the biennial Upsilon Delta Phi reception, the main social event of the first semester, according to some sources. The following interview with Mens' Club president, David Steen, may answer some questions and relieve a few dissenters of their skepticism.

ACCENT: Where is the reception to be held this year?

MR. STEEN: As was the case with last year's reception, we are holding ours in the gymnasium.

ACCENT: Why can't the reception be held at the Chattanooga civic auditorium?

MR. STEEN: The rental charge for the civic auditorium was within reach of our budget; however, it was decided to use the gymnasium and save the money which would have been spent on rent, for a better meal.

ACCENT: You speak of a large group that will be attending. Do you have an approximate figure on the number?

MR. STEEN: We figure that approximately 600-700 will attend, but the present trend of ticket sales show that this figure is somewhat liberal.

ACCENT: The rumor is going around that an outside catering service will be preparing the meal. Is this correct?

MR. STEEN: Catering services in the Chattanooga area have ings regarding the advisability of retaining class organizations in the light of the new proposed SA constitution, opened the floor for discussion. As a result of the discussion in which visitors took more active part than senators, the committee was authorized to study further into the question with the stipulation being made that a terminal date be chosen after which, no decision being reached, classes would organize as usual.

President Vollmer next announced the approved-of campus AM radio station WSA, and requested a motion that be allowed to choose a committee of five to prepare for the opening of the station. This being granted, the Senate moved on to the next item on the agenda, constitutional revisions under the direction of SA Vice President Robin Mallenree. After several minutes of argument about the proper parliamentary procedure, the matter was brought back to the floor for one question.

Senator Mallenree reported on the painful process of constitutional revision, and expressed hope for an early completion date.

The SA Project Committee, also headed up by Summerour, reported on the proposal that the transforming of the cafeteria "Green Room" into a Student Center be the SA project for the year. Professor Rudolph Aussen, assistant professor of modern languages, proposed that the been checked and everything possible has been done to obtain such service. Arrangements were almost assured with one service, but for some reason they declined. The food preparation will now be done by the SMC cafeteria. A menu has been submitted to the cafeteria by the Mens' Club officers. The serving will be done by married couples.

ACCENT: What are the plans for entertainment?

MR. STEEN: Entertainment will consist of a collegiate musical performing group from the "Northland." Also, a film will be shown in conjunction with the theme of the reception.

ACCENT: What is the theme of the reception?

MR. STEEN: We are keeping this a secret, but time will tell.

ACCENT: Are there any comments that you would like to make in closing?

MR. STEEN: Yes there is. I would like to thank all those who have had a part in planning this event. Their work has been great and efficient. We wish to thank Deans Upchurch and Freeman for their cooperation and help with solving many technicalities. I would also like to thank all the club officers for their planning and all club members for their support and patience as some of the club activities have slowed up until after the reception.

ACCENT: Thank you.

SA project be the supplying of evangelistic materials for mission work in Jordan.

Senator Mallenree proposed that a committee be formed to decide on the SA project. This proposal was defeated, the consensus being that all SA problems were being referred to committees, making the Senate somewhat of a functionless bureaucracy.

The entire meeting was pervaded by an informality that did pitifully little for commanding respect. Unimpressive parliamentary juggling went another prominent feature, including the rising to points of order over words used in discussion, and the meeting ended in an attempt by Senator Early and Mallenree to force an adjournment.

Problems not notwithstanding, the Senate is to be commended, as are its individual officers and committees, for handling an extremely heavy agenda with relative efficiency.

Vol. XXII Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tenn. 37318, December 8, 1966 No. 5

SMC Hosts Conference Layman-Youth Congress

Southern Missionary College will be host to the Georgia-Cumberland conference Layman-Youth Congress this weekend, Dec. 9-10—"the first to be held in several years," stated Elder Roy B. Thurmon, pastor of the Collegedale church.

Elder Neal Wilson, president of the North American Division of Seventh-day Adventists, and Elder J. H. Hancock, associate MV secretary of the General Conference, will be special guests. Also scheduled to attend are other church leaders from the Southern Union conference, Georgia-Cumberland conference and local church delegates.

The weekend services will be held in the new physical education building and will open Friday evening with Elder Hancock as speaker.

Sabbath morning Elder Neal Wilson will speak at the combined church services. Special music will be provided by the academy and college choirs under the direction of Mr. Stewart J. Crook, assistant professor of music at SMC.

Elder Desmond D. Cummings, president of the Georgia-Cumberland conference, will have charge of the afternoon program when Family Bible Plan trophies from all sections of the conference will be featured.

Band Plays Christmas Concert Saturday Night

By Ed SHAFFER

The SMC Concert Band will present its annual Christmas concert this Saturday night, December 10, at 8 p.m., in the Physical Education Center.

Under the direction of William F. Young, the band will perform a variety of music ranging from Andante Canzibile by Tchaikowsky, to Sleigh Ride by Leroy Anderson and El Capitan by John Philip Sousa.

Two special features of the evening concert will be the band's premiere performance of Gustav Hult's First Suite in E-flat for Military Band, and Mr. James Schoepflin's performance of Second Clarinet Concerto, Polacca, by Weber.

The First Suite in E-flat, written in 1929, is the first twentieth century composition for band. In the band music repertoire it is comparable to the Viennese classical symphonies or the operas of Verdi and Puccini, according to band spokesmen.

The closing number will be Here Comes Santa Claus. According to SMC tradition, Santa will make his appearance and give all the "good little boys and girls" a special Christmas treat, during this number.

See

The 50-member band will make several tours later this season, including one to Georgia-Cumberland Academy on January 14, 1967, and a tour to Florida during Spring Vacation.

Piercing bugle calls, Spanish moss, caissons and muskets, Confederate flags, not the "Dixie" mood as SMC male collegians and "southern belles" attended the Men's Reception, Nov. 20, in SMC's new physical education center. Entertainment in the "Southern Tradition" was provided by the Wedgewood Trio, followed by Walt Disney's film "The Great Locomotive Chase."

Assistant Dean of Men Bruce Freeman and the Jones Hall men spent many hours in transforming the gym into a Plantation Ballroom, according to inside sources.

Prominent in the decorative scheme were the caissons made of wagon wheels and posts, the Spanish Moss blown from Natchez, Mississippi, by Jerry Linderman, and a 20-by-70-foot backdrop painting by Larry Coleman.

Attendance Up At Chapel With Change of Time

Students of former years remember 7:30 a.m. chapel services. According to secretary Barbara DuFay, the letters issued from Dean Madgwick's office for chapel absences have been reduced by a margin of better than 50%, following the change of chapel time this year to 9:30 a.m.

Seven-thirty chapel was designed with the working student in mind, leaving a four hour work-block from 8:30 to 12:30. Upon finding a student labor shortage, this became a minor factor. Of the time change, Dean Madgwick says: "It's more convenient for everyone."

Rascon, Cockrell Present Papers at Physics Meet

By TERRY TAYLOR

Lucy Rascon and Gary Cockrell, two SMC physics students, presented papers at a meeting of the American Physical Society in Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 1.

Lucy, a junior from Florida, will describe the results of her research with the "systematic tendencies among experimentally determined numbers, known as f-values, concerning atomic radiation," according to Dr. Ray Hefferlin, head of the SMC physics department. This paper will represent calculations and literature researching begun in 1958.

Gary, a senior from Alabama, will speak on "temperature and density measurements in the flame of an extremely hot plasma jet." He has been participating in the research project for two years, and will present results of data taken as early as 1962.

Steve Sowder, Don Pervis, and Roger Hall, also physics students, have participated in various phases of the project, and also made the trip to Nashville.

The physics department of SMC has had an active research program since 1955. Many students have co-authored articles and given papers for national societies, and for publication. Participation to this extent in actual research projects is extremely rare for undergraduate students in American education, according to Dr. Hefferlin.

Dr. Hefferlin feels that this opportunity is one thing which helps SMC to approach the lofty goals of Christian education.

Dr. Hefferlin will be giving a report on the experience of working undergraduates into research to the American Association of Physics Teachers in New York early in February.

WSMC-FM Tries For 80,000 Watts To Solve Problem

WSMC-FM, granted a construction permit by the Federal Communications Commission for a 70,000-watt radio station, is now reapplying for an 80,000-watt endorsement.

Mr. James C. Hannum, director of broadcasting for the station, announced that another application, now in process, will boost the power qualification of the station to eighty thousand watts, if passed. Hannum said, "This will not delay the date at which we will increase power. The antenna which was specified in the first application was not available. This necessitated the procurement of one which is more efficient. By law, this change had to be listed in a new application. It is to the station's advantage to obtain maximum efficiency from its equipment."

WOMEN!

By MYRON DOBBS
Freshman English Student

Shopping with women is the worst torture on earth. You follow their aimless wandering from one store to another. As you stand patiently waiting, your feet begin to swell and ache. You think how nice it would be to sit down. You try to keep your mind off of your feet by reading the labels on various items. You can learn a lot from those labels. For instance, you had thought previously that Kodak only made cameras, film, and photo supplies. Now you learn they put filler in bedspreads and fabricate waterproof raincoats. This idea of education by labels works fine for the first ten minutes, but it soon becomes boring. Then you count how many more rows of dresses "they" must examine before moving on. Finally, they have finished surveying the last dress. For the first time in two hours you take more than five steps at a time. You can see the exit sign, escape seems so near! But late comes your way again; there is a shoe sale just to the left of the door. And you thought dresses were bad! Just think, there are two shoes for every dress! Unfortunately, no one has ever measured the time it takes a woman to pick out a pair of shoes. There is, however, one comforting thought: there are lots of chairs where you can sit down and take off your shoes!

Jones and Talge Elect Floor Men To Dorm Council

The men's dormitories elected a Dormitory Council to provide a broader basis for meeting the needs of dormitory residents.

One man was chosen from each floor making provision for an appropriate cross section of each residence area.

"The function of the council is to be a voice of the students and reflect accurately their opinions to the dean," stated Dean Upchurch.

The council also has a direct relationship to the Men's Club. They meet with the officers to express their feelings and also assist in carrying out plans.

This group is not affiliated with any other group on campus but is designed to meet the needs of the dormitories, only.

By GARY GARNER
Freshman English Student

The change from high school to college is a big step for a man with "short legs." A freshman usually comes to college with "short legs" socially. But suddenly he finds himself in the midst of more women than he has seen in his whole life, and better yet, they are all bottled up in one campus. Every day the scenery changes for him as he meets women that he didn't even know existed. Knowing that many of these women have come to college for the sole purpose of finding and marrying a man, may fascinate him. He probably finds dating more interesting, knowing that the young lady he is with is playing the dating game "for keeps." Being the average adaptable male, he doesn't despair at these new circumstances, but takes advantage of his surroundings. His "social legs" continue to grow until he is finally convinced that life in the married students' housing is better than dormitory life; and another woman, playing for keeps, has come out a winner.

Campus Crusade Chapters Plan For Witnessing

"Revolutionary" programs for effective witnessing for Christ are being planned by the Campus Crusade for Christ chapter at Andrews University.

The Campus Crusade for Christ International is a non-denominational college-oriented group encouraged and inspired to present the gospel to the whole world in this generation.

"Thousands of young people across the United States are presenting Jesus Christ in their homes and on university campuses," says Allan Wolfson, junior theology major at Andrews, who under the sponsorship of the union and Andrews church MIV Department, Student Association, and the Andrews University administration, recently attended the Leadership Training Institute in programming and methodology in San Bernardino, Calif.

This Campus Crusade program has become so extensive that during the summers zealous young people carry on beach-witnessing programs, sources report.

Wolfson reports that the film Bad Week will be shown at Andrews by the chapter, and special guests will be coming in from other colleges this month to share their experiences.

Firemen Plan Christmas Event

The annual Firemen's Christmas party will meet in the cafeteria's Green Room, December 18, at 7 p.m. One of the special features of the party will be the movie taken during the recent on-campus fire drill.

Dr. Clark's Book, Entitled '1844' Comes Out Soon

The two-volume work 1844, a study of religious and secular reforms during the year 1844, is expected to be released by the Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tenn., in the spring of 1967.

The work is by Dr. Jerome L. Clark, professor of history at SMC.

Beginning research in January of 1963, with the sources available in Tennessee, he also did extensive research at the Library of Congress, and examined sources at the New York Public Library and Harvard University.

Colporteur Club Elects Williams, Carlson as Heads

The SMC Colporteur Club met Tuesday evening, Nov. 23, at its first meeting of the year and elected officers for the 1966-67 school year.

Chuck Williams, senior theology major, was chosen president. Chuck, a veteran of four summers of canvassing, plans to make a career out of the SDA publishing work.

Other officers chosen were Curtis Carlsson, vice president; Carol Schneider, secretary-treasurer; Bill Strang, pastor; and Ed Shafer, public relations.

According to Dr. J. M. Ackerman, sponsor of the club, chapel today, Dec. 8, was to promote colporteur work and award scholarships earned last summer. The publishing secretaries of the Southern Union Conference were present to present the awards.

PHEEBACK

answer of "Yes" or "No" to this question in this case is meaningless, the only possible answer being the statement "I do not know." This question was asked in the question, "The 'Golden Mountain' valley, which Bertrand Russell noted, in connection with the Aristotelian syllogism. If you were to say 'All Greeks are men, all Greeks are white, therefore some men are white,' you would be absolutely correct, but only if you assume that there are Greeks, and not otherwise. If you were to say 'All golden mountains are mountains, all golden mountains are golden, therefore some mountains are golden,' you would be equally absolutely correct. If you assume that there are golden mountains. Likewise, the question, 'Does your mother know that you smoke?' is meaningless unless it has been established or assumed—that you do smoke. And likewise with our main question.

With the question "Can God create a rock so big that He cannot move it?" the answer rests on the assumption concerning whether God is or isn't omnipotent. If you assume that God is not omnipotent, then the answer does make sense; for when both answers signify the same condition in relation to God's omnipotence—that it does not exist—then we have assumed that He was not omnipotent before we asked the question. Assuming that God is not omnipotent makes either or both answers meaningless. On the other hand, if you assume that God is omnipotent, then the question becomes meaningless, and you might as well ask "Widdada lew Widdada brawler?" for either answer in this case refers to a nonexistent condition or situation, as in whether your mother knows you smoke. If we have already assumed that God is omnipotent (as above we assumed that He was not) then the question "Can God create a rock so big He can't move it?" is nonexistent; and it is obvious that either answer would indicate non-omnipotence, thus contradicting the basis for the legitimate asking of the question. If one, having assumed that God is omnipotent, is asked "Can God create a rock so big that He cannot move it?" the only answer would again be the simple statement of the premise, "God is omnipotent," just as in the case of your smoking the only answer was "I do not know," with the implication, of course, that "the question therefore cannot possibly apply to me." Likewise, then, with the statement "God is omnipotent," either answer to the question about the rock would contradict this condition, and so the question obviously does not apply to God.

To sum up, assuming that God is omnipotent makes the question meaningless, assuming that God is non-omnipotent makes the question valid of only one actual answer, which is, of course, the initial assumption of non-omnipotence.

Collegiate Chorale, Choir Perform Special Programs

Two SMC choral groups will perform on campus the weekend of December 16-17.

The Collegiate Choir under the direction of Stewart Crook will give a special Christmas vespers on Friday evening. The evening vespers will include All Breathing Life and Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring by Bach, Adeste Te by Palestrina, and Joy to the World by Kayken-hahl, sung by the choir; Jesus, Jesus Rest Your Head, sung by the "Cherub Choir"; and a vocal solo, Prayer of the Norwegian Child, sung by Lewis Henderson.

The Collegiate Chorale under the direction of Marvin Robertson will present The Gloria by Vivalli on Sabbath afternoon. The Gloria, a 12-part work for chorus, was written during the 18th century. It deals with the scripture, "Glory to God in the highest and on earth, peace to men, good will." This is a song of praise to God and shows the feeling of joy for the gift of Christ to this earth. The Chorale will sing this work in Latin.

Andrews Offers European Tour For Ministers

A tour of England, Scotland, Ireland, and Paris for ministers will be conducted June 7-28, 1987, by Dr. N. F. Pease, chairman of Andrews University's applied theology department. The tour guide and lecturer will be Pastor Roy Graham, professor of religion at Newbold College, Bracknell, Berkshire, England.

Included will be places of historical importance in the lives of John Wesley and John Knox, as well as London, Oxford, Cambridge, Coventry, Plymouth, Stratford and Edinburgh. A special feature of the trip will be the opportunity to hear six distinguished British clergymen.

The cost of the tour will be $519 for jet flights, hotels, surface travel, guide service, and some meals. Qualified applicants may earn three quarter units of seminary credit. Tuition and auditing fees will be announced later. The tour is designed particularly for ministers and theological students, but a limited number of other applicants will be accepted.

"This is an opportunity," states Dr. Pease, "for ministers, theological students, and others with similar interests to gain valuable travel experience at a reasonable cost." Those desiring further information should write Dr. Pease at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan.

Powell Heads New Club: Heralds of Liberty

The Heralds of Liberty, Southern Missionary College's chapter of the International Religious Liberty Association, meeting in executive session, completed its slate of officers by electing George A. Powell president of the organization. Previous to his election, he served as general vice president of the group.

According to Powell, the Heralds of Liberty will continue in expanded form its educational program regarding trends in church-state relations. Thus for this year, several appointments to speak to SDA and non-SDA groups have been filled by the group. In addition, an expanded radio broadcast, including two "Beligion in the News" programs, in addition to the "Freedom for Today" programs, has been instituted.

Mrs. Wallenkampf Gives Charm Course for Women

A charm course was conducted by Mrs. Mue Wallenkampf for the women students of Southern Missionary College, Nov. 13-17.

Lectures held each evening in the Women's Residence Hall chapel dealt with such topics as actions and poise, diet and exercise, good grooming, fashion, hair and skin care, "what to say and how to say it" and "coordinating the entire personality."

Individual counseling periods were available to the women to discuss their questions with Mrs. Wallenkampf.

Mrs. Wallenkampf, who holds a B.A. degree in English from Union College, Nebraska, and an M.A. in music from Redlands University, has taken special courses in "charm," including one at the extension of the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

She has conducted previous charm courses at other SDA colleges.

One of the key quotations used throughout the lectures was taken from Vol. IV, p. 358 of Testimonies to the Church by E. G. White: "The work of educating the mind and manners may be carried forward to perfection."

When asked her opinion of SMC ladies in regard to charm and poise, Mrs. Wallenkampf said she was "very well impressed."

Behavioral Club Gives Yule Party

The members of the newly-formed Behavioral Sciences professional club will gather in the "green room" of the cafeteria for an evening of Christmas partying this Sunday evening, Dec. 11.

A comedy film, intended to put everyone in a jolly St. Nick mood, will be shown, and refreshments will be available.

College Has Full Slate Of Temperance Activities

Southern Missionary College celebrated Temperance Week November 28 to December 3. Featuring a special slate of lectures on healthful living and temperate living, the week was planned and executed by the SMC chapter of the American Temperance Society.

Retired USAF Major James Holly of Chattanooga spoke Tuesday morning for chapel on "Alcohol," to start the week's activities. Major Holly is a member of the Greater Chattanooga Alcohol Council, and works with Alcoholics Anonymous.

A pair of lectures were given Tuesday evening in the regular men's and women's worship services. Mr. James Jackson and Mr. Paul Loyacono, outgoing and incoming heads of the Federal Health Education program in Venereal Diseases for the Chattanooga Health Department, spoke to the men.

The women heard Mrs. Betty Bumgardner and Mrs. Rebecca Pierce. Both ladies have done television work in physical education in this area. Mrs. Bumgardner, former physical education director for Chattanooga schools, is presently the principal of Cedar Hill School. Mrs. Pierce is the TV and resource teacher in physical education for the Chattanooga schools.

Thursday morning Dr. T. C. Swinmyr, staff physician for the college, spoke to the students on "Unusual Temperance Aspects" at the regular chapel service. During the meeting Elder E. S. Reile, Seventh-day Adventist youth director for the Southern states, presented a national award to SMC's ATS chapter.

116 Theologians Visit 28 Churches On Seminar Bands

Seminar bands sponsored by the religion department of the college are functioning again this year, according to department spokesmen.

Each month of the school year the seminar bands, consisting of from three to six theology majors each, visit neighboring Seventh-day Adventist churches in Tennessee, Georgia, and Alabama, to conduct Sabbath services.

Approximately 116 theology majors are traveling each month to 28 different churches within a 100-mile radius of SMC.

The seminar band program is an integral part of the theology major at the college, giving prospective ministers opportunity to function in various capacities in actual church settings.

for its work in promoting temperate living at SMC and in the Chattanooga area.

Lt. Lester Wunningham, safety speaker for the Tennessee Highway Patrol, spoke Thursday evening at joint worship. His topic was "Mechanized Death."

Elder Robert E. Adams of Washington, D. C., spoke Friday evening in the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church. Adams is an associate secretary of the American Temperance Society. He also spoke at the regular church services at 8:15 and 11:00 Saturday morning, and at a special meeting in the church Saturday afternoon.

Davis, Hanson Hear New Ideas At Math Meetings

Mr. C. E. Davis, assistant professor of mathematics at the college, and Mr. L. E. Hanson, associate professor of mathematics, attended the annual meeting of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics in Cincinnati, Ohio, recently.

The convention was a sectional meeting to discuss many aspects of mathematics, with special stress on the modern trends of teaching the "new math."

Mr. Davis was also guest lecturer recently at the South Atlantic Conference Teacher's Convention in Miami.

Asked to help this group of SDA elementary school teachers solve some problems they had encountered while teaching new math, Mr. Davis dealt with such topics as sets, the number system, and different bases for the number system.

Encomium Singers Plan Trip to Washington, D. C.

SMC's touring male chorus, the Encomium Singers, under the direction of Prof. Stewart Crook, will be on tour Feb. 1-5 in the Washington, D.C., area.

The main feature of this tour will be a Saturday night secular program at Columbia Union College. This program will be held in the school gymnasium and will be sponsored by the CUC women's club.

Highlights of the program will be a selection of Western songs, featuring such favorites as "Ghost Riders" and "Cool Water." Also there will be a section of sea chanteys, and Bob Bolton will be featured on his sawhorse.

The singers will leave SMC at 5 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 1. They will stop at Little Rock Academy to give a program and to spend the night. Thursday night will be spent at Shenandoah Valley Academy.

The group plans to arrive in Washington on Friday, Feb. 3, at 10 a.m. in order to spend the day sightseeing. Friday evening they will be giving a sacred concert at Slipco, one of the denomination's largest churches. Highlights of this program will include a section of Negro Spirituals and a two-voice chorale, "O Magnum Mysterium," sung in Latin. Sabbath morning the singers will give the church service at the Takoma Park church. They will return to SMC on Sunday, Feb. 5.

Another scheduled appointment of the Encomium Singers was a program for the girl's reception at Highland Academy Sunday evening, Dec. 18. Also a tour has been proposed for the Madison Nashville area, but the dates for this are pending.

The group will have a new "secular" outfit for the Washington tour. This will consist of a double-breasted navy blue blazer with blue and olive plaid slacks and arrets and puffs to match the slacks. Also the new encomium singers patch will be finished at that time for use on the present charcoal-grey blazer in the sacred program.

SA Mounts Drive For Constitution

Agendas here, posters there, meetings everywhere—this is the feeling of many of the student senators as the drive is on to adopt the new constitution.

The new constitution, begun last spring, is now nearing the date of adoption. The constitutional committee presented the draft to the Senate, where it is now nearing the end of revision.

After adoption it is to be reviewed by the President's Council of the college, and, if approved, it will face the final hurdle—ratification by the student General Assembly.

Vollmer Appoints Groups For New SA Commissions

By JAMES EDMISTER

Memberships of newly created Student Association Presidential Commissions, formed to "investigate and advise both the Student Association and the college administration on points of special interest and concern to the student body," were announced recently in chapel by SA President Donald Vollmer.

The four commissions, whose members were appointed by Vollmer, are the Student-Faculty Council, the WSA AM Pilot Committee, the Commission on Academic Policies and Standards, and the Campus Kitchen Committee.

"These committees were formed with the idea in mind that the Student Association exists to provide more for the student than picnics, special programs, discussion groups, and apple cider," said Vollmer.

"The purpose of the SA is to give legitimate vent to students' concern with the academic, social, and even peripheral aspects of college life," Vollmer insisted in an interview with the ACCENT.

Faculty Group

The Student-Faculty Council will meet with the president of the college, key administrative officers, and certain teachers, and will "provide a basis for face-to-face discussion of student problems and concerns on a more formal yet we hope effective level."

at-large; Charlotte McKee, student-at-large; George Smithers, man, student-at-large; and Vollmer, chairman of the council.

WSA Committee

Members of the WSA-AM Pilot Committee, meant to investigate the feasibility of the on-campus student station and supervise operations during the trial period, are Bob DuPuy and George Powell, co-chairmen, Nancy Ball, Wayne Easter, and Janene Hudgins.

Academic Policies

The Commission on Academic Policies and Standards, set up to investigate such matters as compulsory class attendance, chapel attendance, grading systems, and general academic concerns, is made up of Bob Fuller, SA Scholarship Committee Chairman, Woodrow Whidden, Bruce Elliott, Rodney Bryant, and John Walker. The chairman is yet to be named.

Campus Kitchen Committee

Members of the Campus Kitchen Committee are Philip Whidden, chairman, George Smotherman, and Alden Hall. The function of the group is to deal with students' concern regarding the Campus Kitchen's food prices, according to Vollmer.

Two SMC Men Are 'Samaritans,' Says Local Lady

"Good Samaritans will exist," says Mrs. D. L. Rowe, Jr., of 7108 Lisa Gaye Lane in Chattanooga. Recently she telephoned the college public relations office to tell of an experience she had involving two of the college students.

One foggy night about 9 p.m. as Mrs. Rowe was driving home on the freeway from Chattanooga, U. S. 75, she missed her exit, her car stalled, and she became rather frightened, as she did not know how to get off the freeway.

Clyde Vigil, a sophomore history major, and John Fox, a junior music major, were returning to school, spotted the stalled car, and offered assistance. They directed Mrs. Rowe to the proper exit and helped her find her way home.

Mrs. Rowe felt that this was an unusual thing and stated that to her "it was just like saving my life."

Collegedale MV Swaps Programs With Oakwood

Oakwood College was recently the host of Collegedale's Missionary Volunteer Society as an SMC group conducted a Sabbath afternoon program entitled "What's the Difference?"

According to Dale Thomas, chairman of the Collegedale society's programs committee, the trip was the first part of an exchange program intended "not to create but to maintain a spirit of good will between the two campuses." Several students who went on the trip described their reception at Oakwood as tremendous.

The program's theme was the difference between non-Christian and Christian education as found by comparing SDA campuses with public colleges and universities.

The Public Relations office commented that the weekend's trip was not a new concept, but a good resumption of such exchange programs which have been held in past years.

SA RIDES AGAIN

Christmas Rides was again amazed at John Walker's Christmas Rides. A group of children and adults were seen at the TV audience of SA. The program was held on Saturday night, Dec. 17.

Frost's Poems To Be Presented By Speech Class

"An Hour with Robert Frost," a program of readings from that poet's work, will be presented Sunday evening, Jan. 8, by students from the class in oral interpretation, taught by Mrs. Genevieve McCormick, assistant professor of speech at the college.

The program will be presented in the Fine Arts auditorium at 8 p.m.

Ten students from the class will read such well-known Frost poems as "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening," "Birch," "On a Stump," and "After Apple Picking."

"The Hired Man," a longer Frost work, will be read by three members of the lower biennium speech course; the program will be preceded by a short introduction to the life and poetry of Frost.

Assisting on some works will be a choral group, directed by Stewart Crook, assistant professor of music.

Mrs. McCormick has tentative plans for the production of such a program as "An Hour with Robert Frost," every semester.

sign watching

"and it shall be a sign unto you . . ."

R. E. FRANKS
Assistant Professor of Religion

Most Christians are sign watchers; few, however, actually live in salvation by sign watching. Nevertheless, it is a rare car driver who would throw away his road map while driving on a long trip over an unfamiliar route. And in case of a detour, necessity requires a most diligent watch for signs.

Don Graybill, Andrews Seminary student, was the author of an article in the Dec. 8 issue of the ACCENT entitled, "Sign watching," in which, among other things, he deplored certain aspects of sign watching (the particulars he did not specify) as contributing to agnostic Christian experience. Apparently sign watching at least, according to Graybill, should be long-range. He takes a dim view of a soon-coming Christ.

Due to the fact that in his recess of warning against sign watching he inadvertently cast a shadow over the inspiration of Ellen White, and has unwittingly disparaged the soon-coming aspect of traditional Adventist theology, it was felt advisable to take a second look at some of his reasons.

Is this important? It is indeed—because our theological emphasis, our eschatological foundations, are involved. A soon-coming belief means a future shift in methods and standards.

I have heard godly, experienced veterans like ministers H. M. S. Richards, Vandeman, and others preach with effective, solemn, heart-warming hopefulness of Christ's coming—very soon. Our young writer, however, takes an opposite view. To use his words, "We must now say, in all earnestness and honest conviction that Christ might very well not be coming 'soon'."

This is an incredible position. Having propounded the improbability of a soon coming advent, he moves to what he thinks is the more probable certainty—that of a 100-years-from-our-day coming. Hear him, "It is entirely possible that Christ's coming could be delayed beyond the ends of the lives of all who are alive today." (Italics mine.)

Since people are living now who are 100 years old, it follows there are children today now fifty years old who will make it to 2066 A.D.—all this being said, and presupposing that Christ doesn't come. The point is—

If Mr. Graybill cannot be certain of an imminent, soon-coming sign watching, that is, signs fulfilled upon signs, etc. He says it militates against Christ's coming and our faith. He has a point here. But how can his 100 years and more delay help the situation? What is worse, a soon-coming Christ with quantitative sign watching, or a delayed coming of perhaps 100-200 years or more without quantitative sign watching?

Surely the latter would promote as much expectancy as former would foster anxiety—probably more!

Incidentally, why did he not mention something about qualitative sign watching? For example, show how the "wars and rumors of wars" have brought us to the place where, according to the best military brains, we cannot fight one more all-out, blitzkrieg-type, atomic-powered war. And then asks: Can human nature hold off for 100 years? If Mr. Graybill will admit Paul gave us a sign when he said, "evil men and seducers shall work worse and worse" in the last days, then his position of a long delay is extremely untenable, especially in the light of past human history. Why limit the power of God to shake quickly the Seventh-day Adventists out of their lukewarmness to He can pour out His Holy Spirit in the latter rain and get the work done quickly "in an hour when ye think not?"

The most glaring weakness of his theory appears in his appeal to Christ for support. He said, "It must be remembered that the question of the time of His appearing was the one question Christ refused to answer, saying it was known only to the Father in heaven." Who said Christ did not set a specific time for His Coming? This is not the issue. The question is: Did Christ give the impression that in our day He was coming soon? Or did He imply something otherwise? We can do no better to quote Him, "Surely, I come quickly" (Rev. 22:20). And "Watch and pray . . . lest coming suddenly" (cf. Mark 14:35-36).

Mr. Graybill also appeals to II Pet. 3:3-4 for support. This says, "Scorners shall say in the last days . . . saying, Where is the promise of his coming?" He points out that the scoffers are "saying not asking." Having read his article through several times, I can point to at least four places where he said "Christ will not come soon." Indeed the weight of his whole article is saying, in effect, "Christ is not coming soon."

In this connection, since Graybill said E. G. White was inspired, I inject this pertinent quotation from DA 635:

"In his heart, Mr. Lord delays his coming! He does not say Christ will not come. He does not scoff at the idea of His second coming. But in his heart and by his actions and words he declares that the Lord's coming is delayed. He banishes from the minds of others the conviction that the Lord is coming quickly. His influence leads men to presumptuous, careless delay. They are confirmed in their worldliness and stupor."

"We believe," he says, "in the inspiration of Ellen White, but we must also recognize that her interpretation of Matt. 24:34 ('this generation shall not pass') has not proved correct." Then he adds, "She answers this charge and explains the mistake very clearly in the first volume of Selected Messages, page 67. If her explanation was very clear to him, why raise the issue over her interpretation?"

If he had only consulted the Greek in his verse, he would have found the verbs to be subjunctives. This means a conditional situation. Amazing, isn't it, that this is precisely Ellen White's position on the very same point from which he quoted, and she without Greek knowledge!

Here is one of her "very clear" explanations of "this generation" of Matt. 24:34, as recorded on page 68 of Selected Messages.

"Had Adventists, after the great disappointment in 1844, held fast their faith . . . receiving the message of the third angel . . . Christ would have come ere this to rescue His people to their reward."

This is the conditional nature of Matt. 24:34, stated by E. G. White, who has no Greek except—only a humble servant of God.

He is missing the whole point of the case of the delay. True, sign watching, like all other guides can be made a fetish. But the servant of the Lord says on the same page, "It was not the will of God that the coming of Christ should be delayed. It is the unbelief, the worldliness, unconversion, and strife among the Lord's professed people that have kept us in this world of sin for so many years. Here is the real reason for the delay. We need to watch this closely!"

He claims sign watching leads to apathy. We reply: Not if the sign watcher is concerned, believing, spiritually-minded! Let's keep the signs and trust in the grace of Christ to change the hearts of the sign watchers.

My chief complaint with Mr. Graybill's article is that he poses complaints and questions, but he does not offer solutions. Nowhere in his article does he tell us how to watch signs. He generalizes with "the signs of Christ's coming do have their purpose." But he does not tell us their purpose or how to relate to them.

"Those who watched for the sign of the coming rain (of Jerusalem), and fled from the city, escaped the destruction. So now we

GEORGE SMOTHERMAN
Student, SMC

In his article, reprinted from the Andrews University Student Movement, in the December 8, 1966, issue of the Southern Accent, entitled "Sign Watching," Don Graybill states: "We must now say, in all seriousness and honest conviction, that Christ might very well not be coming 'soon'." At least not soon in the sense we have too often meant it.

He goes on to present his case and support his claim with various quotes and references to and from the Bible and Sister White.

Many students and scholars of the Bible and Seventh-day Adventist denominational history have taken violent and vigorous issue with Graybill's presentation. They stand in horror of his main thesis which as stated above, clearly offers the proposition that Christ's coming "might not be 'soon'." More galling to some is his concluding remark that "sign watching produces just plain apathy."

To the Seventh-day Adventist Church, the preaching of the soon Second Coming of Christ and the documentation of that cherished doctrine with the noting of key Bible-propheesied signs as they are fulfilled, is the "meat and bone" of its religion, as the Adventist in our name so appropriately sets forth.

The issues raised by Graybill are indeed disturbing to the average Adventist. To me, and I believe any reasonable-minded person, they appear worthy of discussion. However, I believe Graybill's main thesis is wrong, but for the right reasons, as I will attempt to show.

The Seventh-day Adventist Church has preached for 122 are given warning of Christ's second coming and of the desecration to fall upon the world. Those who heed the warning will be saved."—DA 634.

Solutions are needed. Here are some suggestions: 1) If the Bible says, "He is near, even at the doors," believe it as it is. 2) Then ask, "Are we ready now?" If not, let us go to our closet and there get right with God. His grace is sufficient. 3) Then work for others that they too may be ready, assuming Christ is coming tomorrow. 4) Be a sign yourself. "Let your light so shine that others may glorify God" because of you. Then all this sign watching will fall into a harmonious pattern.

years (1844-1966) the soon second coming of Christ. Some that seems like a long time. But it is a long time? Let's examine the mathematics of the problem. According to the S.D.A. creationist belief Mather Earth is now approximately 5966 years old. Adventists have preached the soon second coming for 122 years. These two figures compared in fraction form are 122/5966, or broken down further, approximately 1/49. In other words of the 49 approximate parts of Earth's history past, the soon second coming has been preached for 1 part. To further illustrate the point, if these calculations were plotted on a 24 hour, one-day, clock consisting of 1440 minutes (24 x 60), the soon second coming of Christ would have been preached for 29 minutes while earth's past history (from creation to 1844) would show 23 hours and 31 minutes.

Picture the world, if you can, as a man condemned to die in the electric chair at 12 o'clock midnight. He is sitting in a lonely death row cell on a hard prison cot, feeling the little round spot shaved on the top of his head. He has just finished his last cigarette, or chewing his last set of fingernails, as the case may be. The clock on the wall in the hall says 11:31 P.M. He has 29 minutes left to live on earth—29 minutes to heaven or hell. Twenty-nine minutes till eternity.

How long is 29 minutes? How long is 122 years?

Man's concept of time has been distorted by the plagues of sin which have polluted every aspect of his existence. As first created, man was perfect and meant to live forever. Sin brought the inevitable sentence of death to everyone born under its curse. Until the flood man's life-span in some cases was 900 years. Due to man's immorality and wickedness, God, in His wisdom, shortened it to "three score and ten" (70 years).

God, as Graybill so aptly pointed out, is not governed by man's feeble concept of time. "When the fullness of time" shall come, He will come and not until.

That time, I contend, whether it be in 2, 10, or 100 years is soon. On God's eternal clock it is but a matter of seconds, maybe even just one.

Graybill is wrong, I feel, to imply that Christ's coming may not be certain even though I do recognize that he does qualify that statement by saying "in the sense we have too often meant it."

However, his reasons for saying it are right, that being that we, Adventists, have become so content in our presentation of the "Advent gospel to all the world," and are impatient when God's timetable doesn't coincide with ours. Surely we are taking the last day rampant message with which He has entrusted us, far too much for granted.

A Poem in the Spirit of Christmas . . .

On the cringing fringes of the curious crowd she was swept along—a nameless face,
a feeble body, steadily growing more feeble

What if the cringing crowd, now bearing her along, should let her sink, exhausted, to the dust—
the searing, choking dust—should trample heedless feet upon her prostrate form, should forsake her as an unclaimed clump of lifeless rags?

The sense of threatening danger penetrated her nostrils, rouned her dizzying brain,
clarified her thoughts,
until her lips formed once her oft-repeated pledge:
I SHALL BE WHOLE.

It was not that she spoke the words to anybody, for who would believe her?
Who would listen?
Indeed, had she not come, to question whether she could believe herself?

Had not twelve relentless years of aching pain—of hope renewed to be destroyed, renewed to be destroyed again, and yet again—had they not made hope well-nigh hopeless?
But somewhere— somewhere in this crowd, this jostling, confusions, kaleidoscope crowd, walks a new Physician and on Him rests her reemerging hope.

It had not been easy to believe the stories the neighbors told, of miracles performed, for high and low,
for poor and rich,
without respect to person.
But steadily the evidence had mounted, broadened then, and deepened, till from the dust of disappointment, disillusion,
destitution,

Faith had called forth hope's assertion:
I SHALL BE WHOLE?

But now, here in the crowd, Faith falters,
Hope hesitates,
Trust trembles.

Could He who restored the widow's dead son,
He who healed the leper by the sea,
He who stilled death-voices on Galilee,
He who mastered demons at Gergesa, could He not know that she, in whom His power had kindled hope, was seeking Him, oh, so desperately in this cruel crush?

Perhaps she never should have left the sanctuary of humble home, never should have contended with the searing crowd, never should have dragged herself, pain-bowed,
to Levi-Matthew's house, only to find that doors which shut the Healer in shut her out.

And now, if what she hears is right, Jairus, Ruler of the Synagogue, does with the Master walk and talk.
And she? Who is she? What hope has she?

Good questions, punctuated by stabbing pain, undisturbed by the memory of twelve bitter years, battered at the Citadel of faith within her heart.
And this indifferent crowd? Can she command much more?
Yet from this very crowd she gathers words of conversation as the people eddy about her,
" . . . Jewy eating with publicans . . ."
"enemy of our people."
"He healed my child. . ."
" . . . know where He's going now?"
" . . . child of Jairus . . . sick . . . dying."
"going to heal her . . . too late. . . Dead."
"going anyway. Remember the son at Nain."

It is enough. Her stand of faith still stands, fortified with evidence, anew.
This is still the Man she needs to see.
With faith undebated, she proclaims to herself at true.
I SHALL BE WHOLE.

"But if only I could see Him,
"If only I could find . . ."

And there He is! Suddenly! The Man of her long quest, Hope of all her hopes.
Why, she could touch Him—! she dared.
Why, if she spoke to Him, He would hear her!
He is close enough.

I SHALL BE WHOLE

by GORDON M. HYDE

But her pounding heart will not permit the words to come, her breath supports no sound.
And too, there is that man Jairus, Ruler of the Synagogue.

But the crowd—the crowd is closing in;
about to rob her of her golden moment,
the chance that might never come again.
The faith of her life is compressed into deliberate, conscious, continuing action.
She presses forward, reaching—reaching desperately through the crowd, and saying to herself, more strongly:

"If I may but touch his garment,
I shall be whole."

She only touched the hem of His garment, but in that instant, twelve dreary years of pain and feebleness were gone.

Her faith vindicated, her trust in the Lord confirmed, her one boon granted, her soul overflowing with gratitude, and the love of God,
she is now ready to commit her nameless self to the curious crowd.

But there are no eddies, no movements of the crowd, to cover her retreat.
Movement has ceased.

The Lord stands still; His disciples stand still; even Jairus and the crowd are still.

And the Lord is looking intently toward her.
And the Lord is asking, "Who touched me?"

A murmur of mistrust and surprise ripples through the crowd, and one disciple protests the folly of the question in such a crowd.

But the Lord does not change His purpose, does not shift His gaze;
persists with His question, as He says,
"Somebody hath touched me:

for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me."
Finding concealment vain, the nameless woman—her radiant countenance bejeweled with swift-falling tears of grateful joy—
casts herself at the Saviour's feet, pours forth the story of her hidden healing.
For all time it must be known that the touch of the pressing crowd upon Christ's person was casual;
that the touch of the nameless woman, even upon His garment, was causal;
that God's believing children are to declare His goodness.

And the divine benediction fell:
"Daughter, be of good comfort:
thy faith hath made thee whole;
go in peace."

Jesus Christ is in one midst today,
He is not far from any one of us.
But the crowd, the world, is closing in.
May not today offer the final chance of healing?

Whatever the past, whatever the need, reach for Him now through the crowd, saying
"If I may but touch His garment,
I SHALL BE WHOLE!"

Steele Resigns; Boyson Assumes WSMC-FM Job

By HARRY SILVERS

Allen Steele, manager of WSMC-FM for the past year and a half, is resigning at the end of this semester as he finishes the requirements for his degree at the college, to be replaced by Jack K. Boyson, senior music major and three-year veteran of WSMC staff work.

Graduating at the end of the semester, Steele, a communications major, will attend the University of Florida, Gainesville, second semester to begin graduate study in radio-television.

Having worked on the station since his freshman year, Steele became manager last year by appointment of the directors of the college-owned station. His term in the top position began on the station staff has been concurrent with the station's drive for increased quality and power—the drive which will culminate within the next few months with the power boost to 80,000 watts.

Steele served one year as regional director of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, a nationwide network of college radio stations, and is presently serving in the higher position of vice president in charge of regions for the IBS.

He leaves SMC as the 200-foot transmitting tower on

Boyson

White Oak ridge nears completion under the direction of Globe Tower and Tank Co. of Henderson, Ky.

Boyson is to act as general manager of the non-commercial broadcast facility until his graduation at the end of the current school year.

"We hope to continue with the present growth and expansion of the station during the next semester," said Boyson.

Dr. Rees Recovering; Returns for Therapy

Dr. C. N. Rees, president of Southern Missionary College, who suffered a stroke around the first of December, is slowly recovering.

for me to answer all of the messages, cards, telegrams, telephone calls, flowers and sympathetic expressions.

"I want to thank everyone for these expressions and for their prayers."

Dr. Rees was hospitalized on Nov. 22 with heart palpitation, which developed into a stroke condition while he was in the hospital. In fact, he was almost ready to come home when he suffered the stroke.

Elder H. H. Schmidt, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the college, and president of the Southern Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, recently wrote the administrative officers of the college—Dr. I. W. Caswell, academic dean; Charles Fleming, Jr., business manager; Gordon Madgwick, dean; and William H. Taylor, director of college relations—that the college would continue with each man assuming the responsibility for his own area and working closely as a team, with Dr. Caswell as coordinator, until such time as the Board of Trustees decides what to do about the situation.

STILL RECOVERING
President C. N. Rees

Dr. Rees is currently taking physical therapy and rehabilitation exercises toward recuperation at the Siskin Foundation in Chattanooga.

He shows gradual improvement, and it is hoped that the physical therapy and rehabilitation will restore him to health in a matter of time.

Mr. Rees said recently: "It is almost physically impossible

Loma Linda Accepts Seven For Medicine and Dentistry

Five Southern Missionary College students have received notice of their acceptance for study at Loma Linda University School of Medicine, Loma Linda, Calif., and two have been admitted to the School of Dentistry.

Those admitted to study medicine are: David G. Jewett, senior chemistry major; Ib B. Madsenpach, senior chemistry major; George J. Murphy, senior chemistry major; Robert B. Summerer, senior biology major; and John L. Waller, senior communications major.

Admitted to study dentistry are two senior biology majors, George Jackson and Dennis Steele.

The five SMC students admitted to the medical school are among 83 at Seventh-day Adventist colleges to whom acceptances were sent, according to Loma Linda University Dean of Admissions Walter B. Clark.

SMC students admitted to study medicine thus total approximately 7.9% of all those accepted from SDA institutions.

Middle Classes Choose Officers For This Year

David Silverstein, a pre-dental student from Atlanta, has been elected junior class president at the first class meeting, held in December.

Other officers are: David Hollis, vice-president; Curtis Carlson, treasurer; Kathy Simmons, secretary; and George Powell, pastor.

David Silverstein, who was sophomore vice-president last year, said that he hoped the class could have more and better activities this year.

Other officers elected: Kay Hartwell, vice-president; Donna Burke, secretary; Jenn Hagen, treasurer; and Andy McKee, pastor.

This year's class promises to have "big and better activities" than ever, according to a class spokesman.

Rolf Announces 2nd Term Class, Security Analysis

A new course called "Security Analysis" will be offered second semester by the business administration department.

According to the instructor, Dr. Cecil Rolf, the course will educate the student about the various types of securities and how to evaluate their investment potential. Also covered will be mutual funds and formula investment plans.

At the present time the class is scheduled for 1.30 MW. There are no prerequisites and three hours upper division credit will be given.

Yost Accepts Associate Editorship on the 'Review'

Elder F. Donald Yost, assistant professor of journalism here for the past two and a half years, has accepted a call to be an associate editor of the Review and Herald.

Leaving at the end of first semester, Elder Yost and his family will move to Washington, D.C., where he will begin work on the staff of the official Seventh-day Adventist church organ.

Presently completing his qualifying examinations for the Ph.D. in communications at Syracuse University, Syracuse, N. Y., Elder Yost joined the staff of the college in 1964, though he did not begin teaching duties until 1965, spending the intervening year working on his degree at Syracuse.

His field of concentration is religious magazine journalism.

Since his arrival on the SMC campus, Elder Yost has helped in restructuring the communications major by strengthening the level's journalism branch, teaching classes in basic and advanced aspects of the area. He, along with other members of the "special focus" SMC department, has worked to increase library holdings in journalism and communications, and to add equipment.

One of his most important accomplishments, according to Dr. Gordon M. Hyde, chairman of the communications department, has been the construction of a photography laboratory for training in photo-journalism. He has also managed a photography workshop and academy publications workshops on campus.

Elder Yost received the call to the Review position at the time of the last Autumn Council of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

His major responsibility with the Review will be for the news and report section of the magazine.

"My training in handling religious news," he said, "leads me to hope that I will be able to help provide the Review's readers with a worthy picture of the most significant events in the Adventist world."

Spending six and a half years on the staff of the Youth's Instructor—four of them as editor—

Leamon Short Replaces Yost In Journalism

Mr. Leamon Short has been named by the college to succeed Elder Don Yost, assistant professor of journalism, when he leaves to become an associate editor of the Review and Herald.

Mr. Short, a graduate of La Sierra College, Riverside, Calif., has recently completed his master's degree in journalism at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Born near Knoxville, Tenn., and reared in Virginia, Mr. Short has a "specific desire to return to the South to teach." Completing his military service, he worked his way through college and graduate school, and has worked on the staff of a California newspaper and of Westways, a west coast magazine.

He is married to the former Kathleen Ellich, whose father is on the staff of Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, Calif.

Mr. Short moved on campus January 10 and will replace Elder Yost at the beginning of second semester, and will also take over sponsorship of the Southern Memories, college yearbook, which past Elder Yost has held this year and last.

The Complete Soldier

SMC ALUMNUS
United States Army
OCS, Fort Sill, Oklahoma

Seventh-day Adventists have long defended the "I-AO" Selective Service classification. Which means that they don't protest war as such, but only the part that requires murder of fellow humans.

The Army has ample provisions for conscientious objectors in its regulations. Nevertheless, despite the Medical Cadet Corps that occasionally operate on SDA academy campuses, there are some young conscientious objectors who are not sure, upon arrival at the military induction station, how to verify their status as noncombatants.

The basic problem is making sure that the right person knows that you are a conscientious objector. The more practical problem with THAT problem, however, is finding out who the right person is.

A screening of your papers should relay this information to somebody. But you can never be sure, and conscientious objectors do represent a decided minority of those inducted—so your unusual classification might be shunted along for later consideration, or simply overlooked.

You shouldn't let that happen. Tell everybody who questions you that your status is I-AO. That way you can be SURE the right person knows. This initial understanding will save a lot of problems later on—especially when it comes time to march to the rifle range and you decide then that you can't go. As the military say, they will "bring em back on you."

Actually, however, conscientious objectors are not real problem. But Sabbathkeeping might be.

In the Army, one's religion, by chaplain groups, is either Catholic, Protestant, or Jewish. Seventh-day Adventists do not fit readily into any one of those army slots. Protestants, by convention and working definition, worship on Sundays. Some Jews may attend services on Saturdays but SDA's are not exactly in that congregation, nor, you will of course agree, do they fall in with the Catholics. It is expected that Protestants, as mentioned, worship on Sunday; but for a PROTESTANT Seventh-day Adventist to worship on SATURDAY is an interesting unpled commitment to many Army personnel and for an SDA to expect to miss inspections and the hell day of work normally performed on Saturday is even more interesting. Nevertheless, if one is inducted and subsequently placed in the Medical Corps, at least part of the Sabbath problem is solved—from the SDA end. Being in the Medical Corps, you work on Saturday as usual in Army routine, and thus cause the Army no problems; but Adventists feel, as a rule, that treatment of a sick or Sabbath in accordance with proper observance of that day.

A few, however, do not wait to be drafted into military service. Feeling that they have an obligation to their country, or planning to receive a "McNamara Traveling Fellowship" and GI benefits for later education, they enlist. Some may want to be in the Medical Corps following enlistment (and if that is where you want to serve, the chances are probably higher that your preferences will be honored after enlistment than after being drafted); others may want to study electronics repair, administration, or other noncombatant activities.

SUPPOSE you have enlisted. Suppose also that you would like Sabbath privileges.

The FIRST thing to do is talk to your commanding officer. Explain your religion to him truthfully. Not like the private who told his commander that Saturday NIGHT was a religious holiday for him, and was thereupon immediately asked to read aloud to the CO the exact limits of Sabbath observance from an SDA publication that a local Adventist minister had somehow furnished him! Explain that you know your religion might cause a problem in the Army, but that you were patriotic (there is no need to wave the flag TOO much, though) and wanted to serve your country. As a rule this will be all that is necessary.

If, however, you do have problems with the company or battery commander, then ask the first sergeant for an appointment with the Protestant chaplain. When you see the chaplain, explain the problem as before. This should eliminate your problem, but if not, ask the chaplain if there is anything further he can do.

If you meet objections on this level, the battalion commander will have a weekly "commander's time" in which he will discuss any problem with a member of his command. Make sure that you see him only in the order outlined here, and that you use the "chain of command" throughout. A failure to do so could impair your success in any Army undertaking. If the battalion commander does not accept your proposition, go to see the brigade commander (a full colonel) and explain your problem to him. He has been in the Army a long time and no problem is new to him. If even at brigade level you do not achieve success, ask how to appeal higher. In the Army it is generally possible to appeal any decision to higher headquarters.

The main point here is to emphasize the necessity of taking care of these problems as they arise. If, after establishing your case in one command, you are to be transferred, ask your commander to write a letter to the commander of your next unit to explain your situation—and, of course, make sure that he can say that you were a good soldier and were an asset to his command.

F. Donald Yost

stant editor—Elder Yost also edited the MV Kit, published by the MV Department of the GC, and taught English and journalism at Newbury Park Academy, Newbury Park, Calif.

Now completing a book aimed at Adventist writers—and tentatively titled Writing for Adventist Magazines—Elder Yost is also under assignment from the Home Study Institute, Washington, D.C., to write a course in religious writing.

His book, to contain chapters dealing with the call to Christian writing, how to write well, the attitudes of SDA editors, and the manuscript need of 30 Adventist magazines, will probably be used as a text in the course.

He and his wife, Lois, and children—Bob, 15, and Patty, 11—will live in Adelphi, Md., a suburb of Washington.

Mr. Leaman Short (see story on p. 1), recent graduate of the University of California, Los Angeles, has been on campus since the first of January and will be taking over Elder Yost's classes second semester.

Elder Hasel Awarded Grant By Danforth Foundation

Elder Gerhard F. Hasel, assistant professor of religion at SMC, has been awarded a Danforth Foundation grant for further graduate study at Vanderbilt University Divinity School, where he is presently a candidate for the Ph.D.

Joining the SMC faculty in 1963 to teach Greek, Elder Hasel is now under appointment to Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich.

Danforth grants for graduate study in 1967-68 have been awarded to 38 faculty members

25 Students Get Certificates For $44,000 Sales

Twenty-five SMC students received canvassing certificates during chapel, Dec. 8, for selling a total of approximately $44,000 worth of literature last summer.

The chapel program, under the direction of Elder Roy Chamberlin, featured Elder I. H. Ihrg, Southern Publishing Association manager. Elder Ihrg challenged students to "earn and learn by a summer's canvassing — the canvassing work needs to be enlarged!" He said, "This work will be one of the last areas for presenting the gospel before Christ comes."

Elder Chamberlin, associate publishing department secretary of the Southern Union, and the five conference publishing secretaries presented the certificates to the students.

Curtis Carlson, MV (TASK) director of student relations, recently held a workshop with MV officers and religious activity leaders on the campus of Forest Lake Academy.

This workshop was the first of several like sessions which are being planned with MV officers in most of the academies of the Southern Union.

Discussed were new projects and programs with the overall purpose of strengthening relations between the two societies and improving the spiritual aspect of student life on both campuses.

Elder Holbrook Writes Column For 'These Times'

Elder Frank Holbrook, assistant professor of religion, is currently preparing for These Times magazine in a monthly article entitled "Your Questions Answered."

Elder Holbrook answers questions, mostly from non-Adventists, concerning such subjects as explanation of texts, personal problems and youth standards.

Elder Holbrook states that he has received letters from over half of the fifty states and Canada, also, from places as far away as South America and West Africa.

BASKETBALL

By GEORGE SMOTHERSON

As of this writing "A" League Basketball is entering the second week of play. For the first time at SMC the Intramural League is composed of five teams, breaking the "old tradition" of four. The expansion to a five team league was long opposed by some on the grounds that it would spread the available basketball talent too thin. This, no one will attempt to dispute, it has done. However the advantages of a fifth team, will in the long run, prove that the move was a wise one.

First: It allows an opportunity for an additional eight players to taste of the "glory" of "A" League competition, which, after having done so they may promptly reappreciate their definition of glory. Some might even wish for the "active" life of "B" League after wearing out the seat of their pants riding the bench. Seriously, we welcome them with open arms and wish them well.

Second: It provides for a more "variety" of teams which means each one won't be meeting the others so often, and tempers won't be quite so prone to overheat, as has been the case in the past. "Familiarity," after all, "breeds contempt."

Third: Even though the quality of team personnel is admittedly not so "14 carat" as before, the teams appear, upon superficial examination, to be better balanced than in past years.

Refereeing is a subject certain to incite differing opinions. This year has already proved to be no exception. "Grandstand referees" are the most annoying kind. Strangely enough they always seem to be individuals who have either: played very little basketball, if at all, or are a player of inferior ability. After playing basketball at SMC for three years I have seen all kinds of refereeing: good, bad, and indifferent, but can never recall playing in, or watching, a game that was won or lost because of the quality of officiating. A game is almost always won because one team outplays the other. When players complain about the referees it is usually a cover up attempt to excuse their "losing" a game.

The basketball fans at SMC are undoubtedly the quietest to be found anywhere. Yelling for a favorite team seems to be an unheard of thing. A rousing, good-natured cheer would probably scare most of the players out of their wits.

Vandals, Danes Undefeated In Intramural Basketball

Jan. 4: Jeff Albright's Vandals and Jerry Stefansen's Danes are undefeated as SMC Intramural Basketball enters the second week of play. In the season's first action Albright's Vandals defeated Bruce Elliston's Celts 52-45. Led by the fine outside shooting of Albright (17 points) and strong team defensive play the Vandals racked up their first win of the young season. Ron Johnson was high point man for the Celts with 15.

Jan. 5: Jerry Stefansen's Danes breezed by Bill Rasmie's Huns 48-37. Employing a steamrolling fastbreak headed by Stefansen (21 points) and outstanding team rebounding the Danes were never in difficulty. Rasmie scored 16 to lead the Hun scoring.

Jan. 8: Rasmie's Huns found the winning touch and inflicted the second loss of the season on Elliston's Celts 67-50. Jerry Wallis (21) and Heinz Weigand (19) led the Hun point spree.

Jan. 9: Albright's Vandals defeated Ron Stevens's Gauls 55-50 in a closely contested game. The Gauls bolstered by the red hot shooting of their captain Stevens threatened continually to take the lead from the Vandals who led throughout most of the game. In the last three minutes of play Albright scored two clutch baskets to put the game on ice for the Vandals. Stevens scored 27 points to lead both teams and Albright tallied 22.

Dr. Chinn Directs Student Research Project on Acids

Dr. Clarence Chinn, associate professor of chemistry at the college, conducted a research project to find out the "partition coefficients" of various organic acids.

Students participating in the project are sophomores Amy Thacker, Jan Harvey, Richard Daley, Dan Lewis and Richard G. Carey, and freshman David Castleberg. They are all chemistry majors.

The project is designed to produce necessary data for Dr. Chinn's work on the "chelation of metal ions by various acids." His work relates specifically to the metal Indium. This project became necessary during the course of Dr. Chinn's work at the University of Tennessee last summer, when he found that the coefficients he needed were "not in the literature."

The work consists of mixing water with various organic compounds, such as alcohol, and adding a few drops of the acid under study. After mixing (by means of an ingenious machine resembling a rotary barbecue grill with plates for small bottles) for a period of about 24 hours, a sample is taken of the water and of the compound. By titration with a base of known concentration, the acid content of each is found, giving the ratio of distribution of the acid. Interpretation of these data give the necessary partition coefficient.

The result of this project, in addition to being used for Dr. Chinn's research, will be published for general use.

Theology Majors Now Number 127

One-hundred and twenty-seven theology majors are presently enrolled at SMC, including five in this year's new theology major for women.

The sophomore class contains the highest number of theology majors with 40. The freshman class has 31, the junior class, 38, and the senior class, 20.

Special Groups Use Cafeteria For Meetings

Groups making recent use of the college cafeteria's Green Room for social gatherings have included the Senior Citizens of Colledge and the local chapter of the Atlantic Union College Alumni Society, according to Mr. Rasmus Luce, food director for the college.

Guest speakers for the AUC alumni gathering were Mrs. Rochelle Kilgore, professor emerita of English at AUC, and Mrs. Marion Seitz Summons, educational superintendent for the Atlantic Union Conference. Featured at the 35-person meeting, presided over by Mr. William Higgins, president of the group, and Mrs. Raymond Lee, secretary, was a "birthday" cake, specially made and decorated with a log cabin by Mr. Ed Bowen of the cafeteria staff. The cake commemorated AUC's 65th anniversary.

The recently organized Senior Citizens group, with a membership of approximately 50 retired denominational and institutional workers in the area, met in the Green Room for a buffet supper prepared by Mr. Bowen and Mr. Hubert Smith, of the cafeteria staff. President of the group is Mr. H. B. Lundquist, of Colledge.

Futcher Reports That New Classes Come Next Term

Dr. C. F. W. Futcher, director of admissions and records, reports that several new courses will be offered second semester.

Not originally listed in the schedule of classes for the fall semester are three courses: In the behavioral science department, "psychology of personality," taught by Dr. LaVeta Payne is offered. In the home economics department, "demonstration techniques," taught by Mrs. Harriette B. Hanson is scheduled. Contrary to former plans, Mr. Delmar Lovejoy will teach "organization and administration of physical education and recreation," due to the demand among physical education majors for this course.

Mr. Wayne E. Vandever, who is on a leave of absence at Michigan State University where he is getting his doctorate degree in accounting, will return second semester to teach the combined sections of principles of accounting now taught by Mr. Kenneth Spears, director of student finance at SMC.

Press Conference Quizzes Officials Of Investing Club

A "mock" press conference was the order of the day recently in Elder Don Yost's newsrooming class at SMC.

Members of the Collegedale Investment Club met with the group to give realistic experience in building reports and journalists. Mr. Richard C. Stanley, assistant professor of office administration, and Mr. Robert Merchant, treasurer of the college and assistant professor of business administration, discussed the club's purposes and operations since its formation a year ago.

Total amount of money invested now stands at approximately $1,300. "The club has done about average for clubs and mutual fund organizations of this type," stated Mr. Merchant, who is treasurer of the 25-member faculty-student organization.

Campus Women Hear Wentland On Viet Crisis

"Vietnam Perspectives" were presented to a 125-person audience at a recent meeting of the Campus Women's Club, by Elder R. H. Wentland, Jr., assistant pastor of the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church and a former missionary to Vietnam; Dr. Jerome L. Clark, professor of history at the college; and Dr. Everett T. Watrous, professor of history and head of the department.

Meeting in a local home, the group saw Elder Wentland's slides of Vietnam and heard him discuss cultural and religious aspects of life in that country.

Dr. Watrous presented the political and military history of Vietnam up to the 1954 Geneva Accords, and Dr. Clark discussed the history of the country from 1954 to the present.

Elder Wentland reported that the Seventh-day Adventist work in Vietnam is growing.

Library Makes Xerox Copier Use Available

Now available for student and staff use is a Xerox 914 copier in the foyer of Daniel's Memorial Library, reports Mrs. Iris Clapp, library assistant.

Rented from the local Xerox agency, the copier—valued at $29,000—will reproduce pages from magazines, books, and other publications, and will copy legal and letter size sheets. Virtually anything printed can be copied, according to Xerox ads, including music for educational purposes. "Everything but securities!" comments Mrs. Clapp.

Fee for use of the copier is ten cents per Xerox legal-size page.

There is a person on duty at all times to make copies.

Elder Wentland will present his slides and comments on the country again, in February, before the International Relations Club of the college, according to Dr. Clark, sponsor of the IRC. Also on the agenda for the IRC for later in the year is the annual convention of the Tennessee International Relations Club, to be attended by a delegation from the SMC chapter.

Rolfe Lectures On Inflation At 'Sages' Meet

Dr. Cecil Rolfe, associate professor of business administration at SMC, spoke on "Inflation, Its Causes and Cures," in another of the "Sage's Session" lecture series recently in the Green Room. Sage's Session is a lecture series on contemporary national and international problems sponsored by the SA scholarship committee.

Dr. Rolfe, who obtained his doctorate in economics from the University of Maryland, College Park, Md., outlined the mechanics of inflation in general and the factors involved in the current U.S. inflation in particular. "It's not all government spending," according to Dr. Rolfe.

Dr. Hefferlin Gives Report On Student Research

Undergraduate participation in department research projects will receive a generally favorable report in a paper by Dr. Ray Hefferlin, head of the SMC physics department, to be read before the American Association of Physics Teachers, Jan. 30, in New York City.

UC's Ramsey Recites Poetry At Convocation

Sponsored by the SA scholarship committee, Dr. Paul Ramsey, poet in residence at the University of Chattanooga, was a guest speaker at chapel before Christmas. He recited and commented upon poetry, much of it his own. Professor George Connor, chairman of the Department of English at the University of Chattanooga, accompanied Dr. Ramsey and introduced him.

After spending time in the navy during World War II, Dr. Ramsey received his A.B. from the University of North Carolina and his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. Since graduation, Dr. Ramsey has spent his time in traveling, teaching, lecturing, and writing. He authored a book of criticism, The Timely and the Just, and a book of poetry, In an Ordinary Place. Dr. Ramsey, considered a "fundamentalist," drew much of his material from the Bible and nature.

The main problem involved in implementing the idea of student research, according to the paper, is that—in the experience of the SMC physics department—approximately one hour of staff time is required for every hour of undergraduate research time.

The department of physics at SMC has been using student help over the past 11 years in carrying out departmental research. Dr. Hefferlin's 10-minute contributed paper will report on the department's experience with this student work, presenting a summary of the work done and an overall favorable evaluation of the idea of using undergraduates in research.

There are presently five students working with the physics staff on research, according to Dr. Hefferlin.

The annual AAPT convention, at which Dr. Hefferlin's paper will be presented, will be held concurrently, and in the same building with the American Physical Association convention. Around 5,000 physicists will attend the combined meetings.

Dr. Hefferlin also presented a lecture, "Twelve Billion Light Years Out on a Limb," at the Bernard Observatory in Brainerd, Tenn., recently. The lecture dealt with the method of measuring such fantastically large distances.

McColpin Tells Police Rights To SMC Patrol

Glenn T. McColpin, assistant district attorney of Hamilton County, spoke recently at the weekly meeting of the Collegedale Patrol.

Mr. McColpin, speaking on criminal law, emphasized the rights and privileges of the police officer. Arrest and trial procedures were also discussed, and Mr. McColpin pointed out the requirements of the 1965 Civil Rights Law.

It was a "worthwhile hour" according to Dean of Students Gordon A. Madgwick.

The lecture and discussion led by the assistant district attorney, a member of the Chattanooga SDA Church, is another phase of the training program for the Collegedale Patrol, directed by W. W. Platt, chief of police for Collegedale.

Prof. Rigby Talks on WW's Biology Program

Professor Don Rigby, head of the biology department at Walla Walla College, Walla Walla, Wash., will be on campus Jan. 19 to discuss Walla Walla's graduate program in biology with SMC biology students, according to Dr. H. H. Kuhlman, head of the SMC department.

Meeting in the science building, interested students will be able to question Prof. Rigby concerning graduate work in biology, and more particularly, about the master's degree now offered by Walla Walla in the area.

There are presently 24 junior and senior biology majors at SMC, and an equivalent number of biology minors and lowerclassmen, who might be interested in talking with Prof. Rigby, according to Dr. Kuhlman.

Twenty-five Southern Missionary College Nursing Students Capped in Baccalaureate Dedication and Promotion Services

Southern Missionary College honored 25 nursing students at their Baccalaureate Dedication and Promotion Service Friday evening, Jan. 27.

Four seniors received the Division of Nursing pin distinguishing the graduate nurse. This was the first time they wore the familiar white uniform of the graduate nurse and a cap with the black band.

Twenty-one sophomores were promoted to the Orlando, Fla.

campus where they will begin actual hospital training. "This was the last official capping ceremony for sophomores," stated Dr. Harriett Smith-Reeves, chairman of SMC's Division of Nursing. Hereafter, all nursing students will be issued their caps along with the student uniform.

Elder Bruce Johnston, chairman of the College's Division of Religion, was the guest speaker. Dr. Reeves presented the pins. Seniors honored were: Elizabeth Ann Goadge, Gloria Carol Lewis, Carole Jeanne Williams, and Mary Mildred Williamson. Sophomores capped were: Barbara Castleberg, Beatrice Couden, Doris Dyer, Suzanne Gallion, Betty Harris, Jackie Hiser, Jacqueline Kinsman, Ina Miller, Sylvia Mizelle, Lenetta Paddock, Christine Payne, Carolyn Pettengill, Virginia Platt, Dora Pons, Kathryn Schneider, Elita Seelye, Rilla Tol, and Mary Ward.

Three sophomores were promoted in absentia: Anne Cronmiller, Rosemary Ingenlath, and Teresa Rogers.

Others on the program were Miss Catherine Glatho, associate chairman of the Division of Nursing who gave the roll call, Jacinto Cobos in a violin solo and Zerita Hagerman in a vocal solo.

1966 Sophomore Nurses Last Group for Ceremony

The recent capping ceremony for nursing students marked the end of a traditional pattern—the 1966 class was the last group of sophomores to be capped, according to Dr. Harriett Smith-Reeves, chairman of SMC's Division of Nursing.

Under the new baccalaureate degree (four-year) nursing program, students will spend the first two years on the SMC campus and obtain actual hospital training and experience before going to the Orlando, Fla., campus in their junior year.

Also they will spend just one year there instead of a year and a half. They will return to SMC for the senior year.

In the new curriculum, capping would be meaningless since the students will receive their caps and student uniforms at the beginning of their freshman year. Classes will be distinguished according to the number of stripes on the caps.

Dr. Reeves stated that dedication services would continue for the baccalaureate degree nursing students.

Freshmen Choose Doolittle, Martin To Top Offices

The freshman class of the college was organized Feb. 2.

To fill the office of president, the class elected Dick Doolittle, a theology-history major from Madison, Tenn.

Norma Young, a psychology major from Ballwin, Mo., was elected secretary.

Jane Travis, a communications major from Atlanta, Ga., was elected treasurer.

Serving as class pastor is James Richardson, a theology major from Fort Walton Beach, Fla.

Elected sergeant-at-arms is Bob Skender, a biology major from Charlotte, N.C.

The SMC department of nursing also offers the two-year associate degree in science degree in nursing, preparing the student for state board licensure exams. The baccalaureate program is more rigorous, professional training.

SMC baccalaureate nursing sophomores are "capped" at beginning of second semester of their sophomore year. Subsequent B.S. nursing students will leave Collegedale campus in middle of the sophomore year, but will remain, to spend entire junior year on Orlando campus.

MV Presents 11 Students, Knechtle, in Prayer Week

Southern Missionary College students recently held an MV sponsored Week of Spiritual Emphasis with daily half-hour meetings in the Collegedale church on "God's Hand As I Perceive It."

Eleven students from five departments spoke and Emilio B. Knechtle, headmaster of St. Luke's Preparatory School, New Canaan, Conn., climaxed the week on Friday night and Sabbath with his testimony of God's leading in his life.

Knechtle has served as chairman of the Protestant Council of New York City and as co-chairman of the New York World's Fair Religion Commit-

Presentation of Seniors, March 23; Pettis to Speak

Senior Presentation, originally scheduled for Feb. 16, has been postponed to March 23, according to Jim Williams, senior class president.

Speaker for the occasion will be Mr. Jerry Pettis (R. Calif.), the first Seventh-day Adventist to be elected to Congress.

The formal presentation ceremony, featuring robot seniors, will be on Thursday evening.

President's Council Votes To End 'Dark Ages' Here

SMC now has "all night lights."

Beginning Jan. 15, lights in the dormitory rooms were not turned out by the residence hall dean as has been the custom from time immemorial at this college.

The new policy, noted Dean of Students Gordon A. Madgwick, was passed unanimously by the President's Council of the college on Jan. 11, prior to which the Dean's Council had studied and approved the policy change.

"Students will not have to leave their rooms to study or prepare for bed," commented Dean Madgwick. "—as they have had to do in the past when lights were turned out at around 11 p.m."

The policy change was initiated after careful study and research, emphasized Dean Madgwick, and the decision to leave lights on grew out of discussion initiated last year in the student-faculty council to revise SMC and You, the student handbook.

At that time, opinion among both students and faculty was divided, according to Dean Madgwick.

"We realize that there will be—as with any policy—both advantages and disadvantages," said Dean Madgwick; "but at this time we feel the 'pros' outweigh the 'cons.'"

As to whether the change will be permanent, Dean Madgwick had this to say: "All new policies are subject to reevaluation. But we are not likely to regress, though we are going to continue searching for better ways to implement policies."

'Memories' Staff Reports Progress; Short Is Sponsor

Southern Memories editor Ed Shafer reports that the yearbook is progressing, relatively on schedule, under the guidance of its new sponsor, Mr. Ezumon Short, instructor in journalism.

Mr. Short replaced Elder F. Donald Yost as sponsor of the yearbook, when Elder Yost left to become associate editor of the Review and Herald.

Shafer reports that the main emphasis during the next month will be "groups"—photographing such assemblages as the SA officers, the music organizations, the professional clubs, and others.

Replacing Elaine Holt, who quit the staff as photo secretary for lack of time, is Donna Mills. Joining the staff in December was Larry Bogar, who will serve as managing editor.

Robert Bolton Presents Recital For Music Degree

Robert Bolton, saxophone major, presented his senior recital Sunday evening, Jan. 15, in the Fine Arts Chapel. He was assisted by baritone James Woods.

The main number of the program, Sonata No. 2 in B Flat Minor by Handel, is a violin transcription from the Baroque period. It is recognized as a specially difficult for the saxophone because of the awkward leaps between notes.

The recital, a requirement for all music majors, is the culmination of four years work for Bolton.

Woods, junior music major, sang four numbers, including Music I Heard With You, Once A Lady Was Here, My Lady Walks in Lanelines, and Bright Is the Ring of Words. He was accompanied by Doug Mowery, sophomore music student.

Other numbers by Robert were Gigue by J. M. Leclair, Serenade Italienne from Suite Romantique by R. Planol, and Elgie by H. Reutter.

Robert was accompanied at the piano by his wife and Ketti Ippach. His final number was Sicilienne by P. Lauer.

dollars for a recent Billy Graham Crusade in New York City. Sunday evening, Lee James, a sophomore elementary education major, Raphael Santos, a freshman from Guam, and Doug Brown, a sophomore theology major, spoke on God's hand "In My Life," each one giving a testimony of how they became Seventh-day Adventists and why they came to SMC. Monday night, Bill Tucker, a junior theology major, revealed how God had guided our church in the past, and Kathy Perrier, a freshman nursing student, told us "Why I Want to Work in My Church."

Tuesday evening the subject was "God's Hand in the World About Me," with Annette Palm, junior chemistry major and Dave Jewett, junior pre-med student telling about some of the wonders in nature. Bill Strong, sophomore theology major and Wallace Burns, junior theology major, talked Wednesday night about God's "Disturbing My Life." Thursday evening brought to an end the student speakers with Carol Johnson, a freshman nursing student and Ivan Whidden, a junior theology student, revealing God's hand "In My Future." Their subject was the Second Coming.

Knecht, in his Friday evening sermon, called "How Jesus Has Led Me," told of his progress from an ungodly life to membership in the SDA Church.

According to Elder Bruce Johnston, chairman of the department of religion, and several others of the faculty and students, the week has made a real impact on the thinking of many of the students because of student participation and because of the uniqueness and brevity of the program format.

A taped recording, narrated by Dr. Jon Penner of the communications department, introduced the program each evening.

W R H Girls Purchase Books, Games, with Dorm Fine Money

New recreational equipment and books have been purchased for the occupants of the Women's Residence Hall as a "Christmas gift."

The recreational equipment consists, in part, of two ping-pong tables, two bicycle exercisers, and carrom, "puff ball," and Chinese checker games.

According to Miss Mooy, associate dean of women, the equipment will be "used for dormitory residents and co-recreational activities at specified times."

A small library, including works of Ellen G. White, was also purchased and is now catalogued and can be used by any WRH resident.

Some of the books contained in the library are the Conflict of the Ages series, Testimonies to the Church, Seventh-day Adventist Bible Commentary, Review and Herald articles, the 1967 Reading Course books, and other essential writings.

This new equipment was not purchased out of the regular dormitory budget but from a special fund intended for this use, accumulated from various fines levied on the residents of the building.

Dr. C. N. Rees Resigns Presidency of SMC

Cassell Appointed Acting Head; Rees in School Work 31 Years

J. W. CASSELL
Acting President

C. N. REES
Into Semi-Retirement

Dr. C. N. Rees, president of Southern Missionary College, has voluntarily relinquished his post as chief administrator of the college. Dr. Rees suffered a stroke around the first of December; he indicated that he will go into semi-retirement.

Dr. J. W. Cassell, Jr., academic dean of SMC, has been elected acting president and will serve until such time as the Board of Trustees installs a new president. He will continue as chief executive officer until a new president arrives on campus, which will probably be around June 1.

Dr. Rees, 59 years of age, has served as president of the college since 1958 and has a record of 31 years service in the educational work of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

He received his doctorate degree in school administration at the University of Nebraska in 1949. He formerly served as president of Southwestern Union College at Keene, Texas, before coming to SMC.

Dr. Cassell joined the SMC faculty in 1963. He received his doctorate degree in administration of higher education from Michigan State University in 1961.

Serving first as high school principal at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich., he was dean of students at Andrews University from 1960 to 1963.

Born on Sept. 12, 1908, in Mount Vernon, Ohio, Dr. Rees attended the Seventh-day Adventist parochial schools in Lincoln, Neb., receiving his B.A. in English from Union College in Lincoln. He married the former Fae V. Cowin of Oakdale, Neb., in 1937, who is presently teaching English at Collegedale Academy. They have a son, David, 21, a student at the University of Maryland School of Law, Baltimore.

Dr. Rees is a member of a number of professional and honorary organizations, including the National Education Association, Tennessee Education Association and Phi Delta Kappa.

He is also a member and officer of several civic and religious organizations in the area. He is currently a member of the Kiwanis Club of Chattanooga, serving on three committees.

International Relations, Education and Fellowship, and Program and Music. He is a member of the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church.

He served on the Board of Trustees of Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich. He was a member of three other college boards of trustees, namely, Southern Missionary College, Madison College, Madison, Tenn., and Oakwood College, Huntsville, Ala. He was a member of the General Conference Committee of Seventh-day Adventists. In addition, he was a member of the Executive Committee of the Georgia-Cum-

Barnes Speaks on Ethics; Emphasizes Christian Love

By MIKE FOXWORTH

Dr. Joseph N. Barnes, associate professor of religion and director of the Human Dynamics Research Institute at Walla Walla College, College Place, Wash., was the guest speaker for the Student Association Social Ethics Week here Feb. 14-18.

The theme of the week, "Search and You Will Find," was the emphasis behind such topics as "Certainty," "Meaning," "Love," and "Freedom." Concerning Christian ethics

Dr. Barnes stated: "Love is a principle rather than a feeling and therefore is intelligent rather than blind; it is the basic essence of Christian ethics. This love is absolute because it is of God, and 'God is love.' This love expresses itself in relative ways in different human situations, the social manifestation of these expressions gives order to individual and community relationships known as law. Law is not to be the master but the servant of man, Jesus pointed out: 'The Sabbath was made for man; not man for the Sabbath.' In relating law as love it is essential that we give love the preeminent place."

Dr. Barnes studied at Howard Divinity School, New York Theological Seminary, and earned his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in Religious Education at New York University. Before joining the faculty at Walla Walla College in 1961 he served as Director of the New York Center, a Seventh-day Adventist evangelistic headquarters.

Concurrent with his present academic duties, Dr. Barnes serves on the board of the Washington State Youth Guidance Center in Walla Walla, and as president of the Walla Walla County Mental Health Association.

General Assembly Rejects WSA-AM Radio as Project

The general assembly of the Student Association meeting in chapel on Feb. 9, voted 356 to 292 to reject WSA, proposed campus carrier current AM radio station, as an SA project for the current school year.

The decision came after approximately 30 minutes of debate from the floor.

WSA, proposed as an SA project late in last school year, and revived on a more substantial basis this year, had just entered schedule a full week of programming through the week of Feb. 6 through 13, calling WSA to a vote in SA chapel on Feb. 14, and if approved, to spend the remaining 20 days setting up WSA's studios, while continuing to broadcast from WSMC-FM's studios.

However, a change in the chapel schedule moved the SA meeting up to Feb. 9. The Student Senate, meeting the night before, voted to present WSA for a vote immediately as the next scheduled SA chapel was not until March, approximately a month away.

The WSA committee, consisting of George Powell, Nancy Bull, Harry Estep, Janne Hugdins, and Bob DuPuy, was represented by its chairman, Powell and DuPuy, who were on the platform to answer ques-

1031 Enroll Here To Begin Classes Second Semester

Registration second semester at SMC is at an all-time high, with 1,031 enrolled on the Collegedale, Orlando, Fla., and Madison, Tenn., campuses.

Although less than the enrollment of 1,146 students first semester, this drop is "the usual 10% decline" for second semester, according to Miss Mary Elam, assistant registrar.

Of the total, 562 are enrolled at Collegedale, 47 at Orlando, and 20 at the Madison campus. The freshman class leads in enrollment with 140 men and 186 women; the sophomore class having 152 men and 170 women, juniors 124 men and 99 women, and the seniors 78 men and 55 women.

Eleven men and 36 women are enrolled as special students.

What Instead?

Give WSA a Chance

It is with regret that we saw the proposed on-campus radio station, WSA-AM, voted down in general assembly meeting recently.

Exactly why we regret it is a more difficult matter to analyze.

It was not until the last day of pre-voting debate that we became convinced that the project was worthwhile and should be supported by the Student Association. We heard the pro's and con's of the controversy, and were honestly persuaded that the con's had the stronger case—that the station was not a worthwhile project. After all, it did seem to be true that the village students would never be able to obtain clear reception; that the Student Association had no funds available for the project; that there were 14 other radio stations already operating in the Chattanooga area, offering almost the complete spectrum of radio lines; that WSMC-FM had already "covered the market" on campus talent needed to run a broadcast facility of any significant quality; and so forth.

These arguments were convincing—until it occurred to us that there was one remaining factor that changed the entire complexion of the debate: If not WSA-AM, what? The disableness answer—nothing. It is now late in the year; we are approaching mid-term exams for second semester—and we have no other prospect with any more near-term, groundwork and preliminary effort put into it, as WSA-AM (with all its defects) can boast.

Students support for the radio station is manifestly not unanimous. But what other SA administrations have even given the student body a CHANCE to vote on the year's project? As we recall, the project has in the past simply been PRESENTED to the general assembly.

We would urge that the station be reconsidered. It does have possibilities and potential. It does have much of the necessary technical forethought already "ironed out." Why not try it out?

With even minimal support—both financial and moral—we believe the station can surpass its record for the three days of trial broadcasting which preceded the vote. If it doesn't work out, scrap it. One SA projects haven't worked out in the long run. This one might not. But it might. And it is that point, it will be both a delicate service to the students of this school and a real monument to this year's Student Association.

Appreciates Barnes

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my appreciation to Warner Swanner and his associates at the Student Association for their messages and have been searching for just the words to express my appreciation for their intellectual and spiritual strength.

Yours sincerely,

Barnes a Blessing

Dear Sir:

The first evening that Dr. Joseph N. Barnes was scheduled to speak here for last worship, many students went to the meeting armed with text books, prepared to study if the going got hot. Very few of these books were opened, however. Dr. Barnes held the attention of his audience that evening in a very unusual way at which he subsequently spoke.

He presented social ethics in a brand new light (new to us anyway). He made US THINK! Rarely has a visitor to this campus stimulated so much intellectual discussion among students as he has.

I spoke with several faculty members who expressed the opinion that the last night of the chapel to SMC is money a day. But that was not the chapel of the Tuesday but an effort to suggest that perhaps we should not be so sure of our social ethics speaker was so good after all.

I find it hard to believe that we invited a person of Dr. Barnes' stature in a listening from the thought he presented. Hundreds of others can do the same.

Sincerely,

Ray Munner

More From School X

Dear Editor,

As a student at Andrews University I feel that Mr. William Lee, whose letter appeared in the January 1967 issue of the Advertiser, is either very underinformed about our school or has made some very irrational generalizations about the status of Andrews University in calling it "The former Adventist school up in the mid-west." The mere expression of a few accolades by one of the students does not seem to provide sufficient basis for this statement.

In order to quell any doubts which may have arisen on the minds of the 127 theology majors enrolled at SMC and other people who may be interested in our University, I would like to remind you that the faculty of Andrews University "regards the conserving and transmitting of the spiritual heritage of Seventh-day Adventists as two of its basic functions" (A. U. Bulletin). The leaders at our college are members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, and our vice-president for student affairs, Dr. Frank Kautel, was recently ordained to the gospel ministry of the Seventh-day Adventist Church (Review and Herald, Feb. 2, 1967). Andrews University endorses the message of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, and the nation has recognized the college as a spiritual heritage of the Christian tradition, by the discovery of new knowledge, and by the upholding of knowledge by students." (A. U. Bulletin)

To say this information will suffice to show that Andrews University is a Seventh-day Adventist school in just as much as the other sister institutions in Collegiate.

CUC Choir

Dear Mr. Editor,

Two weeks back I got down our way that is coming from the student body from Columbia Union College in Washington DC. We got a letter in Washington and I figured it would be a right good program so I decided to go up there for the first time.

Firstly, I got to Collegiate and saw many things about the program and was quite sure that the program was the front. Now, sir, I am not opposed to good church music, but I feel that this song just didn't do justice to all the reasons it is education and a simple person like me can't understand it. I got many high class music, but by the time the program was half over I felt I just

Lyndon:

Likeness of Lincoln?

By IVAN WHIDDEN

Since the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963, there have been many parallels discovered between him and the greatest of presidents, Abraham Lincoln. Among the more obvious comparisons are the serving of the term a century apart, the supposed interests in civil rights, the fact that both presidents were shot in the back of the head in the presence of their wives, and many other parallels. Some were deliberately manufactured, such as the similarity between Lincoln's funeral and Kennedy's. But an unemotional study of these facts reveals one striking fact: all parallels between the two men are superficial. The characters of the two and their backgrounds and their administrations are poles apart. Just because two men died similarly doesn't mean that they lived similar lives.

Their character traits taken point by point will suffice to show the difference.

Lincoln — Kennedy

Physically Lincoln was strong, ugly, unpolished; Kennedy, handsome, often ill, and very refined. Economically, Lincoln came from a background of rural poverty, and was in debt most of his life; Kennedy was born with a silver spoon in his mouth and never removed it. Lincoln was honest and compassionate; Kennedy, an ambitious and calculating politician. Both had a good sense of humor, but even in this were different, as Lincoln's was corn and JFK's was very urbane. Lincoln was practical, Kennedy creative. Lincoln was strong in response to challenge; Kennedy had to be backed into a corner before he would fight. Lincoln won his war; Kennedy bungled Cuba and "lost" Laos, and had a nervous and nebulous policy on Viet Nam. His great Uncle Criss was, in my opinion, a dangerous mistake that should have been stopped long before it got to the explosive point. His control of Congress seemed born non-existent, whereas Lincoln was in full control, though of a purged assembly.

As you can see, from these comparisons and others which space does not permit, Kennedy and Kennedy were near opposites in actual character.

Lincoln — LBJ

But a comparison between Mr. Lincoln and JFK's successor, Lyndon B. Johnson, yields striking similarities of circumstance and character. They compare physically, there being an inch difference in height, and it's a toss-up between who is the ugliest. Economically both were born in humble circumstances and had to work for their food and clothing. Neither will be remembered for his refinement or style of dress. They both show a practical as opposed to a creative type of personality. Both served in time of an unpopular war which they prosecuted with determination. Johnson and Lincoln both controlled Congress and got what they wanted. Both used civil rights as a political tool. Both are known for their folky ways and corny humor, and both married ambitious women.

Even the future looks like it will bear more similarities.

Lincoln was afraid that he would not be re-elected for a second term because of the slow progress of the war, and so it is with Johnson. If Johnson achieves his goals in Viet Nam, as did Lincoln in the Civil War, he will go down in history alongside Lincoln as one of our greatest Presidents.

He will be remembered for the strongest, most able and most influential President—besides Lincoln and FDR—that this nation has thus far seen.

Whidden

It had to follow such an idealized martyr whose appearance was great because he was a martyr. Johnson achieved where Kennedy could only wish. Johnson acted where Kennedy could only react.

Even to this day Johnson is still haunted by the myth of the Congress of JFK. But as the true Kennedy image comes into clearer perspective through the focus of time, and as that image is perhaps being tarnished by the actions of his brother and other relatives, the true greatness of Lyndon B. Johnson will be recognized.

Former Students

By NORMA YOUNG

A number of former SMC (male) students have recently joined—"voluntarily or otherwise"—the ranks of Uncle Sam's troop movement in the "fight against war."

As near as the ACCENT can determine at present, there are at least 14 former SMC young men who have been drafted since the 1965-66 school year. A number are at Fort Sam Houston in Texas; others are scattered throughout the United States, and some are in foreign countries. As a reader service, those known to be in the armed forces at present are listed below according to location.

Legalism?

It appears that some Seventh-day Adventists no longer really believe in "Righteousness by Faith," even though they continue to use the words FAITH and GRACE; they do so only mechanically, with fixed clichés, and through force of habit. By their ACTIONS and REACTIONS they seem to say that Christ's sacrifice upon the cross "wasn't quite enough" and that man must make up the difference by WORKING the rest of his way to Heaven.

We are living in the period of the going forth of the "Third Angel's Message." That message, Sister White states plainly, is the gospel of "Righteousness by Faith." It is now more than 120 years since the glorious beginning of our Advent hope. Sister White wrote in 1893 that Christ's return would have been "ere this," but that He was "waiting" for His people to get ready.

That was 84 years ago, and Christ must still be waiting. The return of Christ and the preaching of the "Third Angel's Message" is not tied to the phenomena of TIME, but depends instead upon the HEART condition of us, His people.

It is a sobering thing to realize that Christ could have come long since had not it been for the unpreparedness of His people. However, it is even more startling when one must conclude that unless we get the "uncertain sound" out of our gospel trumpets, and preach "CHRIST OUR RIGHTOUSNESS," He may not come for another 120 years.

God will never CEASE His people, as some seem to think, and FORCIBLY pour His Holy Spirit down their throats.

A NEW MORALITY?

To say "I believe" is one thing, but to really be convinced of it is quite another. How then does one "LIVE BY FAITH?" Jesus provided what I believe is the answer to our dilemma when He said:

"GOD IS A SPIRIT: and they that worship him must WORSHIP HIM IN SPIRIT AND IN TRUTH." John 4:24.

God will not judge us by WHAT WE DO, but by the SPIRIT in which we do it.

To him that KNOWETH to do GOOD, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." James 4:17.

The reverse of this theorem is that he who KNOWS what is WRONG, but does it nevertheless, is also sinning.

There can be qualities and degrees of knowledge of truth, and no two persons will possess an equal understanding of what is right or wrong. Only God knows the INTENTS and PURPOSES of the HUMAN HEART, and when He judges it, He will take into consideration not only WHAT a person did, but WHY he did it.

In the judgment of God NO PERSON will be assigned culpability against the absolute letter of the law, for all of us have fallen short of it. Only God knows the perfect life and His aimment at Calvary have fulfilled the LETTER of the law in our stead, but EVERY ONE of us will be judged by the SPIRIT in which we have approached it.

Progress During Rees Administration

boardland Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

Dr. Rees has served as an athletic coach, principal and superintendent in the public schools of Nebraska. He has been a dean of boys at Shenandoah Valley Academy, New Market, Va. He has served as a director of personnel, chairman of the department of education, and academic dean at Columbia Union College, Takoma Park, Md. He was appointed to the presidency of Southwestern Union College, Keene, Tex., in 1954, serving there for four years prior to assuming his post at SMC.

Dr. Cassell, born March 3, 1929, in Takoma Park, Md., received his B.A. in history from Columbia Union College, Takoma Park, Md., and his master's degree in guidance and counseling from the University of Maryland, College Park, Md., in 1955.

He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa honorary society, American Personnel and Guidance Association and the National Educational Association.

His wife, a native of Strasburg, Va., is a registered nurse, and they have two children.

During Dr. Rees' administration SMC has shown phenomenal growth in enrollment, academic advancement, faculty, physical plant and industries.

From an humble beginning on Feb. 20, 1929, as an elementary school in Grayville, Tenn., Southern Missionary College has grown to a fully-accredited liberal arts college with 1200 students.

Marking its 75th anniversary as an institution during 1967, SMC now has a net worth of approximately $6 million and a teaching staff of 119, of which 23 hold the doctorate degree, 65 the master's, two the bachelor of divinity, and 29 the bachelor's degree.

The enrollment, 475 in 1957-58, has increased over two and one-half times, passing the 1200 mark in the current college year.

Academically, all departments have been expanded, and majors have been added in behavioral science, German, industrial arts education, and physical education; the office administration and nursing departments now offer two-year associate degree programs in editorial secretarial work and nursing.

The faculty has grown from 91 in 1958 to the present 119 in number. Assisting Dr. Rees in the administration of the college over the past eight years have been Dr. George Shankel, Dr. Wilbert Schneider and Dr. Cassell, all academic deans. Charles Fleming, Jr., business manager; Gordon Madgwick, dean of student affairs; and William H. Taylor, both as dean of student affairs and director of college relations.

During Dr. Rees' administration, SMC applied to the Federal Communications Commission for permission to operate a low-power non-commercial educational radio station. This license was granted to WSMC-FM in 1959. On March 21 the station will go from 10 watts to 80,000 watts, broadcasting over a 100-mile radius. The station is used directly in connection with the communications department of the college, enabling students to gain actual broadcasting experience.

Eight new buildings, totaling approximately $3 million in cost, have been completed at SMC since 1957. They are the new cafeteria, the Collegedale Bindery, the sewage disposal plant, Women's Residence Hall, College Plaza shopping center, the central heating plant, McKee Industrial Education building, and the new Physical Education Center.

The cafeteria, completed in 1958, will be enlarged when the new administration building now under construction connects with it.

The $100,000 Collegedale Bindery, completed in April of 1962, is equipped with the latest binding equipment.

Costing $175,000, the sewage disposal plant was installed in August of 1963. The new facilities replaced the septic tanks and other obsolete disposal methods.

The Women's Residence Hall, completed at a cost of $1.25 million in April, 1963, houses approximately 400 young women and includes such features as a lobby on each floor with telephones, a chapel, recreation room, powder rooms, and ironing rooms equipped with hair dryers.

Completed in April, 1963, the college's shopping center cost $375,000 and houses a supermarket, post office, a variety store, Israeli food distributors, restaurant, credit union, Book and Bible house, barbershop, insurance company, self-service laundry and a beauty shop.

The new Canton Package Coal Burning Unit, which was installed in February of 1964 at a cost of $90,000, replaced the old central heating unit which was causing a fly-ash problem on the campus.

Completed in the summer of 1964 was the industrial education center named McKee Hall. Mr. and Mrs. O. D. McKee of the McKee Baking Company, located on the college campus, gave the funds for the construction of the center. Classrooms, instructors' offices, individual laboratory rooms for drafting, woodworking, printing, metalworking and auto mechanics are included in the structure.

Sponsored and built by SMC's Committee of 100, the new Physical Education Center was finished in September, 1965, at a cost of approximately $320,000 and features an olympic-sized swimming pool. It includes three basketball courts, locker rooms, classrooms, offices, exercise rooms, and the latest gymnasium equipment. Funds for the swimming pool were provided through a student campaign by SMC's Student Association.

Hackman Hall, the science building, was enlarged in 1961 to twice its original size with a $210,000 addition, adding new labs, offices, lecture rooms and a greenhouse.

tion the college also expended its industries and enterprises in order to offer work opportunities to more students so that they can help defray their college expenses. Present industries include the College Bindery, the College Press, the Laundry, construction and maintenance work, the Broomshop and the various enterprises in the College Plaza shopping center. Approximately 90 percent of SMC's students work part of their way through college.

Built by the Collegedale community in 1965 was the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church at a cost of $620,000. Seating 1850, the church features an asymmetrical layout for the interior, the baptistry on the left and the choir loft on the right. To accommodate the increasing membership, two Sabbath morning worship services are held each week.

Now under construction are a new administration building and a new dormitory to house 510 students.

The administration building, scheduled for completion in early spring, will cost $420,000 for its first phase. It will help alleviate the classroom and office shortage that exists in Lynn Wood Hall, the present administration building.

The dormitory will cost approximately $2 million and will be partially completed in September, 1967.

Projects being planned in the future are a $500,000 Fine Arts Center and a $125,000 library addition.

Money for College

"Go Now, Pay Later!"

Government Loans & Grants Help Student Finance College Education

As Seventh-day Adventists we have received wise counsel from Mrs. E. G. White concerning the necessity of a college education. She states "Cultivated intellect is now needed in the cause of God; for novices cannot do the work acceptably. God has endowed our college as an instrumentality for developing workers of whom He will not be ashamed"—Testimonies, Vol. 4, p. 426. To do one's best in service to God or country one should invest in a college education.

EDUCATION ACT

The 1965 Higher Education Act, passed by Congress on October 20, 1965, provides a broad program of financial aid to college students. Title IV of this act provides four types of assistance to academically qualified students in financial need.

Educational Opportunity Grants

The purpose of this program is to encourage and enable especially needy high school graduates and college undergraduates, who otherwise would be financially unable to continue their education, to pursue their studies at institutions of higher education by providing them with educational opportunity grants (gifts). Amounts of not less than $200 nor more than $400 may be awarded to a student under this program. The amount may not be more than one-half of the sum of the amount of student aid given.

To qualify for an educational opportunity grant, a student must be accepted for full-time enrollment at an institution participating in the program or, in the case of a student already attending such an institution, be in good standing and in full-time attendance (minimum 12 semester hours at SMC) there as an undergraduate student. In addition, he must show evidence of academic or creative promise and capability of maintaining good standing in his course of study. Finally, he must be in exceptional financial need, and must show that he would not, except for an educational grant, be financially able to pursue, or to continue, a course of study at the institution.

Government Guaranteed Loan Program

The purpose of this part of the Educational Act is (1) to encourage states and nonprofit institutions and organizations to establish adequate insurance programs for students in eligible institutions, (2) to provide a Federal program of student loan insurance for students who do not have reasonable access to a state or private nonprofit student loan insurance program, and (3) to pay a portion of the interest on certain student loans which are insured by the government under this program. The amount of federally insured loans that may be made in an undergraduate student under this program is $1,000 per year. The overall amount of the unpaid principal on all federally insured loans may not exceed $5,000. This program provides for the guarantee of 100% of the unpaid balance of the principal amount of the loan, exclusive of any interest which may be added to principal.

Loans are insurable under this program if (1) the student is accepted for enrollment or (2) if already in attendance, be in good standing socially and academically. The student must carry at least half (8 semester hours) of the normal class load and must provide the lender with the college's statement of charges of tuition, fees, and estimated room and board.

National Defense Student Loan Program

The purpose of this program is to encourage and enable needy students of promise to continue their studies at institutions of higher education by providing them with long-term, low-interest loans. The maximum amount available at Southern Missionary College is $375 per regular semester and $250 for summer school. The maximum total loans for any borrower is $5,000.

In order for a student to be eligible for this loan he must be accepted for enrollment or be enrolled for at least half-time student work (8 semester hours). A student who is already enrolled must be in good standing. A student is in good standing when he is making normal and satisfactory academic progress, and is maintaining the standards of conduct required by the institution.

Freshman students, to be eligible for a loan for their first semester must, through high school grades and test scores, show evidence of good standing. He must have a minimum A.C.T. score of 20 or have a minimum high school G.P.A. of 2.50 on high school solids. For a student to maintain a loan for the second semester of his freshman year, his college grade point average must be a minimum of 2.25 at the end of the first semester.

Applications beyond the freshman year must maintain the following grade point average to be eligible for loans: with 24-55 semester hours credit, 2.30; with 56-95 semester hours credit, 2.35; with 96 and over semester hours credit, 2.40. A freshman who does not qualify for a loan for the first semester may apply for a loan for the second semester providing his grade point average for the first semester is a minimum of 2.25.

The primary and most essential condition of an applicant's eligibility for a loan under this program is that he is in need of the requested loan in order to pursue his course of study during period for which the application is made.

OTHER PROGRAMS

College Work-Study Program

The purpose of this program is to extend part-time employment to students who are in need of earnings in order to pursue a course of studies at an institution of higher education. Benefit from this program is extended particularly to those students from low-income families. Employment offered to students under this program must be from jobs that either extend or broaden the college's present student work program. These jobs are all in the area of the college departments proper (such as library, cafeteria, service department, construction and maintenance department, dormitories, and readers) and cannot include jobs in any of the college industries. The advantage of a student being employed under this program rather than under the regular college work program is that the rate of pay per hour is increased.

To be eligible for employment under this program, it must be determined that a student's family be of low-income, or if all students from low-income families have been placed in jobs and additional funds remain, the college may place other students who need assistance. Also, to be eligible, a student must be already enrolled or accepted for enrollment as a full-time student at the college (12 semester hours constitute full-time study for this program at SMC).

Nursing Loan Program

The purpose of this program is to increase the opportunities for the training of nurses through and assisting in the establishment of loan funds in professional schools of nursing from which low interest loans may be made to students in need thereof to pursue their courses of study.

The eligibility requirements for this program are like those for the National Defense Loan Fund, but students eligible for a degree under the Nursing Loan Program are not eligible for a loan under the National Defense Program.

Private Loan Funds

Several private loan funds are available from which students may borrow funds to continue their education. For information about these funds write to Director of Student Finance, Southern Missionary College, Box 370, Collegedale, Tenn. 37315.

P C S

Because of the requirement that a definite need for financial aid be established before funds can be committed under the various federal programs, our college has joined with many other colleges in requiring that a Parent's Confidential Statement be completed by the parents or guardians of a student to whom we may have a uniform evaluation of need. Application for this form may be obtained by writing the college.

APPLYING FOR LOANS

After the Parent's Confidential Statement has been completed and mailed, applications for the various loans may be obtained by writing the Director of Student Finance, Southern Missionary College, Box 370, Collegedale, Tenn. 37315.

Academy Publications Staffs Meet at SMC in Workshop

The second annual Academy Publications Workshop, sponsored by the communications department of the college, was held Feb. 19 and 20 on campus. Approximately 65 students and publications sponsors from academies in the Southern Union participated in the two-day workshop, attending either of the conference's two sections, and hearing talks on different aspects of newspaper and yearbook journalism.

Speakers and workshop personnel included Elder F. Donald Yost, now associate editor of the Review and Herald, Washington, D.C.; Mr. Max Phillips, assistant editor of These Times, Nashville, Tenn.; and Mr. Delmont Wilson, chief photographer for the Chattanooga News Free Press.

In charge of the "school paper" section of the workshop was Mr. Leamon Short, instructor of journalism at the college. Miss Carolyn Lane, assistant professor of English, supervised the yearbook section.

According to Mr. Short, the purpose of the workshop was "to give academy students practice and training in various phases of producing their newspapers and yearbooks, trying to deal with specific problems that each staff encounters with its publication, and giving demonstrations on appropriate techniques and methods of handling these publications."

The workshop was initiated last year, growing out of discussion among the members of the communications department.

Workshop personnel, speaking, demonstrating, and discussing during the colloquium, were Elder Yost, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Short, Miss Lane, Mr. Lynn Sals, instructor in English, Pat Horning, junior communications major, Dr. Gordon M. Hyde, chairman of the communications department, Mr. William H. Taylor, college relations director; Miss Evelyn Lindberg, associate professor of English; Paula Dixon, business manager of the Southern Memories, college yearbook; Mr. Robert Merchent, college treasurer, Rodney Bryant, editor of the Southern Accent, and a representative of Foss and Davies, a yearbook publishing company.

Mowery Performs; Directed on Solo By V. Persichetti

Doug Mowery, sophomore music major, recently performed the marimba solo in Vincent Persichetti's Winter Cantata, accompanying the choral of the University of North Carolina (Greensboro), at the Southeastern Choral Conductors' Conference, meeting at the University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

The Cantata was explained and analyzed prior to its performance by composer Persichetti, attending the three-day conference and workshop.

Chosen for the marimba performance by Dr. J. Clark Rhodes of the University of Tennessee, Doug was accompanied at the conference by Mr. Marvin Robertson, associate professor of music at SMC and chairman of the music department, and Mr. Stewart Crook, assistant professor of music.

Doug's performance came on Friday morning of the conference, he and the choral were directed by Dr. Richard Cox.

U. of Chattanooga Awards M.A.T. To SMC's Clark

Mrs. Ann R. Clark, instructor of English at the college, recently received the Master of Arts in Teaching degree from the University of Chattanooga.

Finishing the degree last August, Mrs. Clark has a special interest in linguistics. She is scheduled to teach a three-hour course in linguistics here next fall; the course will be recommended for all majors.

Mrs. Clark, the wife of Dr. Jerome L. Clark, professor of history, is presently teaching three sections of freshman composition.

Success in Medical School Studied by SMC's Chambers

By SUE HALL

Who succeeds in medical school? What classes in college predict how well a student will perform in medical school? Does it help to be married? What about IQ?

Miss Alma C. Chambers, associate professor of psychology at SMC, studied these questions in her thesis for the Master of Arts degree at the University of Redlands, Redlands, Calif.

In her thesis, entitled "A Statistical Study of Predictive Factors for the Success in Medical School," Miss Chambers examined the relationship between college science grade-point-average, Medical College Admission Test scores, IQ, marital status, father's occupation, level, age, and recommendations—all, in connection with the individual's success in medical school.

The results of her study showed that science grades in college were the most predictive of the factors studied. Other studies, however, have indicated that overall g.p.a. is just as predictive, she adds.

Father's Job

Rating second on the predictive scale in Miss Chambers' study was father's occupation, in terms of professional (graduate-level training), semi-professional (college education), non-professional (high school or less). Sons of professional fathers tended to do slightly better, she found; however, the sons of the nonprofessional fathers were just as frequently in the upper third as in the lower third of the class.

No significant difference was obtained between marital status of the student and success in medical school.

Pointing out that the college major didn't correlate significantly with the student's success or failure in medical school, Miss Chambers suggested that for a broader education the prospective medical student would be wise to choose a major other than science—unless weak in science, in which case a major in that area would be wise.

IQ

When Miss Chambers conducted her study—following a recent class at Loma Linda University School of Medicine through four years of medical schooling—the mean and median IQ for the class of 77 members was 127. A study of the recent literature indicated the national median IQ, for medical students to also be 127.

The average IQ for the upper one-third of the class was 128; the middle one-third, 126; and the lower one-third, 125. The average IQ of those who failed was 121, Southern Missionary College had 11 students in the class under study; two of them failed.

Success in medical school had a low correlation with scored IQ, according to Miss Chambers, and she suggests that in some cases IQ tests fail to measure actual ability.

An example is one student in the class who had a scored IQ of 103 and another student in the same class with an IQ of 147. The student with the 103

IQ graduated in the upper one-third of his class, ranking 12th from the top out of 77, while the student with the 147 IQ had previously failed, dropped out, subsequently tried again, finally graduating—in the lower one-third of his class.

Miss Chambers suggests that perhaps the IQ of 103 was not a true measure of that student's potential.

The student in the study with the highest IQ, 150, graduated 4th out of the 77, and had a college g.p.a. in college of 2.42. One of the students with the lowest IQ, 103, ranking 12th in the graduating class, had a science g.p.a. of 2.21.

What makes the difference? Some students, of course, have to work to support themselves while in medical school. But Miss Chambers noted that one of the students near the very bottom of the grade scale told her that "money is the least of my worries."

Motivation

"Motivation" and "study habits" are probably the key factors, she believes, though she did not specifically study these variables.

As far as I.Q. goes—"It seems that there is a certain potential needed for success in medical school, but beyond that, it doesn't make a great deal of difference." The relatively restricted I.Q. range, however, lessens the I.Q.'s predictive ability in the case of medical school students, she suggested.

Miss Chambers is presently finishing work on her dissertation for the Ph.D. degree from the University of Southern California, having completed all her course work. The topic of her dissertation — "Anxiety, Physiologically Measured, and Its Consequences on Mental Test Performance"—grew out of her work with students whose grade-performance differed unexpectedly from mental test results.

Miss Chambers, who came to SMC this year, is a member of Pi Lambda Theta, the American Psychological Association, the American Educational Research Association, the American Personnel and Guidance Association, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

tions from the floor. Debate centered around the usefulness of WSA and its value in relation to other potential SA projects. After about 30 minutes of debate, a motion to accept WSA as an SA project was made and a vote taken. The motion was defeated by a 64-vote margin.

The vote taken was a standing vote, and was counted by the Usher's Club and SA officers. Immediately following the meeting, Usher's Club president Dennis Steek informed SA president Don Vollmer that there was a possibility of an error in the tally. This brought some speculation that WSA might be brought up for a revote in the near future, but neither President Vollmer nor the WSA committee would comment on a revote.

Woodrow Wilson Designates Bryant To Honor List

Podney C. Bryant, senior English major at Southern Missionary College, has won honorable mention from the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation.

He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Bryant, of Woodbury, Tenn.

The editor of the "SOUTHERN ACCENT," the college's newspaper, Bryant was one of 13,596 students from 1,022 colleges in the United States and Canada nominated by faculty members as giving promise of becoming a valuable member of the academic profession. Of these students, 1,259 won Woodrow Wilson Fellowships, and 1,800 received honorable mention from the foundation.

Sir Hugh Taylor, Foundation president, expressed the hope that the honorable mention winners would receive alternate awards. "They are very deserving," he commented.

Bryant has been awarded a four-year assistantship at Emory University in Atlanta, working toward a Ph.D. degree in clinical psychology. He will receive a monthly stipend plus remission of tuition and fees from the University.

VandeVere Gets Ph.D. in Business From Mich. State

Professor Wayne VandeVere, chairman of SMC's applied arts division, and of the department of business administration, recently completed all requirements for the doctorate in business administration from Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich. The degree will be formally conferred in March of this year.

Dr. VandeVere will be the only person in the denomination to hold both the Ph.D. in business and the C.P.A. certificate.

A member of Beta Alpha Psi, the national accounting fraternity, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, and the American Accounting Association, Dr. VandeVere is also executive secretary of the Seventh-day Adventist Association of Certified Public Accountants.

Dr. VandeVere obtained the CPA certificate in 1964. He subsequently received a medal from the Tennessee Association of Public Accountants for having made the highest score, at that testing, on all sections of the examination, among candidates in the state who posed the exam in one sitting.

For his Ph.D., VandeVere majored in accounting, with minor concentrations in finance, marketing, and economic analysis.

His doctoral dissertation is entitled "Federal Income Taxation of Unrelated Business Income and Feeder Company Income of Non-Profit Educational Institutions."

Clark's 4 Volumes On 1844 Milieu Due for Release

Dr. Jerome L. Clark, professor of history at the college, has recently received word from the Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tenn., that his four-volume work, 1844, is now "in press."

The plan is to bring out the first volume in May of this year, according to Dr. Clark, with subsequent volumes being published one per month.

Each volume will average approximately 350 pages.

The work is a study of the social and cultural milieu in America in the period which saw the rise of the Millaire movement.

Presently beginning work on another book, a study of the American temperance movement, Dr. Clark's field is American history.

Representative William E. Brock III, Republican congressman from the Third District, Tennessee, addressed an estimated crowd of 1500 persons Tuesday, March 21, at the opening ceremonies of Southern Missionary College's new non-commercial, educational radio station, WSMC-FM. The ceremonies were held in SMC's new physical education center.

Making its debut as the South's newest high-power FM radio station, WSMC-FM will broadcast on 80.000 watts over a 100-mile radius. The station will broadcast on 90.7 megacycles.

Congressman Brock, re-elected in 1966 to the U. S. House of Representatives, is a native Chattanooga and a member of numerous civic organizations in the area. He was first elected to Congress in 1962 and re-elected in 1964, receiving the largest total vote any candidate for any office has ever received in this congressional district.

Local dignitaries, civic leaders and notables in the communications media and educational fields were on hand to witness the event.

The ceremonies at SMC culminated eight years of progress from a 10-watt local FM station in 1959 to its present position as one of the South's most powerful non-commercial, educational radio stations.

This expanded facility will be the most powerful station operated by a Seventh-day Adventist institution. At 80,000 watts, WSMC-FM will cover the entire Chattanooga-Cleveland metropolitan area. This radio voice of SMC will also reach as far as Knoxville and Atlanta.

Program content will remain somewhat the same, according to James C. Hamann, director of broadcasting. Nightly concerts by the nation's leading performers and orchestras and af-

Staff Completes Remaining Pages Of 1967 Annual

The last 134 pages of the Southern Memories, college yearbook, have been shipped off, according to Ed Shafer, editor in chief.

Spring activities, these pages, additional advertisements, and dedication pages were among those included in the final shipment.

The annual staff worked almost every evening, including Saturday nights, during the last two weeks of production here, despite the illness of the yearbook's sponsor, Mr. Leamon Short, instructor in journalism, who spent part of the decline weeks in Memorial hospital, Chattanooga.

Miss Carolyn Lacy, assistant professor of English, was also ill during the time, but otherwise supervised staff activity, along with Dr. Gordon M. Hyde, professor of communications.

Publication date for the book will be sometime in the spring, probably in the middle of May, according to Editor Shafer, who refused other comment.

English Major Is Overhauled To Cover Lit, Aid Teachers

By KATHY SIMMONS

To help close the "literature gap" in the present English-major curriculum at SMC, and to facilitate the preparation of English majors who will teach at the secondary level, the Academic Policies Committee of the college recently approved a departmentally-revised program for majors and minors in English.

Major changes include the creation of a new minor, "Fields Related to English Education," and the addition of several new "period" courses in literature.

Members of the English department, meeting during the second half of first semester, drew up the new program for presentation to the Academic Policies Committee.

"The purposes in the revision," said Miss Carolyn V. Luce, assistant professor of English, "are to give the major a complete coverage of all periods of literature; to devise a curriculum more useful to prospective academy teachers; to better prepare majors for graduate study in English; and to provide English courses more useful for the non-major."

The new four-year major will still require 30 hours, excluding "freshman composition."

Changes include:

- The deletion of the lower division, four-hour "Survey of American Literature." In its place three upper-division courses in American literature will be taught: "Masterpieces of American Literature," "American Literature to 1860," and "American Literature: 1860-1900."

- The "Survey of English Literature" course has also been broken into three separate courses covering the periods more adequately: "English Literature to 1600," "English Literature: 1600-1800," and "English Literature: Nineteenth Century."

- The course in "Contemporary Literature," presently two hours, will be expanded to three hours, due to the large amount of material to be covered since the end of the nineteenth century.

Roving Cup, $15, To Be Awarded In April Contest

Academy and high school seniors from the Southern Union will match skills in the typing contest to be held during College Days, April 23-25 at SMC.

Speed and accuracy on a timed writing and typing problem will challenge the nimble-fingered contestants, states Richard C. Stanley, assistant professor of Office administration.

The winner will be awarded the roving trophy cup with his name and school engraved on it and a $15 scholarship to SMC. In addition, he will have his name and school displayed on a plaque in the office administration department.

The winning school will keep the plaque for one year.

Federal Aid

But on the other hand, we vehemently (though not, as a rule, successfully) oppose federal aid for Roman Catholic and other church schools. We believe, with seemingly apparent contextual correctness, that public funds for THESE institutions would paradoxically strengthen their educational and indoctrinational impact.

Which argument will we defend: (1) That federal aid waters down and endangers an institution's religious impact? or (2) That federal aid can strengthen the impact of a given educational system?

is there any longer here? Can a 32-inch door undermine religious freedom? In the case of the width of doors or the straight of steps, this is at best only a very trivial issue. As far as standards of building quality and safety are concerned, we are careful to build only the best anyhow! Even if we occasionally have to change building plans to accommodate specifications in this area, we would be submitting to "federal control" only by the most arbitrary definition. Furthermore, in cases where public funds are available for certain academic areas, we have basically nothing to fear from quality standards—we would yield to none in our zeal for educational quality, for example, in such fields as science or nursing.

But it seems that we have here a question of balance, or the "optimum arrangement"; and not a matter of black-and white exclusion or acceptance.

• "Literature and Life," presently a two-semester, four-hour course, will become a one-semester, two-hour offering.

• To help theology majors meet the general education literature requirements "in a more practical way," "Biblical Literature," now three hours, upper division, will be changed into a two-hour lower-division course.

• The "World Literature" course will be broken into two upper-division courses, "Classical Backgrounds," and "European Backgrounds," to be taught the second semester of alternate years.

• Students majoring in English who anticipate secondary teaching will be able to take a minor in "Fields Related to English Education," a new program including a miscellany of courses in the fields of library science, history, speech, journalism, psychology, typing, and education. "The academy English teacher is often expected to teach in many of these fields, anyway," commented Miss Lane; "we want to allow better college course preparation for the diverse needs of the academy teacher."

• English majors preparing for state certification will, with the cooperation with the Education department of the college, not take any courses during their nine weeks of student teaching, the first semester of their senior year, taking a special program of nine weeks of course work the first half of the semester.

1967 Talent Program Staged; Loses Money

By GWYNNE CAREY

Miss Molly Jacobs, a freshman from Tallahassee, Fla., was awarded the grand prize of $45 in the annual Student Association talent show, March 25. Molly presented a reading entitled "Scratch" at the program, this year entitled "Grass Roots Forth."

Other winners in the competition were as follows: Betty Ramsey, sophomore nursing major, first prize of $35 for her vocal solo "Villanelle"; Norman Bernal, junior music major, second prize of $30 for his violin solo "Perpetuum Mobile"; and Mrs. Beverly Steiner and Doug Mowery, senior and sophomore music majors, third prize of $25 for "Scaramouche," a piano duet.

First, second, and third prizes were awarded by a panel of judges. Grand prize was awarded on the basis of audience response.

Master of ceremonies for the event was Mr. Cecil Colley, book editor of the Southern Publishing Association, Nashville, Tenn.

gram included admission charges, high payment for each participant, and staging in the college gymnasium.

Each performer selected during the first week in March by a faculty-student auditions committee received $15 and the chance to appear on the program.

The audience, which was supposed to pay admission prices at the rate of $5.00 for children, $7.50 for "adults" and $1.50 for reserve seats, was smaller than expected, with total revenue from all ticket sales amounting to $950.

"We were hoping to break even," stated Programs Committee Chairman Albert Dittes, senior history student. The program didn't break even, going into the hole by an undisclosed amount.

The relatively small attendance was attributed to dissatisfaction with auditions selections, the admissions charge, and poor advertising.

Some students, including SA officers, felt that the auditioning did not result in a good selection of talent, while the admissions charge was nefariously protested by the theft of all tickets from the SA office before sales had begun. When most of the tickets were recovered, ticket sales were already several days behind schedule.

Moreover, not a single package of tickets were apparently not

Soph Student To Visit Indians In Panama Bush

Leslie Weaver, a sophomore chemistry major from Akron, Ohio, was chosen "Student Missionary of the Year" in February at the college.

Weaver will spend ten weeks this summer assisting a native pastor among the Guymil and Choco Indians of Panama, gathering experiences and color slides to present to the student body on his return to school next fall.

Weaver was selected to receive the $400 scholarship plus travel expenses to Panama from among 25 nominees.

The "missionary" program was launched jointly by the Missionary Volunteer Society of the college and Christ's Foreign Legion.

The $400 scholarship is being provided by the college and the Southern Union of Seventh-day Adventists. Travel expenses are being supplied by the MV Society and Christ's Foreign Legion.

Weaver will fly to Panama City shortly after the end of the current academic year. From there he will travel into the interior of Panama, gathering information and assisting a native pastor.

Planning to study medicine, Weaver will return to SMC next fall to use the scholarship and pursue his pre-medical studies.

It is anticipated in some quarters that SMC will choose a student missionary each year from now on.

Southern Missionary College, often called a "missionary college," has had approximately 300 students serve in the church's mission program.

Dr. W. M. Schneider, Dean at PUC, Becomes New President of SMC

DR. W. M. SCHNEIDER
New President of SMC

Editorial Appreciation: C. N. Rees

The Indelible Stamp

"Con" Rees grew up around Lincoln, Nebraska, and he liked it there.

Once, while in Union Academy, he and a group of friends skirted school policy to challenge the Lincoln high school team to a game of basketball, and he was nominally disciplined along with his cohorts when their principal walked in on the unpublicized contest. Coming up through grade school and academy in Lincoln, he got to know the local tennis competition, too; and before he graduated from Union College (with a major in English, like his father before him and his son after), he held the city tennis championship. Lincoln was a pleasant city, and he would return over the years, to earn his master's and doctorate at the University of Nebraska.

But he had other places to go.

One of these places was Shenandoah Valley Academy, where he was dean of boys—but where he found his newly-won status as English teacher supplanted by Fae V. Cowin, a former classmate at Union. He was happy teaching government instead, but with characteristic tact, he married the English teacher a year later.

Another place was Takoma Park, Maryland, where he worked, as principal, to get Takoma Academy "out of the basement" and staffed by a full-time faculty; and where he rose unobtrusively into the administration of Columbia Union College, being named academic dean of the institution as he finished his Ph.D. at Nebraska in school administration.

Another place was Keene, Texas, where his presidency of Southwestern Junior College saw foundational progress in the physical plant and substantial improvement in the faculty and staff.

Another place was Southern Missionary College.

The president's house, built on the side of the Collegedale valley several years ago by a doctor who underestimated the health of Collegedale, is large, and several parts have (since the doctor departed) been let to students and staff members. In the house, Dr. Rees is beginning, with some pain and difficulty and the aid of a wheelchair or brace, to move around.

Unfortunately, the house has an excellent view of the valley. From its windows one can see spring come to the college. Students move—like infinitely important dots—up steps, across lawns, up and down roads, and over the active green surface of the tennis courts. Bulldozers grow up in pattern parks and

Dr. Wilbert M. Schneider, presently academic dean of Pacific Union College, Angwin, Calif., has been elected president of Southern Missionary College, according to Elder H. H. Schmidt, chairman of SMC's Board of Trustees.

Dr. Schneider, a former academic dean of SMC who holds a doctorate in finance, has been in educational work for twenty-four years, serving as a dean of students, as chairman of several business administration departments, and as an academic dean at three colleges.

Arrives in June

Having visited SMC this week, Dr. Schneider will probably assume the presidency of the college in June. Meanwhile, Dr. J. W. Cossell, Jr., SMC's academic dean, will continue as acting president of the college.

Dr. Schneider was born in Loyal, Okla., on April 15, 1918. He is married to the former Ardith Maxine Chase, formerly of Tulsa. They have four children, Douglas, 20; Shirley Jean, 18; Janet, 11; and Sara, 9.

His educational background includes a diploma from Southwestern Junior College, Keene, Texas; the BA degree from Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska; the master's degree in business administration from the University of Oklahoma; and the Ph.D. degree in finance from the University of Southern California.

Ph.D. in Finance

His dissertation for the doctorate degree was entitled "The History of the American Bankers' Association," which was later published by the public affairs press.

He served in 1941-42 as an accountant for White Memorial Hospital, Los Angeles, and as treasurer of the Loma Linda Food Company, Loma Linda, Calif., 1958-60.

He is a member of the American Economics Association and of the American Accounting Association. He has written numerous articles for learned journals and has been active in educational circles within the Seventh-day Adventist denomination.

Varied Background

He has served as dean of students at Campion Academy, Loveland, Colo.; as head of the business administration departments of Southwestern Junior College, Walla Walla, Wash.; and Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich.; and also as academic dean of Andrews University.

THE INDELIBLE STAMP

visitors are shown incremental brick and new landscaping. The caption, "a long-extended dream," is being built into the lee of the ridge, facing back across the valley—the new administration building. The building, soon to be completed, will alter seriously the pattern of campus foot-traffic for students and hand-picked staff. Elegant white Georgian pillars gleam dully in the afternoon sunlight, as shrubs are planted and lawns prepared where not long ago there was only an eccentric collection of giant mud-holes.

A stiff breeze slashes through the valley, lifting the incorrigible black smoke toward Chattanooga and deflecting well-meant tennis shots into the doubles alley. The breeze wafts over a college which, in large part, wasn't here seven years ago. Fortunately, from the windows of the house, distance obscures small details.

Many things do not necessarily come out in the official news stories and editorial notices which accompany the relinquishing of high office.

The year before last the faculty of this college received a total of 22 calls to positions elsewhere, and not one call was accepted. No one mentioned it.

No one mentioned how "he personally took care of everything—even the telegrams," when the mother of one faculty member died several years ago.

No one even attempted to explain his thorough and complicated process of staff selection, his unrelenting concern for the many facets of a man's capability. No one mentioned explicitly that every top officer of the college presently serving was a personal choice of his.

It is difficult to adequately indicate that buildings tend to receive undue notice, that buildings can be so much more easily photographed and described than faculty spirit and solidarity; that his main preoccupation and concern was always "staff."

No one quite knows how to incorporate into an official news story the fact that his secretary, in and out of his office for years, never overheard the slightest intimation of an all-color story or that he remissly or that he was particularly kind to children; or that he complimented his staff to their backs; or that he played pranked games with great enjoyment but "every intimation of winning."

It is also difficult to explain that not everyone saw him alike, not even (especially not even) his closest friends and associates. There were crass and creative discrepancies continually appear as he is discussed. In fact, the more one talks, carefully appear as he is discussed. In fact, the more one talks, carefully appear as he is discussed. In fact, the more one talks, carefully appear as he is discussed.

In talking with those who saw him most, one continually encounters both this inability to deal with him all at once, and the concomitant feeling that "there is something yet to say about him," something just beyond articulation, something yet unmentioned about Conrad N. Rees, president of Southern Missionary College from 1956 to 1957.

But until the rich and difficult gestalt of time has supplied the final configuration, the greatest of the man will be indelibly and unmistakably evident in the college which bears the stamp of his love and ability.

For the Record

PLATFORM OF BOB WALKER FOR STUDENT ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT

In talking with various people on the Southern Missionary College campus, I have discovered that there is a significant number of students who are deeply concerned with the manner in which the Student Association has operated in the past several years, and that some of these students doubt the wisdom in having my S.A. at all.

These Student Association Members feel that the S.A.'s efforts have been misdirected and that its funds have been put to poor use—in short, they feel that our S.A. has not been worth the fifteen dollars per person we dues that we pay of us each year. They further contend that if each of us were given our own dues, we could benefit more from them than we have benefited under the financial management of the Student Association, and that since its failure policies have been unproductive, the S.A. should refrain to exist student his dues so that each will be able to determine how his money will be used.

My proposal is this. If elected president of this Student Association, I will use the budgetary powers of the constitution to disburse to each S.A. member fifteen dollars per year. The adoption of this budget proposal would effectively dissolve the Student Association for one year. This dissolution, in turn, would allow us to determine where the real needs for an S.A. lie, so that the S.A. will be able to fill a real need in the future.

A vote for me is a vote for this proposal, and a vote to make the S.A. in future years a well-directed, non-egoistic organization.

Letter From Greybill

Dear Editor:

It's been some time now since a column I wrote on the Second Coming of Christ appeared in the Southern Accent. Since it appeared, I've had time to study the subject further, especially the aspect discussed in the article.

At first it seemed unwise to attempt to clarify, explain, or defend what I said. It still seems unwise to engage in polemics concerning the article, but I do have a few things I'd like to say by way of a sort of post script.

First of all, I'm sorry that the article has been so widely misunderstood. It's my fault—I wrote too briefly, chose words poorly, and did not clarify my statements enough. The second article I wrote on the subject—when it appeared in the Andrews University paper but not in yours—would have helped put things in better perspective, but that is no excuse for the weakness of its first article.

I wish I could take back all that I said in that article—not because I do not believe in what I said, not because it is not so, not because I have now so harshly criticized, but because I never meant to be saying what so many people think I said.

The question naturally follows then: "Well, if that is not what you meant to say, what did you believe?" What did you mean to say?

If I were with you, and we could sit down after tea to face, I could explain it, and I think we could come to an understanding. I've been so busy since then that I cannot do so. I could understand each other again if we had the opportunity to talk. It would take too much writing to unravel the tangled ideas and arguments, is the advice that appears so simple even if anyone were still interested.

I guess the most important thing I want to say is that I'm very sorry for the misunderstanding. I certainly don't feel any bitterness or proud defense toward my critics—those who were so kind to call me the "evil servant."

A Great Loss

Dear Mr. Editor:

The article appearing in the March 26 issue concerning Dr. Rees and his contributions to that school is commendable.

It goes without saying that Dr. Rees' dedication and interest in his work has contributed to the growth and success of SMC. His understanding and concern for the "individual student" has had an immeasurable effect on students attending here during his administration.

Perhaps those who never knew him will, after reading the article, better see why his resignation will be to us a great loss.

Sincerely,
Judy Vance

Nasty Letters

Dear Editor:

For some time before coming to Southern Missionary College, I had a very strong feeling built up in my mind of the school—a friendly atmosphere, the high academic standards, and the highly practical attitude of both students and faculty.

It is fortunate, however, that I did not have access to a copy of the A-Cont during those moments of decision, or I might have changed my mind. It is very good for a school to have a paper to represent it, but it is as to represent us to our friends and relatives the world over, and we really want it to contain a great deal of criticism and sarcasm, especially in the Letters To The Editors section. It also the impression we want the public to have of us? Do we want to be known as a school where we sent us to a place where religious intolerance is maintained? This idea is expressed very well through the pages of the A-Cont.

It is not the criterion itself that is defective, for we think of a democratic system whereby we can express our opinions, but should we not be mature enough to express our views in a courteous manner without always

The SA under the Microscope

"The Wings of a Fly"

More often than it cares to admit the Volmer Administration has faced the embarrassment of delay in the conduct of proceedings in the S.A. Senate while it desperately sought to come up enough Senators to complete a quorum. On at least two occasions this year it has been forced to cancel scheduled Senate sessions because of failure to muster the 2/3 majority of its membership required to transact Senate business.

It is no secret that President Volmer has been disillusioned if not downright disgusted with the mediocre and lackadaisical performance of certain Senators who occupy key positions in the S.A. Senate.

Indeed as President he can do little more than cajole and gently persuade them to be about their business, for the present antiquated Constitution under which he must presently operate, or even the new, up and coming (7) revised edition, offers no Presidential lever which can be effectively applied to compel irritable or inefficient members of the Administration to become more punctual and productive contributors to the team.

Even President Volmer, with all his good looks and latent ability, cannot be wholly absolved of blame for the sometimes pitiful impact of this year's S.A. For it on occasion has appeared that he has been more concerned and involved with the destiny and far flung enterprises of the "famed" Wedgewood Trio than with the forming and execution of S.A. projects and programs.

No Centralized Power

The hue and cry has often been that the authority of the Student Association has become too centralized and rests in the self-interested hands of the few. This may be true to a degree, but in reality there is, now, no functional centralized authority in the S.A.

From the President down to the smallest S.A. person there is no officer who is responsible to anyone for the manner in which he performs his duties. Each one is his good looks and latent ability, cannot be wholly absolved of blame for the sometimes pitiful impact of this year's S.A. For it on occasion has appeared that he has been more concerned and involved with the destiny and far flung enterprises of the "famed" Wedgewood Trio than with the forming and execution of S.A. projects and programs.

Any S.A. officer could, for example, fail to attend a single constitutionally mandated meeting of the Senate for the entire year and could still continue to perform his duties.

One may quickly point to the impeachment clause installed in the new Constitution. This does provide some answer to the problem; for under the new Constitution each Senator will represent a specified district and may be duly impeached for being derelict in his duties. However, what about Administrative officers such as Committee Chairmen, who are elected by and presumably responsible to the entire student body? True, they may also be impeached, but the process would involve much red tape and would probably be severely hampered by bureaucratic bumbling. Indeed careful examination of the impeachment clause reveals it to be burdened down with time consuming maneuvers, which although admittedly more Democratic, may well make the entire instrument nothing more than an impotent scare crow.

Appointment Committee Chairman

Why not hold the election to this position and give the President the power to appoint S.A. Committee Chairmen with the advice and consent of 2/3 of the Senate. After all they are the major numerical portion of what the new Constitution will (inaccurately) refer to as the cabinet.

A cabinet is supposed to be composed of specialists who advise and assist the President in carrying out the functions of his Administration. But how can a cabinet be expected to complement and work closely with the President if they are elected by and responsible to, not the President, but the student body at large?

And how can we be assured of electing the best qualified candidates?

Federal Aid: Reader's Facts

Like the world that we already are we want to eradicate the last vestiges of distinction from our people so that when the time comes that God's distinctive message must be proclaimed with much sacrifice and under great pressures, the people will look to us and say, "Who are you?" You are no different from the rest of us. You dress like us, you talk like us, and you are greedy like us. Why should we believe you have the truth and we can't?

Can This Happen?

Why do we let this happen? I say no! and the time for a new approach of our direction as a church and revival of true disciples is now an order. I say let's stop following in the political footsteps of the Roman Catholic Church and determine to exercise that vital element which has made both our church and our nation what it is today—the vital element, which is results—long lasting, of individual service and sacrifice. That element which makes the difference between a genuine nation and a crumbling welfare state. That vital element that makes the difference between a conquering, evangelical church and a languishing, indifferent social club. (END)

Editor Admits Guilt

Mr. George Powell, president of the Religious Liberty Club of Southern Missouri College, has read the above letter and endorsed it.

As to Mr. Booth's letter itself, the editors wish to thank him for his cool and measured contribution to this important subject.

Seriously, however, we feel certain that in time Mr. Booth will actually look into the subject and find that the Seventh-day Adventist Church is presently inheriting "Federal aid" in the form of surplus property, Hill-Burton grants, research grants, etc.; and in our problem is one of finding the "sensible arrangement" of working for a position both consistent and cautious, while remembering that "we need not sacrifice one principle of truth while taking advantage of every opportunity to advance the cause of God."

Our problem, again, is the admitted difficulty of seeing means not as an end in itself but in relation to goals. The leaders and administrators of the church are now attempting to deal with the issue of federal aid in a constructive and far-sighted manner. We should hold them not only our ideas but also our confidence.

The Southern Accent hopes to carry further comment on this issue. As to Mr. Booth's personal references and allusions to the editor, we are sure they were meant humorously—and only with the situation here as humorous at his letters.

Steiner Presents Senior Selection In Vocal Recital

Ernest D. Steiner, senior voice major at the college, presented his senior recital recently in the Fine Arts chapel.

Vocal selections on the program included Samuel Barber's "Dover Beach," Ralph Vaughan Williams' song cycle "The House of Life," and "Erlenklang" by Schubert.

Steiner's wife, Beverly Bulcock-Steiner, senior piano major, accompanied him.

For the past two years Steiner has been baritone soloist at the Central Presbyterian Church of Chattanooga. He has also been a member of the Collegiate Chorus for the past five years.

Rasnic's Huns Win Victory In Final Basketball Action

March 15: Bill Rasnic's "Huns" defeated Jeff Albright's "Vandals" 55-47 to win the "A" League Basketball Intramural Championship. The two teams ended regular season play with identical 8-4 records, forcing a playoff for the league title. Rasnic, paced by the playmaking and aggressive driving of captain Bill Rasnic (14 pts.) and the fine outside shooting of Heinz Wiegand (17 pts.), led virtually the entire game. The Huns commanded a 9 point halftime margin and the Vandals were never quite able to close the gap.

Jeff Albright was high point man for the Vandals with 18. The playoff game was witnessed by the largest sports crowd of the year.

The Presidential Interview

"Oh, maybe the SA will be worth $16 in a year or two."

"No, I can't play the guitar very well yet, but I am looking forward to that faculty parking sticker."

"Here is my proposed plan for converting the Campus Kitchen into a $70,000 museum."

"I am definitely for a 'search' for adequate subsiding facilities."

"Why did I decide to run for president? Well, I had this dream the other night. . . ."

"The Wings of a Fly"

Popularity, that fickle two-faced monster, sometimes pays little attention to qualifications when he casts his vote in elections. Thus it may be possible that students, fully capable and qualified to serve in the S.A., might never have the opportunity simply because they don't catch the fancy of the voting public.

A Political Machine?

Would the power of Presidential appointment result in a patronizing political machine?

There is no doubt that the power to appoint a cabinet would centralize a certain amount of power in the hands of the President. But if we students expect to reap the benefits of an efficient productive S.A., we must be willing to give it the authority, the power to act and get the job done.

"If all the power the Student Association possesses were converted to gasoline," said one distinguished S.A. Senator, "it would barely generate the energy to move the wings of a fly." It is not a question of too much power, but one of too little power to get the job done. We should not unnecessarily divide and "decentralize" an already weak force.

Moreover, if any President would "dare" attempt to establish a political clique he could easily be blocked by a mere 1/3-1/3 dissent of the Student Senate.

Presidential appointments with Senate approval would raise the prestige of the Senate and give it a vital dramatic part in determining the type of Administration that it would have to "deal" with. It would also bring part of the S.A. politics out in the open for much needed "airing" and public debate.

Last of all, and maybe most important of all, it would provide a much needed shot in the arm for the Senate, which too often is a dull, drab, undistinguished forum for meaningless time consuming mumbling. —GES

"Things Change" Jacques Advises Ceremonial Group

"Things are changing, and we must change with them," said Elder Oliver Jacques, chief administrative assistant to U.S. Congressman Jerry L. Pettis, in addressing the senior class of 172 four-year and two-year graduates here at recognition ceremonies March 28.

He told the class, students and guests, numbering approximately 1200, that "you must project look forward, plan for the future. You must be mobile, not static. The important thing is that we become personally involved now in the future of mankind and its problems."

Before becoming administrative assistant to Republican Congressman Jerry L. Pettis of California's 33rd district, Elder Jacques was director of university relations at Loma Linda, Calif. In addition, Elder Jacques has served five years as a pastor and educator in Africa, 10 years as a pastor in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and 12 years as a public relations administrator. He has been chairman of the Red Cross Fund in Redlands, Calif.; president of the Jack Warner Community Center; and director of the Loma Linda Community Services Council.

Elder Jacques has written three books on Africa, and has served as a consultant and advisor to various groups on community affairs and fund raising affairs in southern California.

Band Features Autrey, Boyson In Spring Show

Byron L. Autrey, trumpet virtuoso and teacher, and Jack K. Boyson, SMC horn player, were featured at the Saturday night concert of the SMC Concert Band, under the direction of William F. Young, assistant professor of music at the college.

Numbers on the program included Sousa's El Capitan March, Erickson's Toccata for Band, Goldman's Cheerio March, and Fandango, by Perkins-Werte.

Staged in the college gymnasium, the concert drew attendance from college and community.

Mr. Autrey, presently on the staff of Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich., performed such numbers as Haydn's "Allegro" from the Concerto for Flut Trumpet, Andersen's Trumpeter's Lullaby, La Virgen de la Macarena, arranged by Koff, and a post horn solo, The Chase, by Leo Stanley.

While on campus, Mr. Autrey also conducted a brass clinic, demonstrating technique for brass players and answering questions.

Boyson, a senior music major at SMC and presently manager of WSMC-FM, is a member of the Chattanooga Symphony Orchestra. For the concert Saturday night, he performed Mozart's Concerto for French Horn No. 3, K. 447. According to the program announcements for the concert, "Mr. Boyson has made a very significant contribution to the music department and to the college in general during his enrollment here. With continued study and experience he will attain the level of artistry characteristic of the truly great horn players."

THE IN CROWD

Mallernee and Swarner to Lead Next Year's Student Association

By GWYNNE CAREY

Rollin Mallernee, a junior theology major from Atlanta, Ga., was elected president of next year's Student Association in the SA Primary Elections April 11 and 12.

Other SA executive officers chosen in the balloting were Warner Swarner, sophomore chemistry major from Memphis, Tenn., vice president, Jackie Salyers, sophomore communications major from Atlanta, secretary, Rudy Bata, sophomore business administration major from Madison, Tenn., treasurer, and Bonnie Godbois, freshman pre-dental hygiene student from Atlanta.

The elections were characterized by several atypical races.

Mallernee won a three-way race in which one candidate, Rob Waller, ran on a platform to "deactivate" the SA for one year by returning the SA's portion of the general fee. The other candidate in the presidential race, Ivan Whidden, presented a program of "religious involvement," which included the construction of an "Institute of Religious Truth" on the Collegedale campus.

Sue McNeal, a junior English major from Tazewell, Va., was elected editor of the SOUTHERN ACCENT in another unusual contest. Running unopposed on the ballot, Miss McNeal was challenged by a write-in campaign organized for Bob DuPuy, a sophomore theology major, who was in the hospital in New Orleans, La., with the mumps during the week.

Miss McNeal was the only name approved for the ballot by the Publications Board, which has the function of nominating persons for the editorships of the two publications. Several persons, however, were asked to run for the ACCENT position. Board spokesmen disclosed. None accepted.

With 68% of the valid votes cast for the position, Miss McNeal barely obtained the 66% required to election on an unopposed ballot.

Also running unopposed, Gerald Martin, a freshman from Pensacola, Fla., was elected Programs Committee Chairman.

Darrell Taylor, freshman from Bethlehem, Pa., was chosen chairman of the Health and Recreation Committee.

General Run-Off Voting Chooses Peeke, Caldwell

In General Election balloting to settle the only two races left undecided in the SA Primary, John William Peeke, a junior theology major from Nashville, Tenn., and Otto Richard Caldwell, a sophomore accounting major from Miami, Fla., were chosen to fill SA posts for the coming year.

Peeke, currently SA chaplain, was re-elected to the same post; Caldwell was chosen business manager of the SOUTHERN ACCENT.

Running against George Powell, a junior theology major, Peeke polled 214 votes to Powell's 184, in a voter turnout that was considerably off the totals for the Primary balloting. Caldwell received 234 votes to 160 for Martin Darkin, a freshman.

The General Election run-offs were held April 16 and 17.

New Quarterly Offers Money For Five Essays

Perspective, a quarterly journal of "discussion and dialogue for Seventh-day Adventist laymen and students," has announced an essay contest awarding five scholarships.

One scholarship of $100 and four additional scholarships of $25 each will be given for the five essays judged best on the subject "What I Would Like to Accomplish if I Were an Adventist College President," according to magazine spokesmen.

Additional information can be obtained by writing to the magazine at Post Office Box 4134, Burbank, Calif. 91503.

New Dormitory To House Girls Men Get WRH

A new women's dormitory, costing about $1.5 million, will be partially occupied by September at Southern Missionary College, according to Charles Fleming Jr., SMC's business manager.

The structure will be of Georgian colonial architecture in keeping with the other buildings on campus. The architectural firm that designed the building is Biancelli and Tyler, Architects, Inc.

The present women's dormitory will house the young men who are now living in two older residence buildings.

The two dormitories will face each other across the campus mall, dominated by the newly-completed new administration building.

Although similar in design, the new structure will accommodate 510 women while the present residence has a capacity of 400. The cost for the building and furnishings per student will be $2,750, a reasonably low figure, said Fleming.

The new dorm will differ from the present building in three main areas: It will be completely carpeted, and each room

COLLEDGALE SDA CHURCH

$638,000 Collegedale SDA Church Consecrated in Sabbath Ceremonies

The Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church, completed in 1965, was dedicated debt-free in special services on the weekend of April 7 and 8.

Total cost for the church, which is located across the road from the new women's dormitory on a knoll, was $638,000, according to Elder Floyd B. Thurmon, pastor.

Participating in the dedicatory ceremonies were Elder H. M. S. Richards, director of the Voice of Prophecy International radio broadcast, Los Angeles, Calif., Elder Horace Beckner, former pastor of the church; Elder H. H. Schmidt, president of the Southern Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists; Elder Desmond Cummings, president of the Georgia-Cumberland Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, and others.

The membership of the church is presently 1836. Although the building seats 1850, two worship services are required each Sabbath to accommodate the normally swelled congregation of students and visitors.

An all-member canvass of the membership of the church was started in 1960 and completed in March of this year, when the congregation finished up outstanding pledges and gave cash offerings to raise $17,000 on one day.

The total cost of the church includes expense for the building itself, an architecturally modern structure; air conditioning; special Sabbath School rooms on two levels; parking area; landscaping; and a new Rodgers Organ costing $23,000. Land for the building was given by Southern Missionary College.

Chartered in 1917 with a membership of 59, the church has during its history used various structures as a place of worship, including the SMC community worship room in Jones Hall, worship room in Tule Hall, the chapel in Lynn Wood Hall, and the Tabernacle Auditorium-Gymnasium.

To Visiting Seniors

The Bait

What kind of place is college, anyway? Well, first off, be not deceived: College is not College Days. College Days is an invention, a fabrication, a bait—and the students of Southern Missionary College hope that you, the seniors of the high schools and academies of the Southern Union, will take the bait.

If you do—if you decide against exploring the jungles of Vietnam, or against casually hobnobbing yourself by "taking a job"—we think you'll find college a rather nice place. Yes, it is a lot of work and hothouse the college still is still small enough to make homework a practical and prevalent carryover from academy, and tests are terrible, and it rains all the time—but at least you won't stain your toe anymore in the darkness after "lights out."

One of the most encouraging things about college is that there's a place for almost anybody. College is a complex idea. There are no regiments here and (hopefully) no assembly lines. Just a lot of people. Somewhere in the constantly shifting, infinitely intricate structure of campus life there's a place for you, with your special interest-ability combination.

How about a job on the Southern Accent staff? Drop by the office, sign your name to pass the literary test, and talk with any of this year's staff—you'll probably be inducted on the spot. But it isn't the Accent, perhaps the Memories (see Cheryl Tribble), the radio station (see Jack Boyson, if you can find him), the Student Association organization proper (you might be elected Student from one of the new dorm precincts next year), the many professional clubs (and the many more unprofessional and informal clubs) . . . The different ways to exercise existing interests and abilities and to develop new ones are probably more numerous than you even in four years will be able to explore.

But give it a try. The Southern Accent staff hopes that something you see here during College Days will pique your curiosity, will indicate to you where your place might be in the college community.

We hope you take the bait!

RCB

Criticism

Just where is the thin-etched line between "constructive" criticism and "destructive" criticism?

Are we never to be critical? Like Camdise's friend, are we to believe that this is the best of all possible worlds?

If criticism were an unknown human reaction, we suggest that Martin Luther would have lived a long and fruitful life—as a Catholic priest, and George Washington might be famous—as a plantation owner and loyal British taxpayer.

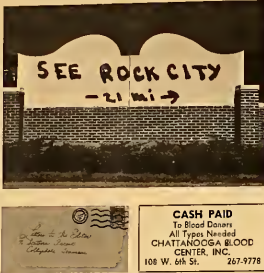

Some persons really never utter a word of criticism simply because they don't care one way or the other what happens, as long as they don't have to worry about it.

Have you ever noticed that the person or group that "criticizes" is often the one most concerned for the object of criticism? The person who really doesn't care about the school (or company, or country) won't say a thing.

The stockholders in a company question the management—the janitor doesn't. The janitor doesn't care as long as he gets paid. The stockholders feel involved—and are involved—with the company.

Is criticism bad, then? Too many subtleties and considerations will be explored—too many for a categorical yes or no.

Pure Tripe

Dear Mr. Bryant

Perhaps I'm just a prejudiced slum with an undidic belief, but when I read that ridiculous letter from "A Reformed Missionary, Alvin Youngberg" in your March 21 issue, I felt I had to write this letter.

Why is our school paper cluttered up with letters of this nature? It seems to me that seven or eight years ago when I was a student at SMC, and the Southern Accent was edited by such men as Stanley Shewchuk and the late Sandy Lewis, we could pick it up and read six pages of current happenings on the campus, and other items of interest.

Today I pick up a Southern Accent and find four pages taken up mostly by advertisements and letters to the editor. And a good dose of these letters are pure tripe, like the one mentioned above, and the one by Jim Luke, that was referred to.

I realize that my letter isn't helping the situation any, but I, for one, think that the letter ought to be fired and well chosen; the Accent should be used as an outlet for any crank who wants some place to share what he thinks is a funny story, or a clever tip at another school or individual. The subject of all-night lights, for example, has been thoroughly ridiculed, and it's time for some more up-to-date, pertinent information. Many alumni would be pleased, I am sure, if you saw to it that this came about.

Sincerely yours,
Don Schmidt, '60

Not One Song?

Dear Editor,

I don't want to sound like I am criticizing the music department, or any other department, or any person on the SMC campus—but I feel that it is bad, yes, even disgraceful, to sit through a whole Friday evening vespers song service, and not even know one song! The faculty may be in for not remembering the Church Hymnal, although I feel that I do know quite a few songs. Don't get me wrong, I feel that we should ever be learning (even new songs) in Sabbath School, but I don't see how we can be learning if we don't know one song!

The vespers service is a relaxing service after a week's study and the best it should be. The work of the Sabbath School is to be the Church at study. If proper emphasis could be put in the right places I feel that the song leader and the student could be much happier at the end of a song service.

Thank you for taking this matter into consideration. I am,
Sincerely yours,
An unconverted by-stander

Big Brown Path

Dear Editor,

As a student of Southern Missionary College, I would like to talk through your paper to my fellow students.

You will recall that well over a year ago our campus was improved in appearance by the completion of the grand walk. At that time three sidewalks were placed across the mall to provide adequate space for walking.

As of late, I have noticed an increasing tendency on the part of many of us to make your own design sidewalk, at the cost of the path. You all realize as well as I do that grass cannot live and we will under the yoke of feet after foot trampling it down. As spring arrives and the grass brightens, there will be new life only where the path is not so heavily trampled.

Won't you join me in keeping SMC green and let the grass grow? The little extra expense might do us all some good.

Sincerely,
A Concerned Observer

Word From Camelot

Dear Editor,

I remember back in my freshman year about the S.A. It's kind of funny when I think of it, it was always against something that they tried to railroad or push through.

They couldn't even pass one policy before the student body. They tried to do away with class organizations, and even caused a new constitution through it. It was really funny when they tried to vote in Radio Station WREB but it turned out to be WEER.

I remember that handsome president we had. He was really lucky, he got to sit his hour in the faculty study. He seemed to keep his popularity even though his tactics and policies were occasionally frowned upon. But we didn't enjoy his regime, not his style in a speech.

Oh, yes, that scholarship chairman was rather odd. We had one post came to speak to us at our school that year, but no improvement in the selection of books at the Hildeberg Book House.

The vice-president was the best of all. He really knew parliamentary procedure and really used it, especially when talking a motion or debating a nondebateable motion. He was really a politician and a friendly sort of fellow.

You know, I never did have a treasury report, if we even had a treasury. Actually, I don't even remember if we had a treasurer or not.

Our president had a very good reason. He always tried to be in one way or another. He could sing, too, and he played a tuba, or was it a tuba? I always regretted his not being an S.A. officer. He was a promoter and a ball.

After saying something like this, I feel sort of guilty about my lack of sympathy and support for our officers. As my beloved father used to tell me, "This hurts me more than it does you." After all, I had to live under this administration.

Cup at Fletcher

Dear Editor,

The recent article in the Southern Accent under the caption, "Bowing Cup to be Awarded," certainly gave an indication to the reader as to the whereabouts of the cup. Fletcher Academy is very proud of the fact that we have had the cup in our possession this year. If I remember correctly, this was taken away from Mt. Pisgah Academy on the last field of contest.

Sincerely,

Physics Student Rason Authors Article With Prof.

Lucy Rason, a junior physics major from Opa-locka, Fla., appeared as co-author with Dr. Ray Hefferlin, professor of physics at SMC, on an article published recently in the Journal of the Optical Society of America.

The article, entitled "Oscillator Strengths in Isotonic Sequences," is related in a general way to the ongoing research study of Dr. Hefferlin, concerned with finding the "I-values" for certain elements.

The work for the article, involving a compilation of data from the pertinent literature and the prediction of new values based on the compiled data, was done last summer and fall here at the college.

The work was aimed at supplying information previously unavailable in the literature in a readily usable form.

Grandson White Speaks at SMC On Grandmother

Elder Arthur L. White, of the White Estate, Washington, D.C., was the guest of the religion department and the college for approximately a week recently, meeting a series of lecture appointments and seminar-type groups to discuss the life and inspiration of Mrs. Ellen G. White.

After White also spoke for the vesper service the Friday evening he was here, and gave the two sermons the following morning at the recently-dedicated Collegedale church.

The grandson of Mrs. Ellen G. White, prominent Seventh-day Adventist writer of the last century, Elder White's current work deals with arranging for publication of Mrs. White's writings, affixing through the thousands of pages of unpublished manuscript material for appropriate passages.

Educational work has long been one of Elder White's foremost interests. He has worked in 12 extension schools of the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary in such countries as South Africa, India, Norway, and Australia, during the past 15 years. He is also a past instructor at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich., and teaches there during each fall term.

Image of SA Presidency Acquires New Luster As Vollmer Sinks Hole-in-One on Cleveland Golf Course

Donald Vollmer, Student Association president, recently shot a hole-in-one on the second hole of the Rolling Hills Golf Club, Cleveland, Tenn.

A student of Mr. Delmar Lovejoy and Mr. Gwynn Carey, Vollmer scored the "ace" using a three-wood on the 187-yard second hole.

Vollmer was interviewed by radio station WCLE-FM in Cleveland following the event.

Shooting a slightly above-average score of 114 for the course, he reports that the day was "slightly overcast."

The event occurred at approximately 2:30 p.m., Friday, April 14; Vollmer was playing with David Silverstein and Gary.

Vollmer has been playing for about four years, he told the WCLE audience. In an exclusive ACCENT interview, he made the further disclosure that the probability for an ace is about 1/200,000, "ten times greater than that for lung cancer."

Asked about his feat in greater detail, Vollmer pointed out that although the phenomenon was indeed unusual, it was probably only "apparent luck," and can be attributed to a "life-long abstinance from alcohol and tobacco."

187 YARDS AT 2:30 P.M.

A spontaneous student movement is underway to have Vollmer's #3 wood golf club gold plated and presented to the General Assembly as a permanent memorial to this year's SA. Contributions should be sent to: "SA Project Fund," % Student Association, Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tenn. 37315.

Now Let's See Him Do It

Presidential Platform

Rollin Mollenree

This year we have seen the Student Association progress from the point at its proposed abandonment into an organization that has not only inspired student participation and interest, but which has been preoccupied in writing bold and practical, workable solutions. It has had the good will of maintenance, tempered with good sense. Great progress has been made in expanding the functions and efficiency of the Student Association and in making either accept the challenge or watch the SA degenerate back into the anemic, unimaginative paper tiger that it once was, ignoring both the problems of students and the co-operation of the faculty.

This year we have had much emphasis on idealism. This is good. But idealism should not take the place of practical, tangible programs. We must propose philosophical phrases and high thoughts, but which accomplish these propositions. We must turn our Student Association into a publication must also concentrate our efforts in establishing programs which will allow Association has done for me."

In seeking the office of president my main aim is to establish an SA of accomplishment—an SA that stands its program and sees that those programs are the caliber that provides for the greatest student need.

Proposed SA Program

1. ESTABLISH A STUDENT CENTER A long unfulfilled need on this campus is that of a student center. This need has resulted in the library's becoming a place where at night it is almost impossible to study because of the tremendous amount of socializing. At the present time the cafeteria dining room is put to no use in the evening. This area could be opened, under the control of a woman supervisor, and relieve the library of the strain of its double role. The green room could be furnished with convenient machines and not only benefit the students arrived, but would be an important source of revenue for the Student Association.

2. GREATER PROFIT CONTROL OF THE CAMPUS KITCHEN At the present time the Campus Kitchen is netting approximately $12,000 for the two partners that run it. This is entirely out of line and steps should be taken by the SA to see that a proper relationship with the school and management is established. I have already, on a number of occasions, gone into see Mr. Fleming about this situation. At the present time negotiations are proceeding to work out a suitable compromise.

Sun-Bathing for All

3. WORKS FOR SOCIAL REFORM Too often students who are dissatisfied with existing policies express their dissatisfaction without any investigation into their backgrounds or purposes. I believe that before we advocate any social change that we must investigate the reason for any existing policy, its effect on the student body, its relation on other Christian campuses, and then present an alternate plan that would provide a workable solution. There are four main areas which I think merit research and then reform:

I. The Saturday night curfew.

II. The present number of weekend leaves.

IV. The need for a proper sun-bathing area.

4. AN INTER-DENOMINATIONAL RELIGIOUS SEMINAR We have an obligation to give our message to fellow students on other non-SMA campuses. We cannot do this unless there is established an avenue of communication. I propose that under leadership of the chaplains we hold an annual campus inter-denominational religious seminar that would attract representatives of all religious groups from surrounding campuses, to meet at SMC to discuss such important problems. How can Christians in machine age survive a changing world? What can we as students do to promote the gospel of Christ? How can religious principles help explain the current crises of the world such as divorce and the population explosion? What methods can best be used to reach the modern young person?

We would not only receive new ideas and fresh approaches ourselves but would establish a mode of communication with students of other campuses. They would be home visiting our local, serving our campus, and most important, showing our students and seeing in what ways Christianity can do for the world.

5. A PROGRAM AT THE TIVOLI TO RAISE FUNDS FOR THE NEEDS We have the talent and the resources to produce a program that would attract the people of Chattanooga. The funds that raised could be given to a worldwide organization such as a children's hospital, orphanage, or similar institution.

Pizzo and TV

6. OPENING OF FACULTY HOMES FOR STUDENTS There are many dates on Saturday night when students feel like "getting away from it all." I would propose that each Saturday night three or four faculty homes be available to students who want just to relax and do nothing more than make pizza and watch TV. I have talked about this with several faculty members and have received nothing less than enthusiastic response.

7. MORE PARTICIPATION OF THE ORLANDO AND MADISON CAMPUSES This is a year that is filled only with election time and which is forgotten as quickly as elections are over. I think that a practical solution to our existing problem would be to amend the constitution so that a regional vice-president of the SA would be elected by each group of students at our campuses. These regional vice-presidents would serve as the "provost" of that campus. The SA dues paid by members on these campuses would be the expenses of public relations, etc. have been deducted) be given back to them for their own use, under their own vice-president.

8. THE STUDENT FACULTY COUNCIL The student faculty council has been one of the most progressive steps of the Student Association this year. Next year, especially since there will be a great turnover in administration, the council should be continued and its scope expanded. Only by realistic and frank discussion of problems by students and faculty can the best and longest lasting results be achieved.

9. TRANSPORTATION TO TOWN The vast majority of our student body do not have cars to provide them with transportation to town. This is a real problem, especially in new freshmen who lack the means of transportation and the friends with cars who could possibly provide it. This Student Association must set up a commission to provide students with drivers that would accept rides to town.

Better Paperbacks

10. PROVIDE BETTER PAPERBACK BOOKS I think that it would be a mistake for the SA to try to establish and operate a paperback store. We can and should, however, influence the Mercantile in their purchasing of paperback books. A great service could be rendered in the students by the book store and not necessarily by the faculty members. Only by realistic and frank discussion of problems by students and faculty can the best and longest lasting results be achieved.

11. STUDENT COUNSELING SERVICE There is a real need for competent student counselors who are acquainted with such problems as student financing and academic problems. This need may many times be filled only by students and not necessarily by faculty members. There are a few of the projects and programs I think we can accomplish next year. Our Student Association must be able to provide the means and the for positive suggestions. If elected to the office of president I will use all my experience and energy to these ends.

Elected editor of the Southern Memories, college yearbook, was Cheryl Tribble, a junior communications major from Peoria, Ill.

Kathleen Johnson, a sophomore elementary education major from Jackson, Miss., was chosen chairman of the Social Education Committee.

Ed Shaler, a junior communications major from Lexington, Ky., and present editor of the Southern Memories, was elected business manager of that publication.

The two days of balloting were preceded by approximately a week of campaigning, following the announcement of the official slate for each office, approved by the President's Council. The three presidential candidates made their traditional speeches in chapel, and all candidates were introduced and their standing for the posts of publications editors and president of the SA answered questions from the floor during a joint worship period.

SMC Students Attend Regional Psychology Meet

Six students and a faculty member from SMC behavioral science department attended the Southeastern Division of the American Psychological Association convention recently in Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Alissa Chambers, head of the department at SMC and sponsor of the club, took the group to the regional meeting.

Students attending from the college were Mary Silverstein, Phyllis Austin, Norma Young, Joe Ann Newman, Barbara Byrd, and Eno Stickley.

The group heard lectures during the day from a number of psychologists, the majority of whom are associated with various Southern colleges and universities.

New Girls' Dorm to Have Carpeting, Air Conditioning, Two-Room Baths

will be air conditioned and have a bath between each two rooms.

The center wing, extending half the length of the other two wings, will contain the deans' apartments, offices, and lounge area on the first floor. A chapel, seating 600 and used for religious purposes only, will be located on the second floor.

Each floor will feature a lounge where the women may gather informally for talk or relaxation. Adjoining it will be two soundproof study carrels where one or two people can study quietly.

Across from the lounge a utility area will be located, containing washers, dryers, ironing boards, bathtubs and hair dryers. Each room will have a lavatory.

In order to accommodate a greater number of women, the basement in the present dorm is also used to house students. The new building will not have any student rooms in the basement. The space will be occupied by the recreation room, maintenance and power center, trunk room, and an incinerator. The recreation room will have a small kitchenette and will be used for club meetings and informal games.

In addition to the hall phones on each floor, the dorm will be wired so students may have their own room phones connected directly to the new SMC switchboard if desired.

Kitchenettes where women can prepare midnight snacks or entire meals will be on each floor.

Unique to this structure are the windows, which will be fixed. The air conditioning unit in each room will bring in outside fresh air, omitting the need for open windows. Also, it will be more economical at least won't be escaping through open windows in the winter.

Rooms will be equipped with intercom speakers. Furniture will be entirely built-in with the exception of the beds. The wall unit will contain a double wardrobe for each girl, chest of drawers, book shelves, storage space and lavatory.

No elevator will be installed immediately, but a shaft will be present to provide for an elevator later.

"Smoking Sam" Comes to SMC Area At Invitation of College ATS Group

"It is well worth the time, effort and money to get 'Smoking Sam' to come to Chattanooga," said Dr. I. M. Ackerman, sponsor of Southern Missionary College's American Temperance Society.

"Smoking Sam," a manikin representing a 12-year-old boy, not only shows but tells the effects of smoking on the lungs. "Smoking Sam" was on WTVC's program, FOCUS, at 8:30 a.m. recently.

Equipped with a speaker and tape recorder, Sam, after smoking one cigarette says, "Why do I tell everyone not to smoke? Look at my lungs." His lungs are two glass jars filled with angel hair which traps the cigarette residue as it comes from his mouth by way of a tube.

Listen Magazine reports that "many smokers have given up the habit simply on the basis of seeing and hearing the demonstration."

Sponsored by the Southern Missionary College temperance club, Sam is scheduled to "speak" at eight schools in the Chattanooga area, including one college.

These schools are as follows: East Side Junior High, 2:30 p.m., March 21; Orchard Knob Junior High, 10:45 a.m., March 29; Rossview Junior High, 2:00 p.m., April 7; Soddy Daisy High, 12:55 p.m., April 14; Booker T. Washington High, 11:50 a.m., April 20; Chattanooga City College, 1:00 p.m., April 25; Sequatchie High, 1:30 p.m., May 3; West Lafayette, 1:30 p.m., May 5.

Thousands of students across the country have seen "Smoking Sam" show them why not to smoke. For information on "Smoking Sam" call, 396-2793 or 396-2501.

Physics Graduate Gets $14,000 For Research

Dr. Carl Jansen, a 1958 graduate of SMC with a major in physics, has been awarded a $14,000 fellowship for his research in nuclear medicine, according to the University of Missouri Medical Center, Columbia, Mo., where Dr. Jansen is a resident physician in the department of radiology.

Completing his undergraduate studies at SMC, Dr. Jansen spent a year in graduate work at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., under an Atomic Energy Commission Health-Physics Fellowship.

He received the M.D. degree in 1963 from Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, Calif.

Upon completion of his three-year residency in radiology in June, Dr. Jansen will devote full time to his research during the next academic year, using the University's nuclear research reactor center on the Columbia campus.

His studies involve the application of neutron activation analysis in clinical medicine.

Summer Language Programs to Be Offered in Europe by Institute

An intensive summer language session in France and fall-semester programs in Austria, France, Germany, and Spain will be inaugurated this year by the Institute of European Studies, a Chicago-based educational institution for study abroad.

The six-week summer French program will begin June 19 in Nantes, France. An Institute spokesman said it has been designed primarily for students who need accelerated instruction in French before participation in academic-year programs at the Institute's Nantes and Paris centers.

However, the summer program is also open to students who do not intend to pursue further studies in France following the program.

The fall-semester programs will be offered at the Institute's centers in Paris, Madrid, Freiburg, West Germany, and Vienna. They will be devoted to liberal arts, social science studies and intensive language instruction.

All fall-semester programs, except those at Vienna, are open to qualified sophomores and juniors registered in U.S. four-year liberal arts colleges.

The Institute, a private, non-profit educational institution, also conducts fall-year and spring-semester programs at its five European centers in Freiburg, Madrid, Nantes, France, Paris and Vienna. It is the principal U.S. sponsor of undergraduate foreign study programs.

Students from over 300 U.S. colleges and universities currently participate in the Institute's programs. Further information can be obtained by writing to the Institute at 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago.

Eastern Inter-Collegiate Workshop Convenes Annual Meet on Campus

By JAMES ERMISTER

Student leaders from seven eastern and mid-western colleges attended the annual Eastern Inter-collegiate Student Association Workshop which was held on the campus of Southern Missionary College May 3-6. SMC's Student Association was host for the Workshop and responsible for its planning and execution.

The theme for the workshop was "relevancy," and the discussion centered on the place and purpose of Student Association activity in SDA colleges and universities, with special regard to the relevancy of the SA to student needs and problems.

Keynote address speaker for the opening session was Dr. Frank W. Hale, Jr., President of Oakwood College, Huntsville, Alabama, who urged that "SA leaders realize its responsibility at the educational process."

The Workshop was divided into four different areas of discussion. The administrative area was made up of the SA presidents and presidents-elect and was chaired by Donald Vollmer, president of the SA at SMC. The Scholarship area discussion was headed by Ken Truckew, Chairman of the Educational Standards Committee at Andrews University. The Publications area—newspaper and annual—were headed by Rodney Bryant, Editor of the ACCENT, and Ed Shaffer, Editor of SMC's Southern Memories.

Student representatives and sponsors from Andrews University, Heriott Springs, Mich., Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Mass., Columbia Union College, Takoma Park, Md., Oakwood College, Huntsville, Ala., Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tenn., Southwestern Union College, Keene, Texas, and Union College, Lincoln, Neb., were in attendance. Approximately seventy delegates were registered by the opening session Wednesday evening.

Thursday and Friday were taken up with special committee sessions and general assembly meetings. The highlight of Thursday's activities was an evening banquet with Mr. John N. Popham, managing editor of The Chattanooga Times as the main speaker. Mr. Popham spoke of the responsibility facing student leaders and future citizens to deal with the plights of the underdeveloped countries, by the shortage of food in the world and by the lack of knowledge.

Friday morning at the last session, the general assembly acted on the resolution brought from the various areas for passage. Plans were laid for the establishment of an intercollegiate newspaper to be published at CUC. This perhaps was the most significant action of the session.

Dr. C. N. Rees Receives Dedication of '67 Annual

The 1967 edition of the Southern Memories was released during chapel ceremonies May 4, 1967. The recipient of the first copy was Dr. C. N. Rees, to whom the yearbook was dedicated.

Dr. Rees has served as president of SMC for the past eight years but voluntarily relinquished that post last February after having suffered a severe stroke around the first of December of last year.

During the special ceremonies Dr. Rees was rolled onto the chapel stage in a wheelchair to receive the first copy of the Memories from Eddie Shaffer, editor of the publication. This marked the first time that he has appeared before the student body since last fall.

Dr. Rees spoke a few words to the students thanking them for the honor given to him.

The theme of this year's yearbook is the new administration building which, serving as a symbol of the progress of this college, and it is indeed a fact that progress was the watchword of the administration of Dr. Rees. The dedication of the 1967 edition of the Southern Memories to Dr. Rees is but a small token of student and faculty appreciation for the work which he has done.

Office Administration Area Names Secretary of Year

The Southern Missionary College chapter of the National Association of Secretaries recently elected Bonnie Schwerin, junior office administration major, as "Secretary of the Year."

This is the first year that a qualification was given to the title hopefuls.

Formerly, the office administration department teachers selected the student themselves, based on their observance of the abilities of the student. The test was given on a voluntary basis to the qualifying office administration majors: two-year associate degree students graduating this year, and junior and senior four-year baccalaureate degree students.

Bonnie has had practical experience in the secretarial field, working during the summer of 1964 in a hospital as a secretary and switchboard operator. She has been employed by the women's dean at SMC for the past two years, and this year is full-time secretary to all four women's deans.

In the chapel program where she was presented with the award, Bonnie also received the Standard Handbook for Secretaries by Lois Hutchinson and a $5 gift certificate.

Bonnie has considered going into dental work after graduation next year, but said that her ultimate goal is mission service for the church.

Bobcock-Steiner, Senior Pianist, Presents Recital

Mrs. Beverly Bobcock-Steiner, music major at Southern Missionary College, presented her senior piano recital Sunday, May 7, in the Miller Fine Arts Building recital hall.

Mrs. Steiner has received a number of local music awards. She won the Elizabeth Windsor Scholze award given by the Chattanooga Music Club in 1963 for performance excellence on the piano in open competition.

Presently, she is the organist for the East Ridge Presbyterian Church in Chattanooga. Also, she has been the accompanist for four years for the Collegiate Chorale, SMC's concert choral touring group.

Carlson Elevated To Top Position Of WSMC Radio

Curtis Carlson, a junior theology major, of Orlando, Fla., was elected by the WSMC-FM executive committee to be station manager for the college year 1967-68.

A communications minor, Carlson has been a student at SMC for two years, and has worked on the station staff for approximately three months. He will assume his duties June 1 and will continue for one year, managing the station's broadcasting operations.

Commenting on plans for next year, he said "Now that WSMC-FM with 80,000 watts is a reality, we are looking forward, with the support of our listening audience, to expansion of our broadcast hours and continued improvement of programming and quality."

Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carlson of Orlando, will be a senior in the fall at SMC.

Student Literary Effort Finally Released on Campus

By MARY JOHNSTON

The "Legacy" is finally on sale after the long tortuous advertising campaign which so persistently preceded its publication. The campaign for contributions had desirable and some undesirable results. Although the editors received over 210 contributions, the student body, in general, received the impression that the "Legacy" was desperate beyond description for material. Because of the unexpectedly large number of contributions, however, the students of Southern Missionary College can feel assured that they are getting a "Legacy" which is well worth their reading and enjoyment.

Despite several nasty rumors that were flitting around just before the "Legacy" went on sale, the "Legacy" does not cost "$2.00 or $3.00" per copy, but is most reasonably priced, considering that it is much larger than its predecessor and had to cope with a high inflationary rise in the cost of printing.

"Too many people have come to me saying, 'I think it is terrible that you don't get any pay for your work on the "Legacy,"' said editor Philip Whidden in a personal interview with the ACCENT.

"All I can say is that as a staff we have had too many good times together, and too many laugh-filled meetings to accept any kind of remuneration without feeling guilty."

The Scholarship committee not only inaugurated the publication of the "Legacy" but also showed its real interest in the journal by loaning its purse strings to the tune of $200.00, thereby lowering its cost to you by approximately 20% per copy.

"If the 'Legacy' deserves any praise, as I think it surely does, it is because of the wonderful material that we had to work with. The credit lies with the authors, artists, and photographers—certainly not with me," concluded Whidden. "Don't fail to buy a copy as soon as you possibly can. It is worth much more than its small cost seems to indicate."

It's Your Privilege

Consequently, it is our duty to see that this association functions in accordance with its constitution. It is our privilege to check up on our officers to see if they are doing their job in accordance with the precepts set before them and see that they fulfill the promises they have made in their platforms. We should examine carefully the operations of this government and voice our opinions of its actions. We must criticize constructively and prudently concerning those things about which we don't agree. This way we gain our strength and thus, this is how our association gains its strength, since it is only as strong as its weakest member.

In the issue of April 13 the article "1967 Talent Program Stages Loose Money" by Gwynn Carey was interesting but a bit disconcerting. Should we bring our "dirty linens" or such a public clothesline? If this dress went only to students, it might be different—and yet I can't see what good could come from putting into print the fact that certain tickets were stolen, etc.. Could it be possible that a God-fearing parent might question the advisability of sending his child to such an environment? God forbid that such Third, we propose that Senior Presentation be discontinued. We feel that this is a mere formality which offers no constructive benefit to the individual Senior, and at best allows only an opportunity for personal display, which if not accompanied by meaningful purpose—both for those who participate and those who attend—is not in the best interest of either. We recognize that it allows some public relations opportunity for the school, but this we feel is marginal, and is more than adequately compensated for by the regular graduation exercises at the end of the academic year.

A New Column: Book Reviews

Why War?

By JAMES EDMISTER

The Story of the Crusades, by Alfred Duggan, New York: Random House, 1963, 250 pp.

The first reaction I have upon reading and studying about the Crusades is that they were a shocking waste of human lives. The records of merciless, senseless slaughter committed by both the Christians and Infidel armies is disgusting. But then again we cannot say that, for the same senseless wars have taken place throughout all recorded history, to our supposedly very civilized day. However, I must—for myself—conclude that it is indeed senseless and downright sickening, for war is something I cannot understand. The thought that one human can cold-bloodedly and with all presence of mind spiritually murder another is something I cannot explain. It can only be charged off to some cruel insanity which lurks in all human beings, who, by preoccupation with the quest for treasure, pleasure, and self-gratification, unknowingly give way to its passion and then helplessly become the vehicle of its expression.

However great the initial triumph of the Crusades, their long range objectives failed from a military standpoint. In fact, the advancement of the "peaceful" arts made much more progress than did the attempted conquest of the Holy Lands with the sword. From the beginning, when Pope Urban II preached the First Crusade in 1095, until 1291, when the last Christian stronghold in the Holy Land fell to the Moslems, thousands of churches and cathedrals were peacefully established throughout Europe. What really could have been accomplished, for mankind and future generations, if the vast amounts of gold and silver expended along with the thousands upon thousands of human lives wasted in their prime, had been applied to some constructive and lasting humanitarian effort? But that is what man has always asked himself after the battle smoke has cleared, and it is too late to provide an answer to that age old question.

The objective of most of the major Crusades was the same: that of rescuing Christians in the Biblical lands and liberating Jerusalem, the place of the holy ground of the crucifixion, and the burial place of the Lord Jesus Christ. This twin objective and its accompanying dilemma (as to which objective was to have priority) led to a confusion of purpose and bitter political rivalries among the various leaders, and is a major reason for the ultimate failure of the Crusades.

For 200 years knights from every part of Europe fought for Church, God, and Christendom; they tasted victory temporarily, but never held it; they controlled, at times, vast amounts of territory, but never kept it; they overcame and forced back the Infidel armies, but never conquered them. In the end all they had to show for their effort was loss of life and empty treasures.

To be sure, the crusading spirit and the era it covered had an influence upon the European way of life, and determined to some extent the culture and customs of its future. But so do all wars; and just because wars are a part of our heritage, and exciting to read about, and because some had still wet behind the ears might "love" to have lived during the Crusades (or Revolutionary, Civil Wars), doesn't make them a happier part of our past.

I guess the one big boghead in my thinking is that I'm an idealist. To me the Crusades were an utter waste. But hindsight isn't worth a dime, and the cooler heads of historians 800 years removed cannot, it's too bad, affect the shape of current policies of mankind in the making.

Physics Workers Begin Research With Plasma-Jet

SMC physics students Steve Sowder and Roger Hall with the assistance of Mr. Roger Neigh, visiting lecturer, started the SMC Physics Department's plasma-jet recently.

The jet was started as "calorimetry measurements" could be made on the plasma-jet's cooling system. The data taken was used to determine the power loss of the jet to the cooling system.

The plasma-jet is a high current (500 amp) low voltage (40 volts) are through which the gas to be studied is fed. The light emitted by this plasma or excited gas is then studied by means of a spectrometer.

The information obtained from these spectra is used to determine the temperature of the plasma,  $f$ -values and the neutral and ionized atom densities of the different elements present in the plasma.

Interpretation Students Stage Lincoln Memorial

By GARY BRANT

Students of Mrs. McCormick's Oral Interpretation classes at SMC presented "Lincoln Memorial" recently, a program based on the president's later years and death.

Eight students gave readings and a short play. Mrs. Genevieve McCormick, assistant professor of speech here, originally compiled and directed the program.

John Robinson, sophomore oral interpretation student, was the stage manager and music coordinator. He was also responsible for airing the program over WSMC-FM, the college radio station, the following evening.

The "Chasouniers," a musical ensemble chorus, directed by Stewart Crook, assistant professor of music at SMC, provided live music with a selection of patriotic songs.

Some of the highlights of the program were "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," a play by Robert Sherwood, portraying Lincoln in his younger years, with Robert Fox and Bob Hunter; and Ray Munier giving "Lincoln, the Man of the People," by Edwin Markham.

Students participating were Tommy Ipes, Robert Fox, Bob Hunter, Andy McRae, Ray Munier, Judy Salvers, Carol Ann Schneider, and Martha Whitley.

Mothers' Day

Love Lady

By MARTHA KELLEY

Mother is the lady who sent me a bag of oranges and a few cakes of both soap last night. I got some nylons in the mail from her today. She's the same person who came all the way from Nashville a few months ago to bring me half a dozen journals so that I could have one to wear for the spring banquet. Mama, a wonderful person who means everything to me, would sacrifice anything for me, even her life. Even though I don't always show my appreciation of her devotion, I do not destroy her love for me. I am always hurting her feelings. For example, when she says, "Put on an apron to protect your clothes," while I'm cooking, I usually gripe and grumble. This hurts Mother, but she doesn't love me any less for it, and I always find out later that her way is best.

Since I have been at SMC, Mother has sent me several 12-page letters full of news and advice. She can portray her love by a simple letter, a short visit, or by just being there when I need her.

Reveal New Lyceum-Arts; Stars Luboff, Navy Band

By BONNY MURPHY

"Norman Luboff, the Vienna Boys' Choir, and the U. S. Navy Band are scheduled as part of SMC's Lyceum-Fine Arts series next year," reports Dr. Jerome Clark, chairman of the Lyceum-Fine Arts Committee.

The world famous Vienna Boys' Choir, on their 23rd North American tour, will perform at SMC on January 14, 1968. This organization was founded in 1498, just six years after Columbus discovered North America. To sing in the choir, the boys must be between the ages of eight and fourteen. Joseph Hayden and Franz Schubert sang with the group in their youth.

The U. S. Navy Band, directed by Lieutenant Commander Anthony A. Mitchell, is scheduled for an afternoon and evening concert on March 10. The Band performed at SMC before, drawing a capacity audience. Lieutenant Commander Mitchell became conductor of the band in March of 1962. Since then the band has appeared in 107 cities. The band was officially begun in 1925 when President Calvin Coolidge signed a special act of the 68th Congress designating it as the official band of the United States Navy of Washington, D. C. They have played in hundreds of communities and cities throughout these United States, and made numerous appearances in Canada, South America, and elsewhere throughout the world.

Norman Luboff is scheduled for an evening performance March 17, 1968. This group has traveled extensively both in the United States and overseas. They have also released many recordings.

The ACENT summer edition will feature a complete report on the Lyceum-Fine Arts series.

Clark Attends Convention Of American History Society

Dr. Jerome L. Clark, professor of history at the college, recently attended the annual convention of the Organization of American Historians, meeting in Chicago at the Palmer House.

In attendance along with historians from across the country, including several from Seventh-day Adventist colleges, Dr. Clark heard papers on various aspects of American history and thought.

Of outstanding interest, according to Dr. Clark, was a paper on the early New Deal, by Frank Freidel. Presenting evidence drawn from private papers and documents, Freidel set forth the view that the question which prevented cooperation between FDR and Hoover during the early months of the New Deal was whether the great depression was domestically or internationally caused. Roosevelt believed that it was domestic in its cause. Hoover, on the other hand, thought that its causes were international in nature, and urged Roosevelt to "call off" the New Deal and work instead for cancellation of the war debts as a remedy.

Speaker at the Thursday night dinner of the organization was Thomas Corcoran, outgoing president, who presented a paper on "The Business Ethic in American History." Presiding officer at the session, according to Dr. Clark, was the author of the textbook used at SMC in the class American History and Institutions.

Other papers presented dealt with such topics as the role of the Negro in World War I, George Goethals and military supply in World War I, the origin of the Bill of Rights' doctrine on self-incrimination, and the right of privacy in American history.

Other Seventh-day Adventist historians attending included Dr. A. E. Dick of Union College, author of the Sod House Frontier, Dr. George Thomson of Union, and Dr. Richard Schwartz of Andrews University.

Coon Speaks to Theologians At Annual SMA Retreat

The Student Ministerial Association of Southern Missionary College held its annual on-campus Religion Retreat the weekend of April 22-23.

Featured as guest speaker was Elder G. A. Coon, former pastor of the Madison College Church and Southern Union revivalist.

Elder Coon has traveled quite extensively throughout the United States speaking at meetings such as the retreat held here. He is especially noted for his work on the West coast. Living in Roan Mountain, Tenn., he is presently in semi-retirement.

Elder Coon's dynamic message of the weekend was centered around "The Prayer of Reception." Four meetings were held over the weekend and were presented in workshop form. The meetings were held in hopes that the information presented would prove beneficial in the ministry of the students who compose the membership of the Ministerial Association.

Presented during the meetings were the officers of the association for the 1967-68 school year. They are Floyd Powell, president; Ross Marina, vice-president; Rick Wilkins, treasurer; Barbara Harlow, secretary; Gary Anderson, public relations; and Wally Wilkins, chorister.

131 Seniors Receive SMC Degrees

Thirty students of nursing received their nursing pins in connection with the Commencement Weekend Services at Southern Missionary College.

The ceremony was held in the Collegedale Seventh-day Adventist Church on Saturday, May 27.

Smuts Van Rooyen, SMC instructor in religion, gave the main address. The pinning was conducted by Dr. Harriet Reeves, chairman of SMC's Division of Nursing, assisted by her two associates, Miss Catherine Glatho for the baccalaureate nurses, and Mrs. Del Watson for the associate degree nurses. This was the first pinning service for the associate degree graduates. The new A. D. program is given at SMC and its affiliate, Madison Hospital, Madison, Tenn.

Others participating in the program were as follows: Elder Herman Ray, invocation; Paula Walker, flute solo; Nonie Platt and James Marston, class responses; Judy Whitman, vocal solo; Mrs. Patricia Gillit, benediction; Ray Ruckle, organist.

Graduates of the 4-year baccalaureate program who were pinned are as follows: Sandra Brown, Irene Coppi, Myra Coven, Kenneth Jones, Rita Knight, Dianne Parker, Nonie Platt, Lana Roberts, Betty Sinclair, Luaner Sinclair, Judy Whitman, Pat Horvath, Faith McComb, Gerald Owen and David Senger.

Graduates of the 2-year associate degree program who are being pinned are as follows: Marcia Abernathy, Marietta Andrus, Kathryn Bellware, Karen Campbell, Ruth Cranston, Linda Davis, Linda Hargis, Cuttie Lamke, James Marston, Virginia Meert, Sylvia Sue, Carol Swanson, Paula Thum, Paula Walker and Sandra Willey.

Dr. Frank Knittel Assumes Academic Dean's Position

Dr. Frank Knittel, vice president for student affairs at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich., has been elected academic dean of Southern Missionary College.

Dr. Knittel arrived at SMC in June to replace Dr. J. W. Cassell, Jr., SMC's present academic dean and acting president, who accepted the post of academic dean at Pacific Union College.

Dr. Knittel joined the staff of Andrews University in 1959 to teach in the English Department. Four years later he was elected vice president for student affairs.

Dr. Cassell joined the staff of SMC in June, 1963, and has served as academic dean until he was elected to fill the position of academic dean left vacant by Dr. W. M. Schneider at Pacific Union College, Angwin, Calif., when Dr. Schneider accepted the presidency of SMC.

Looking ahead to his new position, Dr. Knittel said, "I would like to gain some experi-

Lovejoy Takes Up Duties As Madgwick Goes to CUC

Delmer F. Lovejoy has taken up his new duties as dean of student affairs at Southern Missionary College.

An instructor in the SMC physical education department for the past two years, Lovejoy has taken over the post vacated by Gordon A. Madgwick, who has gone to Columbia Union College, Takoma Park, Md., to be dean of students.

Madgwick came to SMC as an instructor in English in 1958. In 1962 he was named English department head, a position he held for the next three years.

In 1965, Lovejoy became dean of student affairs, holding that post until the end of this school term.

Before coming to SMC in 1965, Lovejoy was dean of boys at San Fernando Valley Academy, another California school. From 1958-60 he was boys' dean at Cedar Lake Academy in Mich. Before going to Cedar Lake, he was at Southfield Junior Academy in Detroit, where he taught and served as principal.

Lovejoy has received all of his formal education in Mich. He received his bachelor of arts degree in 1953 from Andrews University, Berrien Springs, and his master of arts from Michigan State University, East Lansing. His undergraduate major was history, and his graduate work was in physical education, health, recreation and sociology. His master's thesis was titled "Recreational Leadership in Seventh-day Adventist Secondary Schools."

He is a member of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, and Phi Delta Kappa.

He and his wife Delores have three children.

Pioneer, McKees Give Scholarships For Total of $1000

Ten students at Southern Missionary College have been awarded $100 scholarships, presented jointly by the Pioneer Foundation of Chattanooga and Mr. and Mrs. O. D. McKee of Collegedale.

As announced earlier this year by George M. Clark, chairman of the board of Pioneer Bank and O. D. McKee, president of the McKee Baking Company, a yearly fund of $1000 is available to sophomores, juniors or seniors of SMC. They are Eddie Avant, Don Brunner, Benjamin Holt, Rodney Hyde, Norma Jara, Patricia Marsh, Ronald Newell, Gerald Rickaby, Don Shaw, and Gayle Thornton.

Three prominent men in the Seventh-day Adventist world organization were the featured speakers during commencement weekend at Southern Missionary College.

They were Elder Robert H. Pierson, president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists; Dr. C. B. Hirsch, head of the education department of the General Conference, and Dr. Frank Knittel, vice president for academic affairs of Andrews University.

The consecration service was held on Friday night at Collegedale's Seventh-day Adventist Church with Dr. Frank Knittel as speaker. Dr. Knittel was recently elected academic dean for SMC to fill the vacancy that will be left by Dr. J. W. Cassell, Jr., who has accepted the position of academic dean at Pacific Union College, Angwin, Calif.

Elder Robert H. Pierson, president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Washington, D. C., gave the baccalaureate address to the 131 graduating seniors at Southern Missionary College on Saturday morning.

He said, "Your aim, Christ-likeness Toward Others," indicates that we are to take Christ as our example, our pattern. Other persons—your parents, teachers, ministers—as much as we might admire them, and however good they may be, can still disappoint us. Jesus is the one true guide."

Elder Pierson, who is the author of 12 books, is a former student of SMC. He has served his church in the local area, including Nashville and Atlanta, as well as overseas in India, the West Indies and Africa. He was elected president of the world-wide church this past summer at the General Conference meeting in Detroit.

Elder Pierson told the graduates that "the world may disagree with our doctrines, but it cannot take exception to the good spiritual life of a real, genuine, practicing Seventh-day Adventist Christian."

"You must learn, as I hope you have been learning, the passive, as well as the active virtue. We will not only be enthusiastic in our work but we will have such qualities as Christian courtesy, humility and love."

Southern Missionary College graduated 131 seniors at the Commencement Service on Sunday morning. Dr. Hirsch was the speaker.

Dr. Hirsch told the seniors that "Since Genesis to the present time, there has been an invisible cord, which through history has been guiding man to his destiny, as made possible by his Creator."

Dr. Hirsch has served as chairman of the social science departments at La Sierra College, La Sierra, Calif., and at Columbia Union College, Washington, D.C. He has also served as president of Columbia Union College and as vice president for academic administration of Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich. A Veteran of

A Quest Critique

Several times during this year there have appeared in this organ evaluations of the "Vollmer administration." So perhaps it would not be out of place that there appear likewise an evaluation of the "1957 Southern Accent."

This evaluation is based upon (1) reading of the paper, (2) listening to people who have just read it, and (3) a letter discussion with one of the editors. It is written under circumstances which prevent looting and documentation, and, therefore, represents mostly opinions.

The first question which comes to mind is, "What did the editorship attempt to accomplish?" The only stated goals which are recalled at the moment were: (1) reader participation and (2) increased readership among the student body. But, on a more philosophical plane, what was being attempted? Three answers will be conjectured and then evaluated:

1. The editors printed everything.
2. The editors attempted to stimulate thinking by printing randomly selected criticism of various things. (It is said that a famous author attempted to do this by publishing several books, each with a different pseudonym, and each with a different slant on his subject.)
3. The editors pursued a policy of counterbalancing, with pointed criticism, what they considered an overemotionalistic and bungling "establishment" on campus.

Now several pieces of "evidence" will be suggested to guide us to the correct conclusion.

A. Several items in the issues of the paper appeared to criticize the status quo as being potentially or bungling (concocted story, "May Day" story, etc.) It is difficult to assemble a list of items criticizing it for being too liberal.

Exhibit A supports conjecture #1 and #3 and opposes conjecture #2.

B. The letters to the editor appear to be split widely between those who acutely urge further examination of "rules" and those who desperately argue that things are as God wills them to be, with a few in between, of course.

In the absence of letters criticizing the editor for his conservative views, exhibit B can also be taken to oppose conjecture #2. The desparate letters were, in some cases, pitiful, giving the impression that the only thing about which they could really complain was "elitism." On the other hand:

C. The editors' answers to some of these letters (say, the case from Mr. Booth) seemed rather casual.

Exhibit C supports, in the writer's opinion, conjecture #3. D. The paper has printed letters deprecating its views. It has printed everything which I know to have been submitted to it. There is even a rumor that the Department of Religion did not respond to a request for material which it deemed helpful to the spiritual atmosphere of the campus.

Exhibit D on the sides of conjectures #1 and #3?

Against #1 can be humorously (?) fitted the following "logic":

E. Literary persons hate the universe: the editors are literary persons; therefore, the editor hate the universe (which, by definition, includes the administration).

After much thought, the writer concludes that at least the editors have not prevented one's coming to the conclusion that conjecture #3 is correct.

On the positive side, it can be said that criticism in press does get things done. (It would be awkward not to revise the "SMC and You" this year.) And it does "let off steam" in a manner preferable to rioting, indulgence in intemperate chemicals, and other "unlabeled behavior."

On the negative side, it could be pointed out that those campuses plagued with those three manifestations have newspapers which, as I recall (I was at Berkeley) exhibited some years ago just like some of the material mentioned in Exhibit A. Secondly, on the negative side of this evaluation of the editors' choice, it can be questioned whether critics ever really right a wrong without at the same time causing more wrong somewhere else. Do revolutionaries usually make good governors?

Thirdly, on the side wishing that the editors had avoided the critical image, one notes how much good (problem solving, constructive, etc.) can be done with the sort of talent which produced some of the gems during this year's issues (like the tribute to Dr. Ross, and the analysis of "Can God make a rock so large that He cannot move it?").

Now, I think that I follow the logic of the even more angry young men when I state that the people who need good done to them are IN the establishment (It is in administration and "nice" young people, that they direct their words and actions). And now I think that I state the thinking of the administrators and nice young people that they respond to constructive criticism with less defensive actions than they do to destructive criticism.

Therefore, I come to the conclusion that if they (the "even angrier young men") want to change the other people, that is, either to convert them or to cause a change of administrative patterns—that they would wish to use constructive criticism. If our ideas are hollow, pretentious, and hypocritical, can we not better witness to Christ by making our suggestions with our love?

My conclusion has been anticipated by 2,000 years: I find it written in Matthew 18:15-17 and James 3:18, 20, for instance. Many prayers have been devoted, and many more will be devoted, to the ultimate goal that the "1957 Southern Accent" will prove to have been a steppingstone on which the editors sharpened their skills on the way to becoming a powerful force for God in the world.

Abolish Electoral College

By Mike POWWORTH

As well-informed college students of this age who undoubtedly are well acquainted with the process by which we elect the electors of this nation quadrennially choose our President and Vice President. But do we really choose these leaders? Under our present election system these offices are filled by individuals elected not by popular vote, but by members of the Electoral College, consisting of individuals from each State of the Union. Their number is governed by the representatives in both houses of Congress from each State. Ex. Tennessee has 9 representatives + 2 senators = 11 electors.

The candidate who carries the majority of the popular vote in each State usually receives all the electoral vote of that State. But, due to defects in this system our nation has in the past had minority Presidents, and it is possible that it could happen again! For this reason I advocate the abolishment of the Electoral College.

Three times in our history the Electoral College has given us Presidents who actually received fewer votes than their opponents! In 1824 four candidates ran for President: Andrew Jackson, John Quincy Adams, William H. Crawford, and Henry Clay. Jackson was the clear, popular vote choice of the people, polling half again as many votes as his nearest opponent, John Quincy Adams. Adams was elected by the House of Representatives when the electoral system failed to give any of the candidates a majority.

In 1876 Samuel Tilden outpolled Rutherford B. Hayes by what seemed to be an overwhelming 250,000 votes. Yet a dispute within the Electoral College threw the decision into the lap of a joint commission and Hayes ended up with 185 electoral votes to Tilden's 184.

In 1888, Grover Cleveland led Benjamin Harrison by 96,000 votes, yet Harrison carried off an electoral majority and won election.

Such results are a deliberate flouting of majority rule and have no place in our democratic system. All other elective Federal officers, including Senators and Representatives, are chosen by popular vote through direct elections. Why shouldn't the President and Vice President be chosen in like manner thus preventing minority winners?

The Editors want to commend the column on

We appreciate Dr.

Hefflerlin's logical, clear analysis of our, and ACCENT.

Congressional Ethics

It is probably true that if you put temptation in a man's way, he will have a statistically higher chance of yielding to it than if he had never seen it at all.

While this may seem the baldest of platitudes, it has interesting and current applications. These applications are in the perennially problematic area of "Congressional ethics."

The cases of Mr. Powell and Mr. Dodd are indeed unfortunate, but if they serve to focus the attention of the American people on the inherent, built-in weaknesses in our present conception of "Congressional ethics," then they will have served a good purpose.

We can dismiss Mr. Powell's case from the present consideration, however. His use of committee funds was apparently for personal pleasure, and was not aimed at maintaining his political position or securing his re-election. As Mr. Powell well knows, he would be elected from his district if he spent not one penny for campaigning and organization.

The case of Senator Dodd is a different story. As we understand it, he is clearly "guilty" of violating the present definition of congressional ethics: but how did this case about? And more importantly, why?

Here we get back to our little platitude.

At this time, it is illegal for a man who aspires to public office to spend more than a certain—and very small—amount of money to obtain his objectives in the public arena. The law simply says he cannot spend more than "x" dollars. Though this amount may vary, it is usually at least sufficient to pay for his campaign telephone bill for one day.

We all know that this is so. And we all know the consequences, as well—up to a point. Congressmen on both state and national levels are not only tempted but forced to spend huge sums in campaigning in the America of 1957. vast populations cannot be reached by stagecoach, and even if they could, one could simply ignore the enormity of television, radio and print. But all these things cost money.

Politicians are therefore forced to resort to various ruses to avoid going under the law. They cannot legally spend more than their given amount, and they legally do not. Committees are formed, "friends" contribute, and by one method or another, the necessary funds are procured.

But here we encounter the unfortunate element in all of this: No one KEEPS UP with what is done with all this "nonexistent" money. A man has to be elected if he expects to serve. The temptation is that he will confuse the boundaries of ethical procedures—knowing that he does not, indeed CAN act, report these funds on their way.

There are at least two alternatives to this situation. On one hand, we can tax the public indirectly to support political campaigns. Many have advocated this, and it is certainly superior in several ways to the present system. But there is, we believe, a better way.

That better way would be to simply declare it not only legal but OBLIGATORY for a Congressman to report all funds used in maintaining his political position, whether in campaigning, fund-raising dinners, or personal gifts intended to go for political purposes. However much the total amounted to, there would be no penalty. The only penalty would come from not being accurate and complete in these reports.

This system would eliminate the temptation to allow personal finances to get into such a mess that they would require infusion from "political" sources. For every penny of "political" money would have to be accounted for.

At least one result would be a whole Congress-full of honest politicians.

Dear Mr. Editor,

I am writing to congratulate you and your staff for putting out your hard-hitting anti-smokepaper issue after issue this year.

The staff of the staffs of two such (LSC and AUI), I know something of what it is to battle the PR forces, and the wares crying "peace" in order to deal with the latest insanity, creatively, and responsibly. Thinking after all, always I been a rather disorganised person.

This year you have developed a large number of letters, and fuzzy though some of these might be, at least they are evidence that you have succeeded in guiding a few others into the thought area.

Although I have disagreed with some of your views, I can't help but applaud and defend the courageous way you have hammered them out and signed your initials to them.

For the scratch the media appear to have. The worst group I've drunk deep of clowns in printing life was the boys of '60, and worst of all, the lot of future strength and joy. I've seen new ideas, new values, and new life in the future in reward the kind of friendship of the workers.

It is a time of interesting, a time for seeking a balance in color of right and wrong. It's fun, it's broadening, it's unexplainably and indisputably. It has been a year, too fast gone.

World War II, Dr. Hirsch was awarded a bronze star and five battle stars for service in Normandy, the Rhineland and the Ardennes.

In speaking of "The Invisible Cord," Dr. Hirsch said, "Providence is seldom alluded to in the world today. Natural forces are accredited with phenomenon or seemingly unexplainable intervention on the part of a Supreme Being. Certainly these factors do not obviate the facts or our twentieth century outreach intellectually. One would join the ostrich or Rip Van Winkle if he chose to ignore progress or fail to recognize the tremendous changes in all fields of knowledge. The potentialities in every area are indeed staggering. God expects us to expand and search and stretch our mental capacities to the fullest. The caution is, that, we recognize the over-riding power of God in the Universe in the framework of His constituency rather than an earth staggering on in the uncontrolled and uncontrollable context of happenstance."

Dr. Hirsch coordinates the educational work of the church, overseeing 5,168 schools, colleges and universities throughout the world.

He holds the B.A. from Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Mass., and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Indiana University.

tought church school in Louisiana one year before completing his undergraduate study at Union College, Lincoln, Neb. During his two years at Union he edited the college paper, the Clack Tower, one year, and the yearbook, the Golden Cards, the next. Following graduation in 1947, he held positions as dean of boys at Enterprise and Completion Academies in Kansas and Colorado respectively. Between these two positions he spent three years in the Army.

In 1955 he joined the staff of the University of Colorado where he subsequently earned his master's and doctorate degrees. He remained there as an assistant dean of men until he joined the staff at Andrews University in 1959.

Ausserer Presents Certificates to Seven Students

Seven students of Southern Missionary College, presently enrolled in German classes, received Certificates of Merit in the May 18 convocation from their instructor, Rudolph R. Ausserer, head of the German department.

The students were as follows: Arnet Kanna, Lary Rascon and Ernest Raine from a two-year course; Sylvia Crook, Gary Hartman and Jutta Malgady from a three-year course; and Suzi Parks from a four-year course.

The Certificate of Merit is given every year to students with a high standing who have had German for at least two years and have had an average of at least 90 percent. Only 7 1/2 percent, but no more than five students from each class, may receive this award. The Certificate is signed by the president of the American Association of Teachers of German.

$3750 Awarded to Students In Annual Honors Chapel

Seven professors representing various departments announced winners of scholarships, literary awards, certificates of merit, and contest prizes.

Dr. Wayne VandeVere, chairman of the applied arts and sciences division, presented three awards. Jim Williams won the "Senior of the Year" award given by the Wall Street Journal for the outstanding senior nominated by the business administration department. He receives a year's subscription to the Wall Street Journal and has his name engraved on a plaque in the department. Two students won scholarship awards from the Adventist Association of Certified Public Accountants: Frank Castorian, a junior, received $150 and William Nutt, a sophomore, received $100. This is the first year these awards have been given.

The 1968 representatives for "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" were announced. They are as follows: Beth Menzinger, Mary Sue McNall, Ron Bentzinger, Eddie Shofer, Curtis Carlson, Rollin Mallernee, Patricia Mooney, David Steen, Cheryl Trumble, Marvin Peek, Anette Palm, Ernest Ahl, Marvin Young, Virginia Grother, Nancy Marsh, Linda Bicknell, Judith Couch, Charles Kuhlman, Judy Martin, Erwin Ellison, Edward Humphrey, Ernest Raines.

Miss Catherine Clatho, associate professor of nursing, presented four awards. In the baccalaureate degree program Lomax Sinclair won the W. B. Calliant award for being the outstanding nursing senior of the year. He received $150. Diane Parker received the A. E. Deyo Memorial Scholarship for $50. She was cited as the nurse most likely to make an outstanding contribution to the Seventh-day Adventist medical work.

In the associate degree nursing program two students won the Kentucky-Tennessee chapter award of the Loma Linda University Medical and Dental Association. Paula Walker and Cathie Lemke, who are graduating this year from the two-year program, received $25 each. This award is given for academic excellence and dedication to Christian nursing. To qualify they must have a grade point average of 3.00 or "B." be active participants in TASN, the national student nursing organization, and have above average performance in clinical nursing.

Leon Short, instructor in journalism, announced the names of two students who will be taking summer internship work in journalism and public relations. Pat Horning, junior communications major, will be employed in the editorial department of the Review & Herald, in Washington, D. C., the official publication of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Cheryl Trumble will work in the "These Times" magazine editorial department of the Southern Publishing Association in Nashville. This is the first year such an internship program has been offered. Each will receive four hours academic credit and a scholarship amounting to approximately $750 for the eight-week period.

Dr. James Ackerman, associate professor of education and sponsor of the SMC chapter of the American Temperance Society, announced the results of four temperance contests. Arlene West won first prize nationally in the jingle contest in which 10 Seventh-day Adventist colleges in North America competed. She received $25.

For orations given on the subjects of narcotics, liquor, or smoking, the winners were: Harry Beatty, first prize—$65; Richard McLeod, second prize—$45; George Powell, third prize—$30; Norma Young, fourth prize—$20; Kelly Buttram, fifth prize—$15.

In the essay contest Russell Holt won first prize for $35 and Sherry Hughes won second prize for $25.

In the posters contest, the following won: Sheryl Boyer, first prize—$10; David Steen, second prize—$7.50; and Joyce Bohannon, third prize—$5.

Lynne Soule, acting head of the English department, and Miss Evelyn Lindberg, associate professor of English, presented literary awards to participants from the Creative Writing and Advanced Composition classes. Students, non-students, including professional writers in the annual Youth's Instructor competition called the Free Lance Pen League. Manuscripts were submitted to the Youth's Instructor and the Junior Guide, both weekly youth publications of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Students, their contributions, and the amounts they received for writing awards are as follows: Steve Patrick, first award—$50 for "Top Salesmanship"; Donna June Taylor, second award—$35 for "A Very Little" (she also received a $20 award from the Junior Guide Publication); David Brass, second award—$35 for "Double Rescue"; and Albert Dittes, third award—$20 for "Closed Doors." The editor of the Youth's Instructor reports that 49 manuscripts were submitted in the national Free Lance Pen League. Of the 49 submitted, 14 were accepted and nine of the 14 acceptances were manuscripts from SMC students.

All of the manuscripts submitted to the Junior Guide were accepted. Students received $20 for each story accepted. Their contributions and the amounts they received for writing awards are as follows: Carol Janet Baker, "Unmistakable Evidence"; Judith Ann Broderson, "A Missionary's Daughter"; Julia Brown, "Home Thoughts from Singapore"; Patti Foster, "Burling Boilers"; Wayne E. Haman, "Peppery Patotje"; Kaye King, "No Regrets"; Diane Knight, "The Missing Bridge"; David McCoom, "More Than Luck"; Elaine McDowell, "Discarded Policy"; Clarence Small, "Good Measure"; Michael Sutherland, "Missing in Action"; George Sutter, "Masked Mischief"; Donna June Taylor, "And They Lived"; Fred Tolhurst, "Prayer Beads and Peculiar People."

Mr. Ransom Luce, cafeteria food service director, presents a matched Bible and hymnal to Mrs. John Edgmon, Sr., honoring her for 25 years of service in the SMC cafeteria. Five of Mrs. Edgmon's seven children were at the special meeting of cafeteria workers when the presentation was made. Mrs. Edgmon has become well known to many students as a specialist in making potato salad, without which school picnics would be impossible. Mr. Hubert Smith, SMC chef, is at right.

SMC Accepts 1267

President Schneider Says Limit Will Be Set at 1400

Acceptances for the fall term at Southern Missionary College are running approximately 60 ahead of what they were at the same time last year, according to Dr. C. F. W. Fitcher, SMC's director of admissions and records.

At this time last year 1206 students had been accepted, whereas a total of 1267 have been accepted so far this year. Dr. Fitcher commented that the enrollment for SMC should be up slightly, but several factors will deter a larger gain this year.

One factor is the war in Viet Nam which has kept the acceptances down for the men, and the other is the fact that Seventh-day Adventist academies in the southeastern section of the United States do not graduate as many students this year as in previous years. He indicated that the opening enrollment would be approximately 1175 since not all who have applied will come.

Fields for which the most students have been accepted include the Bachelor of Science in Nursing, 191; the theology program, 158; and elementary education, 125.

Foreign countries represented are Africa, Colombia, Canada, East Africa, Ethiopia, Guatemala, Haiti, Hawaii, India, Lebanon, Mexico, Norway, Peru, the Philippines, Puerto Rico, Sweden, and Viet Nam.

Enrollment in the future at SMC will be limited to pres-only planned residence hall facilities and community students, according to Dr. W. M. Schneider, president of the college and secretary of the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Schneider explained that the reason for limiting SMC's enrollment within the foreseeable future is to permit better planning of academic facilities and student services to accommodate a determined maximum enrollment and to avoid student alienation that is often the result of large enrollments on a single campus.

The residence halls, when completed, will house about 1,000 students with approximately 400 coming from the community which will equal a maximum of 1,400. It is anticipated that this total will be reached in 1969-70.

A committee of the board will study the feasibility of establishing, as the need arises, one or two extension campuses in the South. These campuses would serve as feeder schools for SMC and provide terminal curricula for students interested in two-year programs.

Orlando and Nashville may well serve as the enlarged future extension campuses at these locations where SMC already has facilities for two areas of nursing.

Two floors of new administration building are now completed and occupied. (See other pictures on page 21.)

SMC Graduates 34 Candidates Aug. 4-5 Weekend

Southern Missionary College graduated 34 candidates for degrees at commencement exercises on August 4 and 5.

Speakers for the three ceremonies were Dr. Gordon Hyde, chairman of SMC's Communication Arts Division, consecration address on Friday night; Elder Oscar L. Heinrich, director of public relations for the Southern Union Conference, baccalaureate address on Saturday morning; and Elder J. Robert Spangler, associate secretary of the ministerial department of the General Conference, Saturday night commencement address.

Officers of the class were Jim Herman, president, Margaret

Five Residence Hall Deans Will Direct Dorm Activities

Five deans will direct the activities in SMC's three and one-half residence halls for the 1967-68 school term. Miss Grieta S. DeWind, former assistant dean, will be acting dean of women. Mrs. Ina McFarland and Mrs. Fae Rees will be her assistants.

Harold E. Kuebler will be the dean of men and Eric W. Kier is to be director of the men's residence halls.

Miss DeWind received her bachelor of science degree from Andrews University. She was formerly dean of girls at Grand Lodge Academy and then at Broadway Academy.

Mrs. Ina McFarland, who received her bachelor of science degree from SMC in 1966, will serve as Assistant Dean of Women. She also served as one of the assistant deans last year. Mrs. McFarland is married to Thomas McFarland, who will do graduate study in clinical psychology at the University of Tennessee.

Mrs. Fae Rees, wife of former President C. N. Rees, will assume the responsibilities as residence hall counselor in the WRH during regular posted hours. She has taught English in Collegedale Academy for the past several years in addition to her duties as a college president's wife.

Kuebler, who joined the staff of SMC in July, has served two years as dean of men at Andrews University where he received his bachelor of arts degree in religion in 1962 and his master's degree from the Seminary in 1963.

He is a member of the American Personnel and Guidance Association, and several articles written by him have appeared in "The Deans Window."

Dean Kuebler is married to the former Joan Little. They have three children: Donna Lynn, 13; Dorinda Sue, 11; and Deanne Rene, 6.

Kier received his bachelor of arts degree in education from Union College and his master of arts degree from Colorado State College. He served as physical education teacher and dean of boys at Campus Academy, and was principal of Plainview and Mount Aetna Academies. He is a member of the American Association of School Administrators.

Kier is married to the former Evelyn Irene Holmquist, and they have four children: Sandra, 24; Vance, 21; JoAnn, 19; and Jeff, 9.

Work Crews Get New Dorm Wings Ready for Fall

Work crews are working against the calendar in their attempts to have two wings of the new women's residence hall ready for student occupancy by September. Initially, there will be approximately 70 women in one wing and the same number of men in the other. The number will vary according to the enrollment.

Although the new wings will be completely carpeted and air conditioned and will have bathroom facilities between every two rooms, SMC business manager Charles Fleming stated that the cost per student to be housed is well below the national average for dormitory housing. This saving is possible, he said, because the college itself is serving as the general contractor for the project.

The completed dormitory will cost $4.5 million and will house 510 women.

Workers swing rafters into place as new Women's Residence Hall is being readied for new college year.

Get Ready

A New College Year

As the new college year will be getting under way in a few weeks, the SOUTHERN ACCENT will be trying its best to cover the events and the happenings, all facets of student life and faculty life at Southern Missionary College. A student newspaper, published every two weeks, can hardly be said to be covering up-to-date news, but it will be the policy of the SOUTHERN ACCENT to attempt, wherever possible, to cover events in the future so that the student body and the faculty as well as the workers in the field will get advance notice of what is happening. It will also be the policy of the SOUTHERN ACCENT to try to interpret student life in its editorial columns, and it is anxious to receive letters to the editor that will give good, critical, positive comments about life at SMC and about what can be done to improve it. We want to welcome our new readers that are coming in, the freshmen for the college year 1967-68, and we hope that they have been reading the SOUTHERN ACCENT either at their academies or at their homes. We who have been here for some time want to make you feel at home and want to make you feel a part of this college. One of the greatest assets of Southern Missionary College is its atmosphere of hospitality and of unity. As probably the fastest growing college in the Seventh-day Adventist denomination, we do not want to lose the inter-personal relationships that have existed so well between student and student, between staff member and staff member, and between student and student. This quality, with the desire and the motivation to be good Christians, is what has made Southern Missionary College great. We want to keep it that way.

Let us plan now to have a good college year, from the point of view of the spiritual, the mental and the social. All of us working together can have such a college.

It is the purpose of the SOUTHERN ACCENT to contribute in every way possible to make this one of the best years that SMC has ever had. Your support, your enthusiasm, and your suggestions will do much to make SMC what it should be and also to make the SOUTHERN ACCENT the student newspaper it should be for the coming year.

Let us have an enthusiastic, good college year!

New Language Lab Completed In Waad Hall

The installation of completely new language laboratory facilities is completed, according to Dr. Frank Knittel, SMC's new academic dean.

Manufactured by the Educational Electronics Division of Thompson, Roma, Wobridge, Inc., the new lab is equipped to handle up to 30 students at a time.

The system was installed by Miller, Thompson & Associates of Knoxville at a cost of $27,500. It is centrally located in SMC's Waad Hall, formerly the administration building, now being converted to classrooms and teachers' offices.

The main portion of electronic equipment is housed in two remote-control cabinets. Recording, playback and talkback functions of the system are contained in these large cabinets.

The entire lab facility is controlled from a master control panel, to be operated by a teacher or technician. It includes built-in provisions for monitoring any single student of selected groups of students without the students' awareness that they are being monitored. It

NSF Awards Another Grant to Physics of $1800

The National Science Foundation has granted Southern Missionary College $1,800 to match an equal amount that SMC will put into research to continue measurement of heat, density of gases, and related data on the plasma jet with which SMC has been doing experiments for some years in its physics laboratory, according to Dr. Roy Heffernin, head of SMC's physics department.

The NSF funds will apply to faculty research time and to travel.

In connection with this research, the Tennessee Academy of Science has responded with a grant of $175 to provide supplies such as liquid nitrogen, argon gas, etc. and for a student assistant research stipend.

Professor Joe Hutcherson of the physics staff and Instructor Bob McGurdy will be carrying forward the work since Dr. Heffernin will be on temporary leave at the University of Chattanooga.

The grants from the Tennessee Academy of Science and from the National Science Foundation are the 12th and 13th such grants that SMC's Physics department has received over the past nine-year period.

Dr. Heffernin will present several scientific papers at meetings this fall describing his research work at SMC.

He, along with Professor Bill Mundy, a former staff member at SMC for three years, will give a paper at a Symposium on Spectroscopy at the National Bureau of Standards in Washington.

Dr. Heffernin will also present a paper at the Southeastern section of the American Physical Society which will meet at Clemson University in November. He was invited to give the paper on SMC's physics research, and it is entitled "Will it be the Wisp? The Ideal Experiment." It will concentrate on the difficulties which had to be overcome in obtaining the data in the plasma jet experiments and similar experiments.

U. S. Direct Student Aid Of $200,000 Is Available

Almost $200,000 will be available to Southern Missionary College students during 1967-68 in federally supported programs. The direct student aid is from four programs administered by the college: The Educational Opportunity Grant, National Defense Student Loan, College Work-Study, and Nursing Student Loan Program. The college also will participate in the Nursing Education Opportunity Grant Program, which is just being inaugurated by the Public Health Service of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Awards for financial aid for the 1967-68 college year will be given as financial need is determined through a parent's confidential financial statement which they must submit to the College Scholarship Service of the College Entrance Examination Board, whose address is given on the form. After filing this statement, parents and students must file an application for the funds directly with the Director of Finance at SMC. When the report of the student's financial need is received, the college then considers the student's application for funds.

At SMC student financial assistance is based on need rather than on high academic achievement. The student, however, must show potential for academic success as evidenced by secondary-school grades and admission test scores or college grades. The student must have a minimum secondary-school grade-point average of 2.5 on a 4.0 system on major subjects or an American College Test composite score of 20. Minimum college grades begin at 2.30 after 23 semester hours have been completed, 2.35 after 54 semester hours, 2.40 after 95 semester hours.

The Educational Opportunity Grant Program allows a limited number of awards to the most needy students. These awards range from $200 to $800 with a grant of no more than one-half of a student's determined financial need allowed. This grant must then be matched with other financial aid, such as a loan or on-campus work program.

The Nursing Loan Program allows loans of up to $1,000 per school year to qualified students with an additional amount of approximately $250 allowed for summer school.

A qualified student may borrow, through the National Defense Student Loan Program, up to $750 per school year with an additional $250 allowed for summer school.

Recipients of National Defense Student loans may have one-half of their loans forgiven at the rate of 1/10th per year by entering the teaching field on a full-time basis. Those receiving nursing loans may receive the same forgiveness of their loans by becoming employed in non-profit institutions or agencies.

There is approximately a one-month delay between the time the parent's confidential statement is mailed to the College Scholarship Service and their analysis is sent to the college. Therefore, students desiring financial aid for the 1967-68 school year should apply immediately.

Additional information may be obtained by writing to the Director of Student Finance at Southern Missionary College, Box 370, Collegedale, Tennessee, 37315.

268 Students Score Honors

Forty-six students are on the Dean's Roll for the second semester of the 1966-67 school year, according to Dr. Frank Knittel, SMC's academic dean. To be included in the Dean's Roll a student must have maintained a grade point average of 3.5 for two consecutive semesters while carrying a minimum of 12 semester hours classwork per semester. A straight "A" average is designated as 4.0. Listed alphabetically, the students are:

Horning, Tribble Intern at Presses

The communications department of Southern Missionary College has initiated an eight week summer internship program to train potential writers and editors. This program offers four hours of college credit and a substantial scholarship applicable to future educational pursuits.

Cheryl Tribble and Pat Horning, senior communications majors at SMC, are the first interns working under this new plan.

Miss Tribble is working with "These Times" editor, Kenneth H. Holland, of the Southern Publishing Association in Nashville. Miss Horning is interning under a former SMC journalism instructor, F. Donald Yost, now an associate editor of the "Re-view and Herald," published in Washington, D.C.

During this internship the students edit manuscripts, write news briefs and prepare copy for the press. One full-length feature is assigned to each intern.

This equipment greatly enhances SMC's language programs, making possible much more effective teaching of correct pronunciation and conversation in foreign languages, says Dr. Knittel.

Plaque Honors Committee

Members of Southern Missionary College's Committee of 100 and the Board of Trustees are on campus today for the convocation ceremonies in the Physical Education Center at which a plaque with each member's name engraved upon it was presented.

Elder H. H. Schmidt, President of the Southern Union, is Chairman of the Board of Trustees, and Dr. W. M. Schneider, President of SMC, is Secretary.

William A. Iles, Vice President of the Insurance Firm of Herndon, Iles & Scott in Orlando, is the current President of the Committee of 100. Sam Maritz, President of Memorial Bibles in Nashville, serves as First Vice President. O. D. McKee, President of McKee Baking Company in Collegedale is Secretary to the Committee and Bill Hulsey, President of Collegedale Cabinets is the Treasurer.

The Committee of 100, made up of business and professional people, was formed by the Board of Trustees as a means of attaining a wider representation from the constituency to give support and counsel to the expansion program at SMC. This Committee with some help has been responsible for providing the total facilities in the PE Center.

Four special committees, organized from members of the Board of Trustees, Committee of 100 and faculty, that have been formed dealing with the areas of Industrial Development, Finance, Student Life and Personnel and Curricula met on Campus last night, September 27.

This afternoon members of the Board of Trustees and Committee of 100, administrative faculty, industrial superintendents, and elementary and secondary school faculty are scheduled to take a boat ride on the Tennessee river.

President Schneider Lists Year's New Staff Members

Dr. Wilbert M. Schneider has issued a partial report of personnel added to the faculty and staff for the current college year.

Listed in alphabetical order, they are: Mrs. Sarah Jane Groger, Mrs. Joseph Hutcherson, Mrs. Eleanor Jackson, Mr. Wayne Janzen, Mr. Eric Kier, Dr. Frank Knittel, Mr. Harold Kuebler, Elder Harry Lundquist, Mr. Robert McCurdy, Dr. Robert Morrison, Mrs. Foe Rees, Mrs. Anita Schroeder, and Mr. Nelson Thomas.

Dr. Schneider received a Ph.D. degree in economics from the University of Southern California in 1952. For the past three years he has been the Academic Dean of Pacific Union College, Angwin, Calif.

Joining the nursing division is Mrs. Sarah Groger, assistant instructor in public health nursing. She is a graduate of SMC, receiving her B.S. degree in 1965.

Mr. Joseph Hutcherson, an alumnus of Central High School in Chattanooga, is the new assistant professor of physics. He received his B.A. degree from the University of Chattanooga in 1962. Hutcherson holds the M.S. degree from Vanderbilt University and has partially completed requirements for the doctorate degree from that university. He is currently proceeding with research in the measurements of heat density of gases on a recent grant to SMC from the National Science Foundation.

Now working on her Ph.D. degree is Mrs. Eleanor Jackson, the new head of the art department. She and her husband, Elder M. J. Jackson, are former missionaries to Alaska and Hawaii. She holds an M.A. degree from the University of Oregon, obtained in 1962.

A Canadian citizen, Mr. Wayne Janzen is a new instructor in industrial arts. He has just received an M.A. degree from Western Michigan University. Formerly, Mr. Janzen taught at Canadian Union College in College Heights, Alberta, Canada, from 1964 until coming to SMC.

Mr. Eric Kier is the new director of the men's residence halls. Since 1955 he has been dean of boys at Campion Academy, and principal of Plainview and Mount Aetna Academies. He is a member of the American Association of School Administrators. He received his B.A. degree from Colorado State College.

Buy Tickets for SA Fall Picnic October 4

SMC's new academic dean, Dr. Frank Knittel, is the former vice president for student affairs at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Mich. Dr. Knittel received his B.A. from Union College; both his M.A. and Ph.D. are from the University of Colorado. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa.

Harold Kuebler, dean of men, comes to SMC from Andrews University where he served two years as dean of men. He received his B.A. degree in religion in 1962 and master's degree the next year at Andrews.

Elder Harry Lundquist, received his B.A. degree from Andrews University, and his M.A. from Maryland University. He will assist in teaching Spanish. Elder Lundquist formerly served at SMC as associate professor of religion and in the public relations and alumni offices.

A 1963 SMC graduate, Mr. Robert McCurdy is a new instructor in the physics department. For the past two years he has been employed as a physicist by McDonnell-Douglas Corporation in St. Louis. He is a member of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics.

Deana Mobley, teaching assistant in the nursing division, is a 1965 graduate of SMC. She has been head nurse at Moccasin Bend Psychiatric Hospital in Chattanooga and head nurse at Hixdale Sanitarium and Hospital, near Chicago, Ill.

MV Weekend Features GC's Elder L. M. Nelson

The Missionary Volunteer Society of Southern Missionary College began its "religiously oriented" activities for the 1967-68 school year during the annual "MV Weekend" here September 22-23.

Featured speaker during the weekend services was Elder Lawrence M. Nelson, Jr., Associate Secretary of the Missionary Volunteer Department of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Washington, D. C. Elder Nelson received the bachelor of arts degree from Pacific Union College, Angwin, California, in 1939 and was ordained to the ministry of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in 1943 at Fresno, California.

Assisting Elder Nelson with the weekend program was Elder E. S. Reile, MV Secretary of the Southern Union. Also present were the various MV secretaries representing the seven local conferences comprising the Southern Union: W. C. Arnold, Alabama-Mississippi; D. L. Aalborg, Georgia-Cumberland; G. B. Gooden, South Central; D. E. Hoidal, Kentucky-Tennessee; P. A. Kostenko, Carolina; N. D. Middig, Florida; and R. P. Peay, South Atlantic.

"This special weekend," as described by Jim Walters, campus MV leader, "was presented to emphasize 'MVDC' (Missionary Volunteer On Campus). Likewise, this is the theme and purpose of the MV Society for the 1967-68 school year. It is our desire this year to not only promote off-campus activities, but to also place in a new and dynamic perspective the importance of personal Christianity to the Collegiate man and woman of 1967-68. In summary, it is our desire to reveal to all SMC students that Christianity is relevant and that Christ is the only answer to life's questions and perplexities."

Services for the weekend include the usual Friday night MV meeting, Sabbath School; two Sabbath morning church services; Sabbath afternoon MV Youth Rally, featuring Pastor Terry McComb, SMC alumnus and college MV leader for 1962-63. Pastor McComb is presently serving as the pastor of the Dyersburg, Tennessee, district. Other weekend programs included a Sabbath afternoon "Singspiration," and a Saturday night entertainment program which features a film entitled "Inn of the Sixth Happiness."

Two Faculty Members Finish Science, Math Doctorates

Alma Chambers and Lawrence E. Hanson, associate professors at SMC, recently earned their doctorate degrees.

Dr. Chambers, presently head of the Behavioral Sciences Department received her Ph.D. degree on September 2, from the University of Southern California, having completed her dissertation on "Anxiety, Physiologically and Psychologically Measured, and Its Consequences on Mental Test Performance."

Dr. Hanson, head of the Math Department, earned his Ph.D. in mathematics education from Florida State University. It was formally conferred on June 17. Dr. Hanson's study entitled "Inductive Discovery Learning, Reception Learning, and Formal Verbalization of Mathematical Concepts" is based upon experiments conducted on three advanced mathematics classes in the eighth grade of Dalewood Junior High School in Chattanooga and students in a course in modern mathematics at SMC.

Total Enrollment Approaches 1200

On September 13, 428 freshmen, 284 sophomores, 258 juniors, 160 seniors, and 51 special students completed registration. This totals 1181, which is 41 students more than the total students registered as of September 26, 1966. The Madison and Dalewood campus enrollments bring the total SMC enrollment to 1393.

Of this number, 984 students are single, 192 are married. On the Collegedale campus there are 454 women and 348 men in the respective dormitories. There are 136 women and 198 men in the Village. The Madison campus has 15 dormitory and 12 village students, while the Dalewood campus has 29 women in the dorm and one male in the community.

Editorially Speaking . . .

A New Student Center?

The library should be relieved of its dual role. Presently it is serving as a place for serious study and research and as a meeting place for those who feel a strong need for socialization. It is obvious that the library's only use on this campus should be for study and research. However, what about those who need to work on assignments with others or complete their studies in the afternoon and desire relaxation during the evenings in a heterogeneous group?

We feel that the ideal solution to this problem is to convert the cafeteria into a temporary type of student center which would be open in the afternoons and from 7:30-9:45 during the evenings. All of the facilities now available in the presently inadequate student lounge could be made accessible in the cafeteria. In addition, Mr. Luce has said that he would consider opening the decks for soccer, drinks and making of sundae.

Some of our other colleges such as La Sierra, Andrews and Pacific Union have tried this plan and found that it was successful. If this idea is accepted, the present student lounge which is used only by a sparse minority would become additional service men for the cafeteria and the entire cafeteria would be made available for a student center.

Now, you're probably wondering who would want to sit in a cafeteria to socialize anyway, but remember cold weather is coming. Actually, which is better—sitting on the steps in between the walking patrolman's rounds, disrupting the quiet in the library, or using the cafeteria for an occasional evening of talk with a special friend?

Support your Student Association in its endeavor to formalize this plan, which will involve a major policy change with the administration because the present policy allows no socialization after 7:00 p.m., and which will only be considered if we, the students, make known our desire and need for a student center.

Europe's Hours Were Desperate During WW II

By WAYNE HAMM

The Walpurgisnacht of Europe KAPUTT by Curzio Malaparte.

Europe was finished, dead, no more. The great continent had turned and with frustrated hate destroyed itself. Yet there was a terrible and awesome beauty there, the beauty of courage and heroism. In the hands of Curzio Malaparte, the tale of Europe's most desperate hours becomes a profoundly moving experience.

With words of sparkling transparency Malaparte has woven a set of seemingly unrelated incidents into a vast tapestry of war and suffering—"Gaetica"—of gruesome gaiety and beauty. His figures are dazzling, his turns of phrase witty, his narration is sophisticatedly simple and limpid.

The effect resulting from describing horrible or tragic occurrences with such simple diction is indescribably shocking. In one story Malaparte tells of a herd of fine horses that, during a battle, sought refuge in a Finnish lake. "The north wind swooped down during the night (The north wind blows from the Murmansk Sea, like an angel of doom, crying aloud, and the land suddenly dies.) The cold became frightful. Suddenly, with the peculiar vibrating noise of breaking glass, the water froze . . . On the following day the lake looked like a vast sheet of white marble on which reared hundreds upon hundreds of horses' heads. All were facing the shore and the white flame of terror still burnt in their wide-open eyes."

The anecdote is frightful and

heartbreaking, yet there is an undeniable grandeur to such a scene.

In other stories the author tells of the German massacre of all the literate members of a Russian prison band—of a visit to the "German king of Poland," Reichsmarschall Frank—of a visit to the Warsaw Ghetto—of the three years he spent in a Roman prison after insulting Countess Ciano, Mussolini's daughter.

Malaparte's reaction to these experiences is a peculiar mixture of fascination, shame, and horror. Fascination, because a great war is one of the most exhilarating and exciting experiences possible; shame, because he feels that all Europeans—including himself—share in the blame for the atrocities committed during the war; horror, because of the depths to which humans fell when their true natures were released.

What Kaputt means to us average American young people, thousands of miles and twenty-five years distant from the war, is that if every trait of kindness, humanness, justice and peacefulness within us is not carefully cultivated and protected, we will rapidly descend to depravity as deep as any thing witnessed during the Second World War.

The new editor, he who may, hopefully will reconsider the name of the student directory before destroying another SMC tradition.

Intelectual "Joker"

Registration Idea

Dear Editor,

There was a major flaw in the registration procedure at SMC this year.

For one thing, the class schedule was in many cases inaccurate. That it was impossible to plan the freshmen

Another thing, because the schedule was printed to register ahead of everyone else, many upper classmen were unable to enter classes they needed to take.

A classic example of both these hazards, the class schedule indicated that Belmont and Tenue would not be taught first semester. By the time I found out it would be taught, the class was filled with freshmen and I couldn't take it.

I hope something will be done about this in succeeding years.

Camping Out?

Dear Editor,

As a recent visitor to the campus of SMC, I could not help but notice the beautiful grounds and how well kept they are. On the other hand, I also noticed the condition of the new dorm. It certainly will be beautiful when finished but until then, well, not so much.

I humbly suggest that 2 hours of Campcraft credit be given those dwelling in the partially completed building.

Sincerely,

Karen Stumpf

Better Service

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Luce for the increase in serving hours. For the first time since arriving at SMC I have been able to get to breakfast! Was it to my diet, but thanks be to Luce!

Return to Joker

Dear Editor,

In the light that a new school year has started, a question is raised among the student body, "What will be the name of the student directory?"

It seems that last year the name was changed from the traditional "Joker" to another supposedly more intellectual name, the "Joker". Not only is there some doubt as to the superiority of the new title, but this change was thrust upon the students whether they preferred it or not.

Teachers Hurt Reputations With Prolonged Strikes

T. Crawford Gibbs

Monday, September 11, 46,000 of New York City's 58,000 teachers went on strike. The immediate cause for the walk-out were apparently a demand for higher wages, (the average teacher in New York City makes about $8,300), and smaller class size.

However as the slowdown continued, the secondary goals of "united" education in New York seemed to come to the surface. Albert Shanker, President of the United Federation of Teachers, is seen pushing the idea of union rather than better education for New York and New York teachers. He is offended about such trifles as the term "fact-finding" applied to study elementary problems. He feels that the process should be called "intensive mediation." He also feels that public recommendation for education were made on a "take it or leave it" condition, a union not to be offered to a "union."

If the idea is to gain or win objectives for the sake of union, the before responsible profession of teaching is laying its reputation on the line. Not only are the teachers losing 1.4 million dollars a day, which they claim they need, but far more important is the fact that they are critically injuring the educational growth of over one million students.

This "show of unity" has set back the educational system in New York City for a week with promise to continue even if teachers return as a result of confusion and disorganization. Many volunteers have tried to be the best of their ability to supplement the void. However without proper training they can only have more disruption.

The past reputation of professional teachers has been outstanding in fields of respect, responsibility, and helpfulness in the community. Teachers "playing hooky" cannot benefit themselves except by extreme pressure to a distraught public, consequently losing their reputation.

"Collegedole Forever!"

Official School Song of Southern Missionary College

Southern Missionary College, Glory in your growing fame, Draw and hold us, "School of Standards," by what's noble in your name.

Nestled snugly in the foothills, Pierced by lanes for decades' trod,

Like our college sweetly resting, Near the very heart of God, Tinkling brooklets, whispering pine trees, Blend with Flattering angels' wings;

In our cherished "School of Standards," Truly all creation sings!

CHORUS:

Southern friendships root the deep, Southern skies are always blue; Southern charm will live forever, Collegedole, we live for you.

Petition Week for SA Election Ends Tomorrow

Religion Retreat Features Evangelist E. E. Cleveland

The fall religion retreat of the Student Ministerial Association will feature Elder E. E. Cleveland of the General Conference Ministerial Association as the guest speaker the weekend of September 29, 30.

According to the SMA president Floyd Powell, the annual retreat will again be held at Camp Cumby-Gay in Clayton, Georgia, and will be patterned along the same lines as last year's retreat.

A feature of the keynote service Friday evening will be the showing of films of Elder Cleveland's recent evangelistic meetings in Trinidad.

New Staff for Year Announced

Dr. Robert Morrison, the new head of the modern languages department, comes to SMC from East Carolina College, Greenville, N.C. He was director of a seven-week NDEA Institute for Advanced Study for secondary school teachers of Spanish during the past summer term. Dr. Morrison holds the doctorate degree from the University of Florida, majoring in Spanish with minors in French and Italian.

Mrs. Fae Rees, wife of former SMC president, C. N. Rees, will assume the responsibilities as Womens Residence Hall counselor. A native of Oakdale, Neb., she received her B.A. degree in English from Union College, Lincoln, Neb.

Joining the modern languages department is Mrs. Anita Schroder, instructor in German. She received her B.A. degree in German from Pacific Union College, Angwin, Calif. in 1965 and her M.A. in 1966 from the same college.

Nelson Thomas, former physical education teacher, dean of boys, and biology teacher at Shenandoah Valley Academy, is an instructor in physical education. He is currently working on his master of arts degree in physical education from Michigan State University.

Dual preaching services separated by a Sabbath School program conducted by members of the Student Ministerial Association are scheduled for Saturday morning.

For Saturday afternoon, four services are planned, the first being conducted by Elder Cleveland. Following a fellowship hour, a trophy hour will be conducted by Elders Bruce Johnston and Douglas Bennett of SMC's religion department. Elder Johnston will relate his experiences in an evangelistic field school this past summer in Seoul, Korea. A report on the field school held in Covington, Kentucky, by students and instructors from SMC will be given by Elder Bennett. Several students who conducted evangelistic meetings subsequent to the field school will tell of the results of those meetings. A sundown vespers services will conclude the weekend.

SA Elections Will Use New 'District' Plan

Students of Southern Missionary College will go to the polls October 8 and 9 to elect the first Student Association Senate under the new constitution. This new system calls for the dividing of the student body into "precincts" averaging 50 members per precinct.

During Petition Week, September 25-29, all candidates must obtain the signatures of 20% of the members from their respective precinct. After approval by the President's Council, the candidate is eligible for election.

Also included on the ballot will be candidates for the offices of Student Association Parliamentarian and Southern Memorials editor.

Rollin Mallernee -- A Profile

By CHEVYL TRIBBLE

"Here, let me wipe that sweat off for you. They haven't cleaned in here yet and we don't have everything in its proper place but we'll get settled one of these days," quipped a cheery Rollin Mallernee. Taking his chair, he leaned back with an air of dignity and propped his size 10 shoes on the desktop. "Now, just what do you want to know?"

Born July 18, 1946, Rollin Elliot Mallernee, III, has since graced his friends with his fetching smile and blue eyes crackling with merriment. If you are one of the "unlucky" ones who sit at the rear of the Chapel at least you won't miss the blond head as it flashes about on the platform.

Rollin, the 1967-68 President of the Student Association, is a senior Theology major from Atlanta, Georgia. A graduate of Shenandoah Valley Academy in the spring of 1964, he entered SMC in the fall. Since enrolling here Rollin has been Program's Committee Chairman and Vice-president of the Student Association. He has also been chosen to appear in the 1967 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities. Upon graduation Rollin plans to attend law school.

New Telephone System Improves SMC Efficiency

A new campus telephone and switchboard system has been installed on the Southern Missionary College campus. This switchboard system was installed during the summer months and is located in the lobby of the new Administration Building.

The administration of the college has three objectives in inaugurating this system.

1. To supply one location for general information and to have a campus receptionist available to all campus phones from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.
2. To supply each teacher and office with a direct, private line to the PBX operator. To dial one of the phones with in the PBX system, you simply dial a three digit extension number.
3. To realize a saving on the operation of the system. There will be monthly charges for the switchboard and incoming circuits as well as the operator, but each office circuit now costs $1.65 per month as against $14.00 previously.

Rollin, along with Bill Murphy, a 1967 graduate of SMC, spent 10 weeks this summer touring 17 European countries. Their average spending budget was $4.50 a day; with this they "saw the world."

"If I could choose just one country to go back to, I'd choose Italy," he confided. "It has the most variety: Rome and the Vatican, Naples, Venice with its canals; Florence and all the great pieces of art work; and . . . the Riviera."

"Paris is the most beautiful city in the world! It's just too big to be. I can't imagine anything any better."

"I almost got killed in Portugal," he explained. "I was inside a bull ring with 20 other photographers taking close-ups of a bull in action. A man behind us started waving a cape and suddenly the bull turned and charged. I've never been so scared in all my life! I thought I'd had it that time. I turned and ran for the fence and just managed to slide under it as he charged by."

At present, Rollin is occupying room 114, one of two offices assigned to the SA in the new Administration Building. The furniture has not been arranged, pictures are leaning against the wall and dust covers every visible surface, but this has no resemblance to the inner workings of the SA itself. A constant stream of work and visitors emerge from the office. Rollin has been busy functioning as a go-between trying to establish a working atmosphere between the new administration and his officers.

Rollin's platform contained four goals that he wants the SA to attain this year. 1) A student discount card to be used in the local stores. He hopes to obtain support from other nearby colleges in presenting this program to the local merchants. 2) A student center that will be open for use during the evening hours. This is to help relieve the congestion in the over-taxed library. 3) A benefit to be held in the downtown Tivoli Theatre with all proceeds going to local charity. Rollin feels that the student body has a responsibility to Chattanooga area residents. 4) A religious seminar to be held in the spring. Students will be invited from local non-SDA colleges. "Who knows what doors we may open for them," he explained.

Symphony Plans 1967-68 Program

The Chattanooga Symphony Association and the Chattanooga Community Concert Series will soon open their 1967-68 season.

The Chattanooga Symphony Orchestra, under their new conductor, Richard Cornier, announces six concerts. Featured with the Orchestra will be such guests as Jean Cocteau, pianist; Sidney Harris, violinist; Roger Drinkall, cellist; Ronald Turpin, pianist; Donald Prek, flutist; and Edward Druzinsky, harpist.

Ivan Davis, pianist; The Harry Simcoe Quartet; The American Ballet Theatre; Roberta Peters, Caloratura Soprano, and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, are listed as the five programs to be presented this season.

Season tickets for each of these series in the Tivoli Theatre may be purchased at the reduced student prices of $9.00, $6.50, and $5.00 from the Music Department.

SDA Attitudes . . .

Loma Linda Does Depth Study on Mission Work

The Mission Research Project started by the Department of Sociology and Anthropology of Loma Linda University last fall is beginning to yield interesting findings, according to Dr. Betty Stirling, Assistant Professor of Sociology, director of the project. The purpose of this study, according to Dr. Stirling, is to ascertain the attitudes of Seventh-day Adventist college students toward the mission program of the church, and to find out how they would feel about mission service.

The current research project had its origin in a small study done by a graduate research methods class at LLU a year ago. A report of the study in Scope attracted the attention of some church leaders who suggested that a larger study be done. This led to the present project, which is being carried out with the assistance of three graduate sociology students—Gordon Butler, Anne Haines and Jack Lawson—and with the cooperation of Jer Christophers of the LLL Scientific Computation Facility. The project is financed by the department and NIE grant #R00275-02 through the Scientific Computation Facility.

A 26-question printed questionnaire was used in the study. In the development of its final form, the three graduate assistants interviewed students on three campuses, using an open-ended question interview guide. Suggestions on the content of questions were also made by former missionaries, according to Dr. Stirling.

Questionnaires were distributed to students in all English-speaking SDA Colleges in North America and Australia. Students who received the questionnaire were chosen by a standard random-selection technique, and amounted to 15 percent of each study body. Respondents were completely anonymous; students received questionnaires in sealed envelopes and returned them in sealed envelopes. In most of the colleges, the envelopes were delivered by and returned to the behavioral science department or the office of the academic dean. At Southern Missionary College Dr. J. W. Russell performed this service. The returned questionnaires from the North American colleges total some 950, which is approximately 95 percent of the questionnaires sent. Southern Missionary College had the highest percentage return of any of the larger colleges.

In the questionnaire, students were asked about their general attitudes toward the church's mission program, their understanding of mission conditions, opinions on what kind of preparation is needed for mission service, their interest in mission service, and suggestions on new approaches to mission work. The student was also asked to indicate his age, sex, marital status, major, year in school, number of years in SDA schools, and denominational membership. Identification by college was made as the questionnaires were returned.

Analysis of the data so far indicates that college students are interested in missions. Southern Missionary College respondents differed from the total on few questions. In the opening question asking whether they would argue for or against missions in a general group discussion, 71 percent of the total respondents indicated that they would argue for mission service and only 2 percent would argue against it, 26 percent indicated that they would remain silent and 3 percent. At SMC more would argue for and fewer would remain silent. The next question inquired about their view of the overall mission program. Twenty-one percent said the program is "progressive and adequate for the needs of the future," 32 percent said it "meets the needs of the world today," and 41 percent said it is "outdated." (Write-in answers and failure to answer question bring totals to 100 percent on the various questions.)

SMC students also differed on who should direct mission work. 47 percent of the total suggested turning all mission direction over to trained nationals, with perhaps a missionary "consultant," and 40 percent preferred to keep a missionary in the top administrative position with trained nationals in other positions, while SMC students had 40 percent for national direction, 49 percent for missionary. Only 5 percent—at SMC and in the total—wanted to use nationals as assistants only. On the present mission program 52 percent said it Christiansizes, 41 percent that it Christianizes and Americanizes, 5 percent that it Americanizes. At SMC a larger percent said "Christianizes," a smaller percent "Christianizes and Americanizes."

Regarding length of mission service, 59 percent of the respondents indicated that it is challenging as a life work, 25 percent that it is challenging for one year, 10 percent that it is about the same as work in the homeland, and 2 percent that it is a way to "bury one's talents." Women students were more likely to see mission service as a life work than men.

of prospective missionaries and that missionaries sacrifice in going to the mission field. But only a minority felt that as a general rule mission living conditions are primitive and unhealthy. Instead, they view conditions as "lacking conveniences."

Questions on where students find out about missions showed that 40 percent felt that mission reports (in Sabbath school or in church papers) paint a true picture, and a total of 46 percent felt that reports either understate or exaggerate conditions. Twenty-seven percent of the respondents feel that mission reports are generally inspiring and informative, the rest that they are lacking in one or both of these qualities.

Three questions were asked about definite interesting mission service. In regard to other students' interest, 6 percent thought other students were interested for themselves, 63 percent that they were interested in a general way, 27 percent that they were apathetic, and one percent that they were against such service. In regard to their own interest, 3 percent said that they were planning to go as missionaries and had been asked, 30 percent that they were planning to go if they were asked, 35 percent that they might be interested, 11 percent hadn't thought much about it, 7 percent used to want to go, and 10 percent had never been interested. For the total group of respondents, the highest percentage first became interested in mission service in high school, but this varies considerably by sex and by whether they are definitely planning to become missionaries. Regarding choice of field, Latin America attracted the most interest, with the Pacific Islands a close second.

Sixty percent of the students said they had never been contacted by church officials regarding mission service, 29 percent had been approached but only as a member of a group, 10 percent had been personally asked. However, 46 percent of the students indicated that they felt

Bumiller Gives First Lyeum For New Season

"By Jeep around the World," a color film depicting Ted Bumiller's experiences as he circled the globe alone in a jeep, will open the 1967-68 Lyeum Series Saturday night, September 30.

Bumiller, an architect and graduate of the Applied Arts College, University of Cincinnati, spanned thirty countries during his excursion studying the culture, architecture, history and handicraft of each.

He will take you to the top of the Matterhorn in Switzerland during a snowstorm and to the Great Barrier Reef in Australia. You will see the Beer Gardens of Germany, Jerusalem today, the sands of Iran, and many other scenes from around the world.

These are only a few highlights of the analysis, according to Dr. Stirling. Answers to many questions varied considerably by college, by year in school, by sex or marital status. Cross tabulation of questions is also yielding very interesting results. A complete report will be made in the near future and a copy will be sent to each college. Dr. Stirling expresses her appreciation to all students who participated in the study.

In discussing the society's plans for the school year, Hanson emphasized that they are aiming for total "student involvement" from the community, high schools, and campus individuals. Projected activities will be key to relevant problems and needs of our time. "The temperance organization is not solely limited to alcoholics, narcotics, and tobacco—especially on a SDA campus," he explained. "Temperance is concerned with all other areas of harmful living."

The society recently operated a booth at the Hamilton County Fair in Chattanooga where a series of five films were shown in the twenty-five person capacity viewing room.
